LONDON DOCKERS HELP STOWAWAY ASHORE

LONDON (UPI)—London dockers unloading a Polish freighter today smuggled ashore a Polish stowaway they found hiding in the cargo.

Police identified the stowaway as Josef Turzynski, 35, who said he hid aboard the 3,219-ton freighter Jaroslav Dabrowsky at the Polish Baltic port of Gdynia four days ago.

The vessel was searched two weeks ago by Scotland Yard's special branch in the hunt for escaped master spy George Blake.

and raised levels of Venice canals until city looked like floating island. More than 150 are known dead and the toll is expected to go higher. (AP Wirephoto.)

150 DIE IN ITALY

Disease Rides Flood Crest

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—A massive rescue force, driven by fear of epidemic, worked today to pull one-third of Italy from the chaos and misery of the country's worst flood disaster. Clearing weather helped.

Inmates Aid Victims Of Escapees

HANEY (CP)—Inmates of the Haney correctional institution have made restitution to two families robbed last week by three escapees.

The 500 inmates drew $100 from their welfare fund, and then passed the hat for additional money for gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller and a guest, Mrs. A. P. Auchstetter, were tied up in the Miller home Thursday and robbed of $38. The escapees also took a rifle, ammunition and a knife and then fled in the Auchstetter car.

Bruce Graydon, 15, Daniel Kitchener, 22, and Sandy McCurdy, 19, were later taken into custody and charged with assault, car theft, breaking and entering and theft, and escaping custody.

The Haney inmates gave $15 to the Millers Saturday and $91 to the Auchstetters, which included $65 for damage to their car.

They also gave hand-tooled leather purses to Mrs. Miller, her daughter Theima, and Mrs. Auchstetter.

The Haney institution, a minimum security prison, was established 10 years ago.

More than 150 bodies were reported recovered and the estimated death toll went to 300. It was feared that the final count would be far greater.

U.S. military bases in the country sent men and machines to join Italian soldiers, police and civilian volunteers in a rescue force of 250,000.

The situation was tense along sections of the Adige River in mountainous northern Trentino province and in the lowlands of the Po Delta.

Throughout the stricken area, from south of Florence to north of Venice, water contamination and hundreds of thousands of drowned livestock increased the danger of epidemics.

Belluno, north of Venice, reported an outbreak of measles. Officials fear typhoid. Army teams went into hardest-hit areas to destroy animal carcasses with flame throwers.

Officials estimated that more than 1,000,000 of the 6,000,000 persons in the disaster area were desperately in need of food. The American, British, French and Swiss consulates in Florence urged all foreign tourists to leave the city.

In mountain towns and villages in neighboring east Austria, an estimated 23 persons were dead after four days of blizzards and torrential rains.

Workers toiled through the night to shore up dikes and earth levees at the mouths of the Piave River north of Venice.

The youngster disappeared about 4 p.m. Sunday during a family visit to a park on the mountain.

The body was found about 8 a.m. today.

SLANDER CHARGE

Bennett Seeks Suit End

OTTAWA (CP)—Counsel for Premier Bennett of British Columbia asked the Supreme Court of Canada today for permission to appeal an order for retrial of a slander suit against him.

The court reserved decision after argument by lawyer George Murray for Mr. Bennett and by lawyer Tom Berger for George E. P. Jones, who is making the charges against the premier.

Mr. Murray's arguments hinged on a decision by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes to dismiss the suit in the B.C. Supreme Court without sending the case to the jury.

Jones appealed the decision, won a retrial by order of the B.C. Appeal Court, and will renew his action with another trial before the B.C. Supreme Court Jan. 9 if the premier loses today's request for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Jones was charged by the B.C. attorney-general Oct. 2, 1964, on two counts of unlawfully accepting a benefit as chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission.

FORCED TO RETIRE

When the counts were thrown out in county court, the Bennett government introduced a bill in the legislature compelling the retirement of Jones from his job.

Slander was alleged in remarks by the premier on March 5, 1965, at a time when the bill was before the legislature and the attorney-general still had an action on the criminal charges before the courts.

Mr. Bennett was quoted as saying to a meeting of the Victoria Social Credit Association: "I'm not going to talk about the Jones boy. I could say a lot, but let me just assure you of this; the position taken by the government is the right position."

Jones' counsel claims this was intended to mean Jones was "dishonest and unfit to act as chairman of the purchasing commission and ought to be removed from office."

CLAIMS DAMAGE DONE

Mr. Berger said today the words had done "untold damage to Mr. Jones' reputation as executive and administrator."

The appeal court said the original B.C. Supreme Court jury should have been allowed to decide whether the actions of the government in continuing its court action and in introducing the legislation could be reconciled.

'PEARSON FORMULA' WANTED

CALGARY (CP)—William Kay, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Sunday postal employees will accept nothing but the "Pearson formula" of a 36-per-cent wage increase and an interim increase of 18 per cent while wage negotiations are under way.

Otherwise, he said, the workers will walk off their jobs. He made the statement while addressing a rally attended by about 600 workers.

Mr. Kay said postal workers across Canada are solidly united, "and if there is a national strike, we will walk off as one man."

The postal workers are asking an increase of $1 an hour for letter carriers and $1.16 an hour for mail handlers.

Workers at the rally endorsed a resolution protesting a federal labor bill which would allow them to bargain for wages only, and exclude working conditions and fringe benefits. The bill has reached the committee stage in the House of Commons.

He said the union membership has voted 87 per cent in favor of strike action if wage negotiations with the federal government break down.

Mailmen Back Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Letter carriers have authorized their union executive to call a national strike if current pay talks with the federal government break down.

Roger Decarie, president of the 9,000-member Letter Carriers Union, Saturday night announced results of a national referendum that produced a 90-per-cent vote in favor of empowering the national executive to call a strike.

Letter carriers seek a 50-cent-an-hour increase now—a 20-per-cent raise—and want to negotiate for an additional 19 per cent next year.

WANTED TO PUSH PRICE OF COPPER UP

Plot to Bomb Zambia Bridge Bared

NEW YORK (AP)—Two men were held today in an alleged international plot to push up the world price of copper by blowing up a vital railway bridge in the African country of Zambia, a major exporter of the metal.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington that the men had tried to bribe two Miami, Fla., engineers to destroy the bridge, located on the main rail route used to ship copper from the landlocked Commonwealth country.

The two arrested were identified as Rolf Duenbier, 36, vice-president and New York manager of a West German metals firm, and Jay Aubrey Elliott, 31, a travelling representative for the same concern.

Investigators noted that world copper prices fell almost 50 per cent from April to August this year, although there has been some recovery recently. They appeared to be exploring two theories on the alleged plot.

The price decline hurts speculators dealing in futures contracts, for they can re-sell only at a loss when taking delivery now at the old high price. Cutting off the copper supply from Zambia, the free world's largest exporter of the metal, would raise prices sharply. This would enable the futures speculator to make up his apparent losses.

The second way to benefit from such a price rise would be to have advance knowledge it was coming, and buy now at the low price for later selling.

Both of the arrested men were charged with violating of a part of the Neutrality Security Act which prohibits a conspiracy in the United States to injure or destroy property located in a foreign country with which the United States is at peace.

Maximum penalty for conviction under the statute is three years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Hoover said the pair offered $25,000 plus expenses to Philip Armstrong and Paul Woodburn Caudell, Miami, marine engineers and licensed ship's masters, to blow up the bridge.

Officials in Lusaka, Zambia, expressed surprise at reports of the plot. It was understood that troops would be moved in to guard the bridge, a 1,338-foot span over the Kafue River 30 miles south of Lusaka, the Zambian capital.

The FBI said Armstrong and Caudell are co-operating and neither is a defendant in the case. Nor is the metals firm, Frederick Zoellner Corp., implicated in the charges, the FBI said.

Race-Baiting Candidates Condemned by Johnson

WASHINGTON (CP)—The leading players read their final lines Sunday for the U.S. congressional election Tuesday which generally is expected to preserve a Democratic-party majority.

President Johnson from his Texas ranch struck at what he called second-rate men who seek to turn white American antagonism against the Negro into a political advantage that "poisons public life."

Richard Nixon, for whom Tuesday's results may well govern his chance at another shot at the American presidency in 1968, accused the president of a no-win policy in Viet Nam and one-man government contrary to the American constitution. But he said his expectations of a Republican gain, if realized, should not encourage the Communists.

Perhaps 59,000,000 Americans

—a record for these off-year or non-presidential elections—will vote Tuesday in a mixed range of weather conditions across the country, it is estimated. The existing high of 53,500,000 was set in 1963.

But, as an Associated Press poll surmised, few expect any Republican resurgence breaking the Democratic party grip on Congress since 1954.

PREDICT SMALL GAIN

With all 435 seats in the House of Representatives at stake, The AP forecast a net Republican gain of fewer than 30.

and The AP said the Republicans may pick up five or six compared with their standing now of 17 to 33 Democrats.

As well, 45 of the states are electing new legislatures and there are thousands of lesser state and municipal offices to be filled.

A welter of issues, many of them bread-and-butter ones at the local level, have clouded predictions of the outcome despite agreement that the Vietnam war, inflation and the 21,000,000 American Negroes are primary national concerns.

Sunday, the president, in an after-church press conference, he sat out the campaign finale to rest for minor surgery—fired at the danger of the white backlash as threatening to "vest power in the hands of second-rate men whose only qualifications are...

'Hard Sell' Didn't Work

Socred Rank-and-File Want More Organizers But Less Ads

By JOHN MIKA

The next provincial election will see the Social Credit party spending more campaign funds on organizers and less on "hard sell" advertising if the grass roots have their way.

That's the recipe proposed by the annual Social Credit League convention Saturday in Vancouver, which gave several indications it felt the party brass blew a chance for major gains in the Sept. 12 general election.

The 450 delegates approved a motion saying other parties seemed better prepared for the election and urged employment of professional organizers to close the gap.

Another motion asking for more organizers found fault with the party's strategy in the last campaign and blamed it for the failure of polling results to "show a normal and expected increase in support for Social Credit."

EXPRESS VIEWS

The second motion was withdrawn after the league's executive agreed to consider its main recommendation demanding that constituency associations be given a channel for expressing their views of government proposals to the party's elected politicians.

League president George Driedger confirmed, in an interview, that the convention was unhappy with the campaign strategy relying on advertising and wanted more grass roots control in future.

He said it was felt that Sept. 12 campaign advertising "was done to the extent of saturation" and delegates believed the hard-sell technique "where there were no definite issues, tended to hurt us."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the convention he has applied to the Senate divorce committee for a chance to make representations urging broadening of divorce grounds, urged by one of the adopted resolutions.

TRUE INTEREST

He also revealed the provincial government plans to bring down legislation this spring requiring disclosure of "true interest" rates on credit contracts.

He was speaking to a resolution urging a law to compel credit suppliers to publish the full interest charges applying to conditional sales contracts, mortgages, credit purchases and all other credit transactions.

The convention wound up with a banquet at which retiring Health Minister Eric Martin made a farewell speech.

FIGHTS BACK TEARS

Premier Bennett fought back tears when he introduced Einar Gunderson at the banquet, recalling he was the first Socred finance minister in the province.

He said Mr. Gunderson was bitterly attacked by opposition parties because "they know that without him we would not be government today."

He made no reference to Mr. Martin during the banquet, explaining in an interview that the health minister still is in office and has not formally retired.

"We were starved out by hail, rust, grasshoppers, sawfly, thistles, drought—we had them all."

"The last time we were hauled out I lay down on the wheat field and cried," he once told a reporter.

When he got up he went to Regina to learn auto body work. He was 21 then. He worked an 11-hour day and a 14-hour day alternately. Later he took out his own homestead in the Peace River bloc—a quarter section. But the city called him back and this time he went to Edmonton.

REBUILT CARS

He stayed there five years, rebuilding cars and in 1932 he married there. His wife Jean survives him. He built a reputation in his new trade and in 1935 came to Vancouver seeking work. He was referred to Victoria.

Someone stole his money before he left and he had to sit up all night on the ferry on his way here. But he got a job quickly at R. B. Wilson's Motor House. Neither Mr. Mooney nor Mr. Wilson could have guessed that one day they would sit in City Hall as alderman and mayor respectively.

After five years with Mr. Wilson's firm, Mr. Mooney set up his own auto body business in 1940. He raised his twin sons Donald and Ronald to the trade. A daughter, Doris rounded out the family.

DEFEATED IN 1965

It was the late Charles Bandfield, long known as the unofficial mayor of Victoria West, who urged Millard Mooney to enter civic politics. In the years since 1940 he has served 13 years on council. He was defeated in a bid for mayor in 1965. And in 1963 he was defeated when he ran as a Social Credit candidate in a federal election.

(Mr. Mooney was active in the provincial Social Credit League and had attended the party convention last week at Vancouver. While there he told North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton that he intended being an aldermanic candidate again in Victoria next month.)

Mr. Mooney served on all committees of council and on various civic boards over the years. He has been chairman of public works and parks committees and has filled in as acting mayor on several occasions.

At the same time he found time to work with the Boy Scouts Association, Girl Guides, Eagles, Masons, Lions and United Commercial Travellers.

Vandals Cause $200 Damage In Toilet Fire

Vandals lit a fire which caused about $200 damage in the men's washroom at Centennial Square Saturday night.

Newspapers stuffed in a toilet bowl were set afire. The heat of the blaze smashed the bowl and filled the washroom with smoke.

The washroom, in the city-owned parking garage on Fisgard Street, together with automatic elevators has been subjected to frequent vandalism since the structure was completed about a year ago.

eigners and looking for open business premises they could enter.

Dozens of cars and motor scooters were left blazing along Parliament Street by the demonstrators as they retreated before the bullets and club wielding steel-helmeted police on foot and on horseback.

As the mob dispersed, however, its fury intensified. Soon the many winding side streets adjacent to Parliament Street were full of shouting young men stopping all passing cars, ordering their occupants into the streets and then setting fire to the vehicles.

One mob raged into the yard of Kumaraswami Kamaraaj, president of the ruling Congress party. They stoned the building and tried to push their way inside, but police replied with rifle fire and the mob fled into the street outside.

ESCAPES FROM HOUSE

Kamaraj escaped from the rear of the house and took refuge in a multi-storey apartment building for members of Parliament. Karamaraj's cook received minor injuries.

Army units moved into the city and the government put a curfew on the downtown area until further notice.

The demonstration, bringing together groups from all over India, was in response to a call by a national Save the Cow Committee, which demands a total ban on the slaughter of cows in India.

Earlier the march was punctuated by chants of "Stop killing our holy mother cow" and "We are ready to die so that cows may live."

Millions of Indians worship cows as symbols of fertility and motherhood.

The Indian government maintains that it is the responsibility of India's 16 states to ban cow slaughter, though it has promised to bring pressure on those states which still permit it.

ASK TOTAL BAN

Hindu leaders say a total ban on cow slaughter is the only way to save India from drought, crop failures and other disasters—which they regard as a form of divine retribution.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, showing deep distress, told Parliament that the atmosphere of growing violence spells danger to India's democratic way of life. She said the violence is being deliberately incited and that the government is determined to put it down "whatever the cost."

A few minutes later Parliament voted down a no-confidence motion in the government 235 to 36. The motion had been introduced by the Jan Sangh, a right-wing Hindu organization which also sponsored the march on Parliament today.

Before the rioting, Parliament had to be adjourned for half an hour when a Hindu priest, Swami Rameshwaran, and a member of the Hindu nationalist party, defied an order to leave the chamber after trying to raise the cow-slaughter issue without the Speaker's permission.

The House voted a 10-day suspension order on the saffron-robed swami, who brought proceedings to a halt with high-pitched shouts and screams.

Killed in Escape

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—An Oklahoma County jail prisoner, Steve Lloyd Harrod, 22, was killed Sunday when he fell five storeys after a makeshift rope broke during an attempted escape. Another prisoner suffered a sprained ankle. A third man involved remained inside the jail.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies were mainly sunny today along the B.C. coast as a ridge of high pressure builds offshore. A few snow flurries were reported overnight from the interior of the province but skies will gradually clear from the north as a weak disturbance moves into Washington. The next weather disturbance in the current series will push southward over the northern B.C. coast Tuesday afternoon.

and the Po, Adige and Brenta rivers south of Venice.

Florence and Venice, mud-stained and thick with debris from waters that had swirled 10 feet deep for hours, tried to achieve a semblance of normal life through relief and cleanup operations.

Professor Ugo Procacci, superintendent of Florence's art galleries and museums, said the most serious damage to Renaissance art treasures was in the Basilica of Santa Croce. Among the damaged works was a painting of Christ, by Cimabue, the 13th-century painter.

Skilled monks worked with 20 government experts on 6,000 books which were waterlogged in the national library.

Skilled Skydiver, 11, Falls to Death

MANASSAS, Va. (AP)—Dana Rutledge, 11, spent half his life around skydivers.

He was so skilled and trustworthy that for the last 300 of 1,000 jumps his father has made, he was allowed to pack the chute.

The father, Carl A. Rutledge, is a classifier at the U.S. patent office in nearby Washington and lives in Vienna, Va. He has been jumping for five years and is president of a skydiving club.

None of the 160 or so members of the club loved skydiving more than Dana did.

Yet, when Dana begged to be allowed to jump, Rutledge thought a long time. Finally, because of Dana's "over-all general knowledge" of skydiving, Rutledge gave in.

Dana made his first jump last summer.

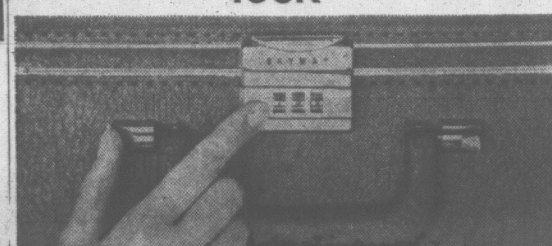

Sunday, he made his ninth and last. His chute failed to

Bonn Jolted By Vote

BONN (Reuters)—A surprise election success by extreme right-wing National Democrats in Hesse today provided another severe jolt for the Bonn government, already shaken by a 12-day political crisis.

The federal government's difficulties came to a head late last month when the four Free Democrats in Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's cabinet resigned over differences on his proposed budget.

Amid the confusion in Bonn, with the three parliamentary parties in dispute about the right way to preserve government authority, the result in Sunday's election came as a severe shock to government and opposition leaders alike.

For the first time in its brief two-year history, the National Democratic party, once described by a West German judge as "a collection box for former Nazis," succeeded in surpassing the five per cent minimum vote needed to become eligible to send deputies to a state parliament or the Bundestag. It polled 7.9 per cent.

The Social Democrats, with 52 seats, retained their absolute majority, but gained only one more seat than they had in the old state legislature.

Re-Establish Nazi Rule

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (Reuters)—A young Austrian-born American told a West German federal Supreme Court today how he came to Germany with a secret plan to re-establish Nazi rule.

Telephone engineer Reinhold Ruppe, 24, of New York, went on trial charged with helping to form a secret organization aimed at reviving Nazi rule and committing punishable offences.

Ruppe, born in Yugoslavia of Austrian parents, and German stone-mason Erich Lindner, 34, are jointly accused of a series of offences, including plotting to murder Fritz Bauer, Frankfurt prosecutor mainly responsible for Nazi war crimes trials.

The two are also charged with planning to blow up the Ludwigsburg central office for investigation of Nazi crimes and planning to destroy its records to prevent further trials.

The prosecution is headed by West Germany's federal prosecutor, Ludwig Martin.

The prosecutor's desk was piled with red and white election posters of the extreme right-wing National Democratic party, which scored significant gains in Sunday's state election in Hesse.

HELPED PARTY
Ruppe admitted in court today he put the posters up on the party's behalf.

Exhibits also included rifles, pistols, explosives and a black Nazi-style uniform once worn by the accused.

Ruppe smiled frequently as the senior judge poured scorn on his accounts of alleged Jewish inspired anti-German hate in New York, and a plan allegedly devised by Ruppe and others to form a Nazi central committee to rule Germany.

Gamblers Arrested After Luxury Cruise

NEW YORK (UPI)—FBI agents arrested 25 persons on gambling charges today as they disembarked from a luxury liner they allegedly had turned into a floating Las Vegas.

The 25 were among 750 passengers on the Greek liner Ss Olympia which had left here three days earlier on a so-called "cruise to nowhere"—a trip beyond the territorial limits, without any stops.

Undercover federal agents, who sailed as passengers, reported that tons of gambling equipment ranging from craps to roulette, blackjack and slot machines were aboard the liner.

When not gambling, the well-heeled passengers could nibble at caviar, sip champagne and watch "big-time" night club entertainment, authorities said.

The arrests were the first to be made under a 1949 law making it a federal offence to induce passengers aboard a ship for the specific purpose of gambling in international waters and then returning to this country.

The law was passed after syndicate-connected gamblers began operating gambling ships in the Pacific off the California coast.

Concentration Camp Tour Made by Martin

By JOHN BEST

KRAKOW, Poland (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin toured Nazi Germany's most notorious concentration camp Sunday and pledged Canada's determination to do "all that is necessary" to help put an end to wars.

At the end of a detailed inspection of the Auschwitz concentration camp, where nearly 4,000,000 persons, mostly Jews, perished during the Second World War, Martin recorded his feelings of "horror and disgust" at Nazi cruelty.

He flew to Krakow from Warsaw on the first full day of his four-day official visit to Poland.

He was greeted by the Governor of Krakow province, Jozef Naborzanski, and the city's mayor, Zbigniew Skolicki.

The Canadian guests drove from the airport to Oswiecim, Auschwitz, where Martin placed a wreath of red and white flowers at the death wall.

He and his party were shown around by a pretty, 19-year-old redhead, Renata Botgowska, who minced no words in pointing out the death ovens and crematoria, the great mounds of human hair, eyeglasses, boots, clothing and dentures that belonged to its victims.

HOPE TALKS WILL HELP
Martin, obviously moved by what he had seen, said in an impromptu statement that he hoped his talks with Polish leaders will help to establish world peace "so that this won't happen again."

At a luncheon, the external affairs minister said that "despite the horror of it," the Poles are right to preserve Auschwitz as a monument "so that all may be reminded to what lengths man can go when he is driven by intolerance and hatred and fanaticism."

VIET CONG SLIP AWAY AFTER BATTLE

SAIGON (AP)—A large Viet Cong force eluded pursuing U.S. infantry today, slipping away through the dense jungle of Tay Ninh province near the Cambodian border after inflicting heavy casualties on some U.S. units during the weekend in one of the fiercest fights of the war.

About 200 South Vietnamese militia, aided by accurate artillery support, beat off a daylight attack by 400 to 500 Communists on a government post 12 miles southeast of Quang Ngai, on the central coast. A South Vietnamese spokesman said the enemy left 30 bodies on the battlefield, while only two militiamen were wounded.

'U.S. ENCOURAGED TO COMMIT NEW CRIMES'

Chinese Again Walk Out After Kremlin Blast

By SIDNEY WEILAND

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Communist Chinese charge d'affaires and his aides walked out of celebrations today marking the 49th anniversary of the Russian revolution after Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky attacked China's policy in Viet Nam.

It was the second Chinese walkout in two days. Sunday the charge d'affaires, Chang Teh-chun, left a Kremlin rally marking the revolution when Politburo member Arvid Pelshe made a similar attack.

Today's walkout came as Malinovsky accused China of encouraging the Americans to commit new crimes in Viet Nam.

Speaking from the top of the Lenin Tomb in Moscow's Red Square, Malinovsky said it is "a matter of regret that the leader of the Chinese People's Republic come out against the unity of action of socialist countries in supporting the Vietnamese people."

"This hampers the cohesion of all progressive forces of the world in fighting off American aggression in Viet Nam and encourages U.S. imperialism to commit new crimes."

The defence minister spoke just before dozens of missiles, tanks and other armor tumbled across the cobblestone square in the traditional Nov. 7 parade, reviewed by Leonid Brezhnev, Communist party leader, Premier Alexei Kossygin and other top Soviet leaders.

Observers said they saw no new missiles. Those on display included giant anti-missile rockets, submarine-borne ballistic missiles and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Charter Base At Tofino For Two Lines

TOFINO — Two commercial airlines have been granted a charter base at Tofino, the Air Transport Board announced today.

The board granted charter rights to Island Airlines and B.C. Airlines Ltd., both of Campbell River.

Last year it had turned down a similar application from Island Airlines, but the firm appealed to Transport Minister Pickersgill who ordered the board to reconsider the case.

The board decided there was enough traffic for both airlines to operate from Tofino.

Neighbors at the Polls

EXCEPT IN PRESIDENTIAL years, American elections are not followed with interest by Canadians. Under normal circumstances the issues in the mid-term campaigns tend to be parochial and, except where a heavy turn-over in Congress might exert an effect on a president's ability to have administration legislation passed, of not much moment to those outside the United States.

Despite all the clamor over the Viet Nam issue — certainly of interest to non-Americans — the war is not likely to be much altered by tomorrow's voting. There is only one state, Oregon, where Viet Nam has been presented to the people in what might be called a referendum. And even so it is in the election for governor, rather than for Congress, that this has appeared. Governor Mark Hatfield, a Republican, is strongly against the Viet Nam war and his Democratic opponent is an administration supporter.

The most celebrated race in the country is again for a governorship, Mr. Ronald Reagan, the movie actor who is ostensibly right wing, against Democratic Governor Pat Brown of California. Interesting as this campaign has been, it does not signify much so far as the whole country is concerned.

In the South, where strong efforts have been made to enrol Negro voters and where the Democratic party has held sway since the Reconstruction era following the Civil War, Republicans have been making inroads in recent years and are expected to make more advances this time. In fact, however, the balance in Congress between right-wing and liberal forces will be little affected by the outcome of Southern voting — there is little to choose between the candidates of either party, both tending to be strongly conservative on both domestic and international issues.

In most other parts of the country there is a similar situation in that the choice between the two parties represents little in the way of policy alternatives. Both hold generally rather conservative positions, the white backlash is felt equally by Democrats and Republicans, the Great Society has slowed down, as a result of war commitments, to a pace acceptable to Republicans and the Democrats are in no position to push it faster.

One loss to the nation which is considered likely by many commentators is that of numbers of the younger, more progressive Democratic congressmen who have been left high and dry financially by their party's campaign fund distributors. They are the ones who are most likely to be affected by the traditional swing to the "outs" of mid-term elections. This could have the result of producing a better-balanced Congress, numerically, although it is not expected to alter the basic overall Democratic majority.

"Goodies" or Principles?

MR. BENNETT HAS ADOPTED the same tone for his appeal to Cariboo voters on behalf of Mr. Bonner's candidature that he used when he opened the provincial election campaign at Campbell River last August.

He offers them "goodies" if they support his man. His words are clear: "With Bonner as your member, you've seen nothing yet." And in case the message did not get through: "I know, Mr. Gagliardi, you are going to rebuild that bridge at Quesnel and I know full well you are going to do many other things."

These were phrases thrown out to the delegates from Cariboo constituency attending the Social Credit League's annual meeting in Vancouver.

But the cynicism of this gesture could invite criticism from the Cariboo delegates, for they were already on record with a number of convention resolutions highly critical of government policy. They favor removal of school and hospital taxes from land. They urge tighter controls over water pollution. They demand establishment of an ombudsman and an anti-wire tapping law, both of which Mr. Bonner passed up at the last session. They call for a Hansard report of House proceedings.

These are issues which have been raised by opposition speakers at past sessions. Their endorsement demonstrates the unwillingness of Cariboo Social Crediters to toe the party line when they wish to show their independence of a government which now seeks their endorsement of an imported candidate.

Even with this unrest among the faithful, Mr. Bennett's favorite tactic of goodies-for-votes could yield some results. On the other hand, it could easily prove to be an embarrassment for Mr. Bonner, whose prime campaign objective surely must be to persuade the rangeland voters that he is worthy of their support on his own personal merits and not merely as part of a parcel of goodies.

Looking Ahead

THE AMBITIOUS BUT VERY feasible project of the Centennial Districts of the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin area, to provide a community swimming pool as the first step in an 18-acre recreational complex, is one that deserves the voting support of the people of the region concerned.

The indoor pool, near Colwood Corner, will constitute the centennial project of the area, but it is planned to add various other units — bowling greens, tennis courts, ice surface, gymnasium, rifle range and similar facilities — as soon as the public is willing to authorize them. The completed scheme — and it may take considerable time — would provide an excellent asset for the whole neighborhood, catering to young and old and doing much to counteract the unfavorable conditions that can arise in any community when young people find themselves without a suitable focus for their recreational hours.

But the project has more than local significance, for it may well be the forerunner of numerous similar recreational complexes that will be required in other parts of the capital region at a not far distant date. With the population increasing rapidly and greater demands being made on the sports and recreational facilities at hand, the large multi-sport complex may become an integral part of each geographical area of the community.

Paralleled by the wild parklands now being acquired by the Capital Region authority, such organized sports centres would round out the facilities necessary for any community entering upon an era of condensed population and increased leisure time. Greater Victoria should watch the Colwood experiment with particular interest, not only as a wholesome venture in public recreation but as a possible example for the future.

A Real Purpose Behind All the Turmoil?

FOR the moment the Pearson government may seem to be moving rightwards. At least it is trying to put the nation's finances in order, to contain an inflation largely of its own making and, very late, to devise some coherent set of priorities. But any old-time Liberal who imagines that the government is returning to traditional Liberalism completely misjudges it.

In fact, the new Liberalism is the antithesis of the old. The government is leading (or following) the nation toward ever-increasing state control of the economy, toward ever-expanding social welfare services, toward ever-rising taxes, toward a system which should satisfy all but the most doctrinaire socialists.

Can't See the Forest . . .

Of course this movement towards the so-called left is chaotic, inchoate and almost unconscious among men so occupied with daily business that they seldom stop to wonder where they are going, so obsessed with the trees of politics that they overlook the forest of policy. Nevertheless, the direction is unmistakable to anyone who can stand aside from the hurly-burly of Parliament Hill and see the political process whole.

Such an observer will see at once that the process is not partisan. All the political parties are moving together in essentials, though they may pretend otherwise and quarrel over details.

The Conservative party, for example, is always urging the government to enlarge its functions and expenditures while always claiming to represent free enterprise, rugged individualism and the good old days of Macdonald. The New Democratic party is always demanding more socialism and the election of a true people's government already has taken over its basic policies.

No party is prepared to resist the general trend. Any opposition to it exists within the old parties, but their right-wing dissidents have little power and seldom dare to speak aloud (except in the Senate which is not elective.)

Moderating Trend

They cannot hope to reverse the trend, only to moderate and guide it. That is what Mr. Sharp is doing, or trying to do. Yet the leftward pace is so rapid that he has been comically labelled a right-winger when he is a life-long radical who merely asks the nation to pay the bills for its vast social enterprises in honest coin.

At its present rate Canada will soon enjoy the most ambitious system of social security in the world. At its three levels the state will penetrate every nook and cranny of life. Not by any considered plan but almost absentmindedly we seem to be creating a kind of North American Sweden or Denmark — a society strictly regulated, opulent, stable and, one may suspect, somewhat dull and gray for its conformity.

It is a common mistake to suppose that this revolution (it is nothing less) has been secretly plotted by the government. Its roots go far deeper than the political system which is only its agent. Certainly Mr. Pearson was always a burning reformer by temperament and even in old age is still driven by the social conscience of his youth. But the forces now in flow would have produced the same broad result whether he had entered politics or not, though they might have been better managed.

When the most radical ideas embraced by the recent Liberal convention came from the supposedly conservative West, among them the theory of guaranteed incomes for everybody, when even Quebec is being transformed in its own far from quiet revolution, it is absurd to deny the trend. The historical imperatives move and nothing will stop them, in the visible future anyway.

It is not absurd, however, to ask whether those imperatives are leading up to a golden age or to a smash, and I dare say that men like Mr. Sharp ask themselves that question every morning. For the simple, mathematical truth is that as a society we have bitten off more than we can immediately chew — a truth demonstrated by the mathematics of inflation.

Erroneous Assumption

"We have based our calculations, if we have calculated at all, on the assurance that our annual wealth will continually increase at its existing rapid rate, or faster. But clearly it will not. Even the small downturn foreseen in 1967, far short of a serious recession, will painfully interrupt our theory of perpetual motion and gravely embarrass the theorists in all our governments. And beyond next year no one can see."

Thus, any neutral spectator who wishes to place the Pearson government in the long perspective of history must wait for some time. On the one hand, a Liberal partisan can accurately boast that the government is doing what it promised to do and has given the nation bold reforms of all varieties. On the other hand, the proof of this spicy pudding will be in the eating, and it has not been eaten yet much less digested.

If the government's policies, along with those of the provinces, should overstrain the nation and produce a crash, including another devaluation of the currency, then history's judgment will be very different from the partisan's judgment today.

Larger Questions

These questions will answer themselves in the next few years but a larger question is not often raised: What are we trying to do with the most fortunate land on this planet? What kind of society do we want? What is our real purpose behind all the turmoil of our disordered politics, all the alarm of the old and all the hopeful expectations of the young? Above all, what contribution shall we make to the world in which we are involved perhaps more deeply and nakedly than any other nation? What, in short, justifies us in maintaining the Canadian experiment in its hundredth year?

If any man in Parliament Hill knows the answer to that question, the only important question for our centennial, I have not found him.

Russia in the Middle East

AGAINST a background of explosive tension, the United States launched last week on an ambitious, long-range diplomatic venture:

eliciting from the Soviet Union some practical help in keeping the Mideast peace. There was little surface indication the venture would soon be successful. For it to come off, Moscow would have to decide its interests were better served by Arab-Israeli tranquility than by Soviet co-operation with the Arab states.

For more than 10 years, Moscow has played it the pro-Arab way, riding — and sometimes inflaming — Arab passions in an effort to maximize Soviet influence in the area.

This policy, however, has not proved to be a notably successful vehicle for the injection of Soviet influence in the Middle East.

Unstable Ally

There is only one consistently pro-Communist government in the area; Syria (and Syrian regimes are notoriously ephemeral). The United Arab Republic annoys the West in the area of foreign policy, but keeps its domestic Communists under careful restraint.

Thus it would be logical if the Kremlin were to take a new look at the cost-effectiveness of its Middle Eastern policy.

Simultaneously, there are at least two important motives for a change:

Desire to avoid another Suez-type crisis near the Soviet Union's southern frontiers.

Interest in furthering an East-West detente.

What El Fatah, a group of Palestinian exiles, presumably hopes to accomplish is to provoke Israel into such a large retaliatory raid that the Arabs will be forced to go to war. Many Palestinians resent the failure of Arab governments to act more vigorously on their behalf.

But an explosion on this scale is not believed to be Moscow's real objective. The Kremlin is believed to be seeking primarily to shore up the pro-Communist Syrian regime.

Outright warfare not only would not advance this objective, but could imperil it. An Israeli military success could result in the humiliation and overthrow of the men in Damascus who provoked it.

Thus there is a starting point in logic for those who would seek to wean Moscow away from an all-out pro-Arab line.

The other major factor which militates for moderation — the incipient East-West detente in Europe — is also significant.

Want Better Relations

Moscow has given several signs that she would like to encourage better relations with the West, provided it could be done without exposing her too seriously to Chinese allegations of "collusion with imperialists." Constantly intensifying Soviet-Chinese antagonism is one major factor driving Moscow westward.

A policy of peacemaking, or abstaining from warmaking, in the Mid-East would be one way to accomplish this end.

A roughly comparable set of circumstances last year prompted Moscow to discard a policy of cultivating one antagonist in the Kashmir dispute — India — and act instead in a relatively evenhanded way to calm Indo-Pakistani tensions. The result was the Tashkent accord.

Valid Parallel

To be sure, other significant factors helped produce Tashkent — notably Moscow's fear of Red Chinese incursion into the Indian subcontinent. But the parallel is sufficiently valid to be interesting.

And by something more than coincidence, there is another element reminiscent of Tashkent: the personal role of United States delegate Arthur J. Goldberg. As president of the UN Security Council during the Indo-Pakistani war in September, 1965, and now, Goldberg has his work cut out for him, but Goldberg is a resourceful man.

School Suggestions

The report of the committee studying education points out that the Victoria school system is so poorly organized and co-ordinated that it can hardly be called a school system and likewise, many of the schools can scarcely be called schools but are simply groups of classes.

It would also appear that the report considers that the principals are little more than head office boys and further indicates that the board does not confine itself to its proper functions of setting policies but goes into administration details which should be left to the superintendent, the principals and other officials.

If the situation is as noted in the report, Victoria is not far different from most other Canadian cities.

Teachers, who, by the way, are the only persons in most systems who are trained for their job, should be given working conditions such as size of classes, equipment, supplies and satisfactory classrooms so that they can do their jobs.

Principals should be given authority commensurate with their responsibilities. Principals taken as a group should be the most important part of the supervisory system.

The superintendent is hit doubly by the same difficulties as the principal and the superintendent who does least is usually the most popular with the board, the teachers and the public. Actually he should handle the system as a manager handles a business and all employees should be under his direction.

Lastly, there should be definite professional requirements laid down by the department of education, for principals and superintendents. The principal should be required to have a master's degree in education and the principals of the larger schools and the superintendent should be required to have a doctor's degree (Ph.D.) in education.

The above should be laid down by the provincial department of education, where the real blame for the present situation should be placed. —Modoc.

Nurturing the Child

Editorial comment under the heading "No Outside Comparison" in the Times, October 31, 1966, speaks of the new form of reporting progress in primary grades, which avoids comparisons with other pupils; this comment calls for some reaction, particularly to the last two sentences which stated: "But most parents undoubtedly will want to know where a son or daughter stands in comparison with his classmates. And how is the shock of comparison to be softened when a child grows up to the point of participating in the affairs of a highly competitive world?"

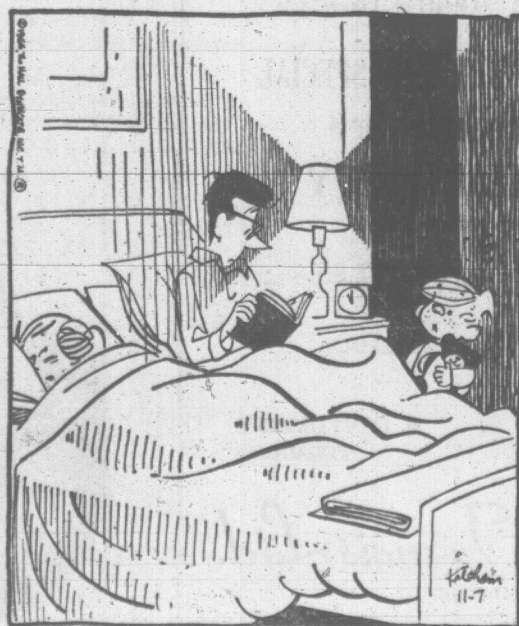

A number of erroneous ideas seem to be implied in this last sentence. The point is that if the child really grows up mentally, that is, if he is properly nurtured in the part of him that will feel any "shock," he will reach the point of participation in affairs much better able to cope with them if he has not been mishandled during the conditioning years. What the question is recommending, by implication, is that young children be subjected to wrong treatment at the wrong time . . .

With children the discouragement of being given a sense of failure has to be added to the picture. Grading too soon does more damage than it is worth.

Educators are dedicated to a training process which requires insight and good timing. A firm stand has to be taken against procedures which have been found to be more damaging than helpful to the ultimate purposes. Parents may want to know where their child stands, (and they can be told that in individual conferences with the teacher, if they seek an interview) but it is where the child now stands that is important, not where he may later fall because he was weakened by the grading process applied before its time.

Incidentally it may be pointed out that the grading process is being applied in the primary grades in the form of the "levels" system. These levels are broad enough segments, however, not to create false values in the management of the two aspects of the educational process, i.e., individual growth within a group environment. — R. K. Bloomfield, Research Consultant, District 61, School Board.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"I'M SORRY I SAID I WOULDN'T EAT NO DINNER, COULD I HAVE BREAKFAST NOW?"

Looking Back

From The Times of Nov. 7, 1966:

At a meeting yesterday of the British Columbia Electric Railway, financier R. M. Horne Payne said the prosperity of the province would really commence when it began to attract capital from the old world. Therefore, he said the people here had to show some care in the dealings with overseas nations. He said the Canadian market had hitherto been kept clean and wholesome, but he recently received prospectuses of at least a dozen enterprises of the wildest nature, involving millions of pounds sterling.

The Older People Dislike the Young, And Vice-Versa

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

J. Hugh Faulkner is the Liberal MP for Peterborough; he is only 33 years old, yet he is or appears to be on the side of the old men who are leading—or as I would say, failing to lead—this young, rich and beautiful country.

Several students took the attitude that Prime Minister Lester Pearson (69) and Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker (71) are ripe and ready for the rocking chair, to which Mr. Faulkner angrily replied:

"This country has an obse-

... symbol for youth

sion about leadership that derives from the superficial worship of John F. Kennedy. You are so conditioned by Kennedy that you are incapable of foreseeing any other kind of leadership... Name me men with more dynamism and sense of purpose than David Ben Gurion and Konrad Adenauer, both of whom are over 80."

I'm not much impressed by this, and I doubt the high school students were, either.

Agreed, there's a tendency among young Canadians to worship the late John Kennedy. The reason for this, I think, is that he suggested to them, and to young Americans, that in a society largely dominated by old men with old ideas (if any at all) a young man with young ideas still might get to the top.

JFK suggested to North America's high school and university students that young people might count, that they—and their views—might be treated with respect, instead of being ignored and scoffed at and repressed.

Huge, Heroic Actions

As for the comparison with Konrad Adenauer and David Ben-Gurion, surely the point is that each of these elderly leaders did huge and heroic things—things which captured the imagination of the young.

The one man dragged West Germany out of postwar ruin and misery into its present importance and affluence. The other, against all odds, built a brand-new nation.

Both are great in a way that totally overshadows Messrs. Pearson and Diefenbaker, with their babbles of medicare, old age pensions and the rest.

Much of my life these days is being lived in high schools and universities, among high school and university students. This week, for example, I was into two universities, three high schools and a couple of youth sessions at churches.

I find, as Mr. Faulkner found at York University—and as Dalton Camp is finding out right across Canada—that many young Canadians are hostile and critical toward the old men who run Canada in an old man's way.

'We Don't Need You'

Mr. Sigurdson concludes: "So where does a student stand on this game played by men in war offices around the world? The feeling is—Johnson, Wilson, Pearson, Castro, Sukarno, Nixon, Mao, Brezhnev, Nasser, frug off; leave the world alone, die, go away, we don't need you, we don't care about you."

"The Young Liberal Club is just asinine as the Red Guard. The needs of the politicians of the East and West are not the needs of the people of the East and West. The Chinese need food, clothes, homes, books, women and men to love. So do you and I."

"We don't need Viet Nam, we don't need Pearson, Johnson, or Mao. Sure, we need public officials. Ask students about CUSO, (the Peace Corps) travelling in Europe. The important thing is people-to-people; the state, leaders, officials, are background material."

I'm disposed to go along with Mr. Sigurdson. The Canadian political system doesn't want young people, it just isn't interested in them, so why should they be interested in it?

The old men with the political power use it to hold down and harry the young, so why should the young respect them—or respect their power, either? New forms of action and association can be developed, are being developed.

Can't Lightly Dismiss Latest Espionage Probe

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—On the strength of early and unofficial reports on the latest Canadian espionage case, it appeared that the Better Business Bureau should have been called in, not the Mounties.

Certainly if all that happened was that maps and documents freely available to anyone who asks for them were given to representatives of some Iron Curtain country, that would hardly constitute espionage.

If those employees of the former Department of Mines and Technical Surveys who allegedly supplied this material to foreign Communists took it from departmental stocks without paying for it, that would be theft. Whether they did, I don't know. If those employees sold this material at grossly inflated prices, leading their customers to think that this was top-drawer stuff, then that constitutes misrepresentation and fraud, and the Reds would be perfectly justified in complaining to the Ottawa BBB. Somehow I don't think they will.

Despite the unofficial downgrading of the story to one of sharp cookies pulling a fast one on some gullible Ivan in an Iron Curtain embassy, there are reasons against dismissing the matter that lightly.

First, there is the refusal of Solicitor General Pennell to give the Commons any information on the case aside from admitting that an investigation is under way.

Second, there is the fact that the RCMP has highly efficient counter-espionage people who are not likely to waste their time on anyone simply mulcting the Mounties' opposition.

These considerations suggest the Communists either got more, or were after more, than maps that any schoolboy can get by writing to Ottawa and enclosing 25 cents.

It is quite possible, for example, that they knew the material requested was publicly available. This would be a logical first step in drawing gullible civil servants into their net. Secret transfer of even innocuous material by civil servants to foreign agents—and the word "innocuous" is attributed to police sources—would be sufficiently suspect to give the foreign agents a hold over their Canadian contacts. This is what happened in the case of the Vancouver postal clerk, George Victor Spencer.

The fact that the Mounties were investigating was top secret until the Montreal Gazette "broke" the story on Tuesday. The Mounties won't say a word. But the chagrin of the counter-espionage section of the force can be felt in the cold wall of silence that greets inquiries.

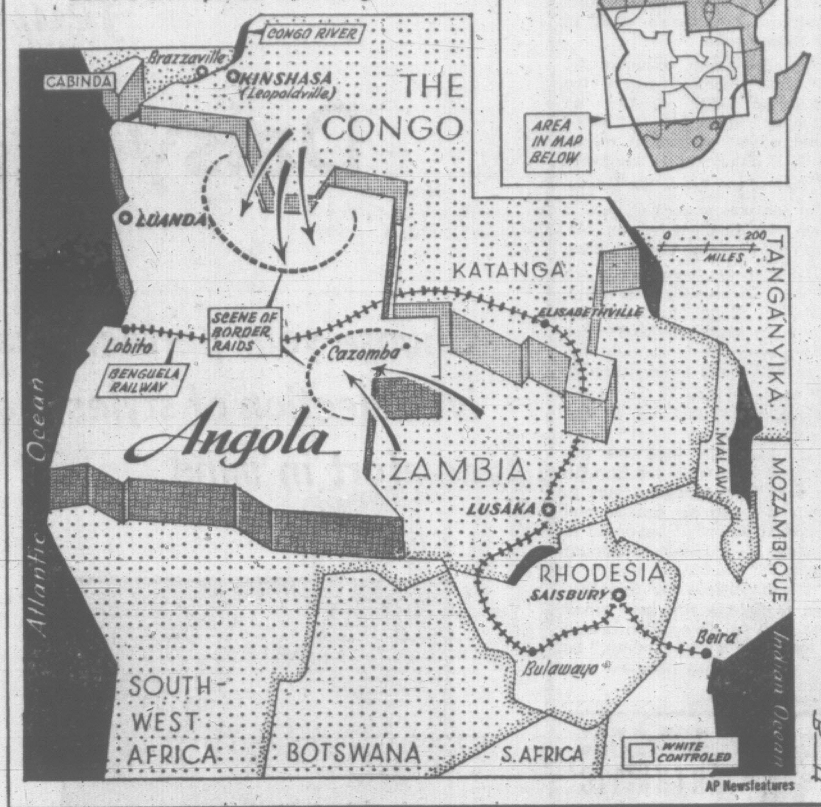

In the difficult and delicate business of ferreting out traitors, premature publicity can ruin months of work. Suspects are forewarned. Tracks are covered. Key figures disappear. Is a headline worth this?

Newsmen are dedicated to the task of informing the public. Our guiding principle is that what is the people's business must be made known to the people. But there is a great gray area in which application of this principle may be actually contrary to the public interest.

This ethical dilemma faced the New York Times when it learned in advance of the Cuban invasion. It chose to suppress the story until after the event. But, this standard of journalistic responsibility, that the public interest may require silence as well as courageous presentation of the facts, is not yet universally accepted.

Embattled ANGOLA

Portugal has 40,000 troops in Angola, its rich African territory surrounded by black-ruled nations. The Congo has broken relations with Portugal, and admits harboring anti-Portuguese rebel groups. Border incursions from the Congo and Zambia are reported increasing.

Portugal on Defensive In Rich Angola Colony

By DENNIS REDMONT

LISBON, Portugal — Angola, Portugal's richest African territory, is keeping a close watch on developments in its neighbor, the Congo, for a possible increase in terrorist infiltration.

Congolese Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko admitted before the United Nations Security Council that his country harbored anti-Portuguese rebel groups. In turn, the Congo charges that European mercenaries refuted in Angola are helping rebel elements in the Congo.

Late in September, Congolese demonstrators sacked and burned the Portuguese embassy in Kinshasa (formerly Leopoldville). Early in October the Congo broke diplomatic relations with Portugal.

Angola has been the apple of Lisbon's eye since the first Portuguese explorers landed in the Congo 450 years ago, searching for Prester John's legendary empire.

Rich Country

Extending 1,000 miles along the west coast of Africa, from the mouth of the Congo River to the arid wastes of South-West Africa, Angola is rich in oil, diamonds, coffee, sugar, tobacco and cotton. Its shores yield a respectable take of fish and its swift rivers are gradually being harnessed.

Standing squarely in the Congo's way to the sea, Angola plays a vital part in the development and extraction of Katanga's vast mining riches.

The British-owned Benguela Railway runs from the port of Lobito into the heart of the Congo-Katanga district. It is the shortest outlet for copper, aluminum, manganese, cobalt, zinc and iron ores of the region. The eastern end is in Mozambique, also Portuguese territory.

Control of this railroad and virtual possession of the Congo River's mouth between the Angola mainland and the little enclave of Cabinda, puts Portugal in a unique position to control Congolese traffic, a foreign ministry official claims.

There is no doubt President Joseph Mobutu of the Congo will do some hard thinking before severing relations with Portugal, he adds.

Terror in North

About 40,000 Portuguese troops are braced to prevent any recurrence of the bloody massacres of 1961. Most of the terrorism has taken place in the northern region, where two rival Congo-based rebel movements, the UPA and the MPLA, hide out in thick forests.

The attacks are by mines set along the roads, or by sudden ambushes. But to add to Portuguese defence problems, a new front has opened near the border of Zambia, where Portugal claims MPLA terrorists are operating. Detachments have been rushed to the eastern region of Cazombo.

About 80 soldiers have died of various causes since the beginning of the year. This compares to last year's figure of 136.

Counterclaim

Portugal, which denies harboring any mercenaries in camps to attack the Congo, has made a counterclaim, that the Congo not only houses rebels, but allows Soviet and Chinese arms to enter the country.

Portugal also denies rebel claims that some of its soldiers were killed during a clash in the enclave of Cabinda. The Portuguese said the rebels fled back into the Congo, leaving behind explosives and weapons of Communist origin.

Defence in Africa costs Portugal 42 per cent of its national budget. A special credit of 52.6 million escudos ($17.4 million) was allotted to

Sitting Bull (1834-1890)

The great chief of the Sioux nation, who had annihilated Custer and his men 14 years before, was ordered arrested because the government feared he might lead a big Indian uprising. Surprised while asleep, the old man yelled: "I am not going!" and as he ordered his braves to fight, was felled by two bullets.

Stephen Foster (1826-1864)

The composer of "My Old Kentucky Home" and many other American classics died penniless in the charity wars at Bellevue Hospital after a life of intemperance. Though his last spoken words were not known, a scrap of paper was found in his pocket with the poignant thought: "Dear friends and gentle hearts..."

Compulsory Arbitration Or the Right to Strike

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

In the wake of the sweeping restrictions upon trade unions recently enacted by the Liberal government of Saskatchewan and of a number of disquieting if general references to the need to look at compulsory arbitration by the federal minister of labor, John Nicholson, it is helpful to read a scholarly paper on the subject of compulsory arbitration and the right to strike.

It was delivered by labor lawyer David Lewis, New Democratic MP for York South, to a recent conference on labor legislation, convened in Ottawa by the Canadian Labor Congress.

Fisher

1. In all jurisdictions in Canada there is already a form of compulsory arbitration operative during the life of a collective agreement as it must contain a provision for the settlement by arbitration of all differences arising out of the interpretation or application or alleged violation of the agreement. Strikes and lockouts are also prohibited during the period of negotiation and conciliation, which almost always extends beyond the expiry date of the agreement.

2. Before a strike is lawful certain statutory procedures must be completed. One of these is compulsory conciliation. It is not possible for the parties themselves to decide that negotiations are finished.

3. Unorganized workers under federal jurisdiction cannot ever strike lawfully, nor can such workers do so in Ontario and some other provinces. Before a unit of employees can strike lawfully there must be a bargaining agent which is entitled to and does enter negotiations.

4. No matter how serious and widespread a grievance may be during the life of an agreement the workers may not strike. This is true even if the matter in dispute is not covered by the agreement and therefore is not arbitrable.

5. This measure of compulsory arbitration is desirable. It tends to introduce some order and responsibility in the collective bargaining process. It outlaws the recognition strike which is no longer necessary because of the certification process. The result is the development of machinery and talents to seek a civilized relationship between labor and management.

6. Despite legislation and the official attitude of the labor movement, wildcat strikes do take place. It is regrettable that they happen. When free men in a free society feel keenly that they are victims of injustices, they rebel. The remedy is not more coercive legislation. The remedy is more justice and greater competence in dealing with difficulties.

7. Our laws impose general compulsory arbitration on certain classes of employees such as policemen, firefighters, civil servants, teachers and hospital employees. Thus the question is not really whether we should have any compulsory arbitration but how much.

8. The right to strike is an essential part of the right of association. The social consequences of business decisions may be unemployment, ghost towns, injustice, and they may have to a large part of the economy consequences more serious than those of even important strikes. Yet the business community and its supporters bristle with indignation at any suggestion of government intervention. In this social context labor is justified in opposing more curtailment of its right to decide the conditions of its contribution to the economy.

9. A strike is the workers' only effective weapon to achieve improvements when negotiations have failed. Strikes are undesirable and should be avoided if at all possible. They are not undertaken lightly.

10. Those of us who have had experience in negotiations know that without the possibility of a strike hanging over them, collective bargaining sessions would become a sham in most cases. It is not so much the strike itself, but the threat of a strike, which is the important weapon in collective bargaining. In theory it should be possible for civilized men to arrive at a just resolution of differences without a threat of economic war. At the present time it is a simple fact that without the right to strike the union would be helpless at the bargaining table.

11. It is vital that a reasonable and co-operative relationship be maintained between the parties whatever the strains. A solution imposed is always resented.

12. Evidence does not support the proposition that the imposition of compulsory arbitration necessarily reduces the number of man hours lost in strikes.

13. Having said all this we must recognize that there may be occasions when a strike must be brought to an end because it produces or threatens to produce effects which are generally disastrous. When we decide as a society to deprive a section of our citizens of rights enjoyed by others we have a moral duty to make sure that we do not also deprive such workers of the advances to which they are justly entitled.

14. Even in such cases it is not certain that compulsory arbitration is the most effective answer. Special machinery for research, a more effective labor department, more effective conciliators and mediators would be immeasurably more helpful than the axe of compulsory arbitration.

ESTHER

Young Jewish Maiden
First Beauty Queen

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It was the first time we'd been together since early summer — when the strawberries were ripe and we were arguing over the best way to eat them.

So it was inevitable that our host, who loves to start an after-dinner discussion, should be primed with some leading questions.

When we were comfortably seated around the fireplace with coffee cups in our hands he turned the talk toward the Miss Canada pageant and to Victoria's Susan Smythe, who is in Toronto making a bid for the title.

Then he settled back in his chair and slipped in his question. Did anyone know when the first beauty pageant took place and who was responsible for organizing it?

We should have been warned by the look on his face that he knew more than he was saying. But the influence of the log fire and the hot coffee lulled us into a sense of security. We rose to the bait.

"Hollywood!" said the one hunched comfortably in a cushioned chair. "No, dear!" said his wife from a low seat by the fireplace. "I'm sure it was Florida."

"The idea came from Europe," said a young woman seated on the floor.

"Try again!" urged our host. "You're away off the mark."

"Don't be so tantalizing," his wife commanded as she poured more coffee. "If you know the answer let us share it."

He waited until she had refilled his cup. Then he started to talk.

The ancients had such pageants long before Hollywood, he said. They were organized for quite different reasons but they achieved the same results.

One of the first of these contests was at the time when Queen Vashti was banished from the Persian Court because she refused the drunken king's command to make a public exhibition of her beauty.

The Chamber of Commerce, or whatever was its counterpart in that ancient time, staged a nation-wide beauty contest to select another queen for the royal harem.

Who won, we were eager to know.

"A young Jewish maiden named Esther," came the quiet reminder. "Among all the beautiful girls of the kingdom she was chosen as the fairest, crowned Miss Persia and exalted to the throne of the most powerful nation of the day."

No movie star passed from rags to riches as suddenly as did this beautiful, courageous young daughter of a captive people, our host insisted.

"Didn't she have an uncle who coached her for the part?" questioned the quiet one amongst us.

She did, came the answer.

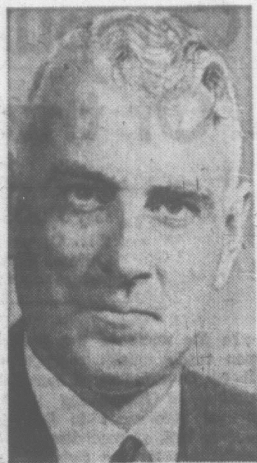

His name was Mordecai. It was on his advice that Esther carefully kept secret her racial identity and once named Queen, devoted herself to pleasing the "capricious nitwit" that was her royal husband.

Here someone remembered that there did come a time when Esther made confession of her identity. Jealous forces in the kingdom, bent on destroying the Jewish captives, drew up a plot that entrapped the King and the fate of her people was in her hands. She met the challenge.

That is why her story is remembered today, our host concluded, not because she was once a beauty queen.

As the fire burned low we slowly returned to the present and again to the Miss Canada pageant.

We raised our coffee cups and we drank a toast to Susan Smythe. And we wondered if she knew that win, lose or draw, she is following in the footsteps of a beautiful slave who won a royal throne in a contest hundreds of years ago.

Marina Owner
Asks Sidney
For Fire Boat

The owner of a marina advocates a fire boat to protect hundreds of pleasure craft in the Sidney area.

Steve Dickinson, owner of the Van Isle Marina, made the suggestion after a fire on Saturday destroyed a $6,000 cabin cruiser Cygnus II owned by V. E. Berry, 1524 Chawthorp.

Cause of the fire is not known.

No one was aboard Cygnus II when the fire started as Mr. Berry was visiting another boat.

The boat was towed out to sea by Mr. Dickinson's son Alan, and Mr. Berry in a 14-foot aluminum outboard boat after efforts were made to fight the blaze with hand extinguishers.

It passed within 15 feet of the marina's gas dock as it was being towed away.

Mr. Dickinson said the difficulty started when the firemen arrived. They needed a boat to reach the burning cruiser and "grabbed just what happened to be there — a 14-foot aluminum dinghy."

"It's hazardous for five firemen to fight a fire in a small boat with two five-gallon drums of foam and a heavy pump," he said. "Fortunately the sea was calm."

Hospital Staff Seeks
25 Per Cent Pay Hike

More than 4,000 non-medical workers at 30 B.C. hospitals are seeking a pay raise of 25 per cent or 40 cents an hour in a new one-year contract.

The Hospital Employees Union, Local 180, represents the employees including those at St. Joseph's Hospital and the Queen Alexandra Solarium in Victoria.

The current three-year contract expires at the end of the year and union business manager William Black said "we're not getting caught in a three-year one again."

He said the three-year term was "a bad piece of guessing. We've felt the whiplash of inflation and not been able to do anything about it."

The union has about 45 wage categories making it difficult to strike an average.

Mr. Black said the lowest $211 monthly for maids. Janitors got between $320 and $360 and orderlies $385.

Up-Island hospitals are not involved in pending talks because they have contracts with still a year to run.

Employees at the Royal Jubilee Hospital also are bargaining through their independent staff association. A spokesman declined to discuss figures.

OPPOSITION Leader Diefenbaker shakes hands with Maurice Fleming, of Shelburne, N.S., who was re-elected president of Nova Scotia Progressive Conservative Association. Looking on is Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia.

Thundering Cheers Greet Dief Leadership Pledge

By DON ANGUS
HALIFAX (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker flew back to Ottawa Sunday, confident that at least Nova Scotia Progressive Conservatives stand squarely behind him.

The former prime minister unsheathed his most eloquent oratory at the provincial PC association's annual meeting Saturday and evoked thundering cheers and applause when he pledged to stand firm in the leadership post.

He wound up an oblique attack on a party faction seeking reappraisal of his leadership with the vow: "I shall stand so long as it is necessary to ensure that this party will not return to the days of reaction."

He asked conventioners: "Do you want to go back to the good old days when we had four leaders in five elections and were trying to improve on 41 members in the House?"

Shouts of "no" came back from the floor of the hall.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was at the party convention Oct. 25,

1926, when Arthur Meighen "was driven out because he dared to lead rather than be led."

"They say let's go back to the good old days. What happened to the Goldwater Republicans in the United States . . . when they tried to drag the country back into the 19th century?"

The Nova Scotia association kept faith in their chief by unanimously approving a resolution expressing confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker, as well as in Premier Robert Stanfield, the province's 10 Conservative Commons members and members of the legislature.

Maurice Flemming of Shelburne was re-elected as association president over a candidate favoring national leadership reappraisal.

Mr. Flemming, who said he was intentionally avoiding the leadership issue because "surely we can foster growth in this party without resorting to political assassination," defeated Halifax broadcasting executive Finlay MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald had publicly come out in favor of the appeal by Dalton Camp, National PC Association president, for regular reassessment of the national leadership. He threw his support behind Mr. Flemming after the ballots were counted, prompting Premier Stanfield to comment:

"Both these candidates are pretty determined fellows, Mr. Diefenbaker. They share this quality with you."

They expressed concern over the lack of time and interest given to serious policy discussion. They also denounced the delegates for drinking too much and failing to express their true feelings on the convention floor.

SPACE PAIR TO GO UP WEDNESDAY

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Weathermen gave a go-ahead today to astronauts James Lovell and Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin for their date in space Wednesday.

While project Gemini's top officials reviewed all aspects of the four-day rendezvous and spacewalk finale, the astronauts practised stowing away all the flight gear they will be carrying into space. Later today, they planned a final practice session in a Gemini simulator.

A team of spaceflight weathermen reported that satisfactory weather conditions were expected at the launch site for Gemini 12's scheduled 3:55 p.m. EST blastoff and the launch of the Atlas-Agena target rocket 98 minutes earlier. Acceptable conditions also were forecast for the western Atlantic landing area.

Second U.S. Moon Probe Passes First Space Test

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Nine hours after an Atlas-Agena blasted it skyward from Cape Kennedy, Lunar Orbiter II passed a test its predecessor flunked, thanks to a bit of black paint.

Scientists, controlling it from Jet Propulsion Laboratory here, hope it will be able to carry out a schedule far more ambitious than that of Orbiter I—taking, developing and sending back to earth more than 200 pictures of 13 possible astronaut landing sites on the moon.

As Lunar Orbiter II sped at 5,200 miles an hour toward the moon, 250,000 miles away shortly after 3 a.m. today, it responded to scientists' orders, rotated and locked on the star Canopus as a navigation guide, spokesmen said.

The 850-pound vehicle was launched at 6:21 p.m. EST Sunday from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Sighting devices on Lunar Orbiter I never found Canopus, apparently balked by glare from the craft's antenna framework. Lunar Orbiter II has a painted framework.

Plans call for Orbiter—which with its solar energy panels extended looks like a giant four-leaf clover — to approach the moon Thursday and begin a month of picture-taking. It will orbit at between 125 and 1,150 miles above the moon.

Orbiter I took the first American pictures of the back side of the moon.

FULL TORONTO TRADING

MARKET SUMMARIES

Week Starts Quietly

The week's trading got off to a slow start today and prices were little changed from Friday's close in most sections in Vancouver, Toronto and New York.

Wall Street was particularly quiet in the face of Tuesday's closure for the United States elections. The U.S. markets will re-open Wednesday.

AT TORONTO, Inco paced the industrial list lower, falling 1 1/2 to 83 1/2 in profit-taking. The stock had jumped 3 1/2 on Friday.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was mixed and volume light in pre-market activity.

In the industrial, B.C. Tel was up .37 to $39.50 and Industrial Acceptance added .75 to $21.75.

Highmont was the big mines trader, adding .20 to a new high for the year of $15. It went as high as $14.94.

Brenda added .10 to $3.15 and Cascade Moly was up .07 to $13.35. Pine Point was up .50 to $36 and Torwest gained .09 to .48.

On the down side were Cariboo Bell, off .10 to $2.05, and Homestake, down .05 to .35. Silver Trail lost .05 to a new low of .80. Western Mines was off .05 to $4.45.

AT NEW YORK, the market moved up slightly in early trading but slipped back as the session wore on.

With the market closed Tuesday, U.S. Congressional election day, investors showed little enthusiasm for buying.

Airports, electronics, airlines and drugs advanced. Steels and oils declined and most other groups were mixed.

Among Canadian issues, Alcan was up 1/4, Canadian Pacific 1/4, Distillers Seagrams and Hudson Bay mining 1/4.

Dome Mines was down 1/4, International Nickel 1/4, Massey Goddard 1/4.

AT MONTREAL, after showing weakness in the morning stocks gained enough strength to be narrowly mixed today. Trading was light. Texaco Canada advanced 1/4 points at 65, increasing last week's advance of 3/4 points. Other winners included Trans-Mountain Pipe Line and Steinberg's A, each ahead 1/4 at 17 1/2 and 18 1/2. Denison Mines was up 1/4 at 63.

Massey-Ferguson lost 1/4 at 22 and Weston B 1/4 at 17 1/2. Dominion Textile, Inco, Noranda and others were mixed.

The lowest number of strikes was eight in both February and March and the highest was 13 in January.

The figures on the number of workers involved show how few people actually go on strike.

The lowest monthly figure for this year was February - 345. The highest was 15,708 in June - nearly all of it accounted for by the one IWA strike.

In the first seven months of this year, strikers numbered fewer than 1,000 in B.C. in all but three months.

The total work force in the same period was 760,000 and 750,000. In comparison with other provinces, B.C. ranked anywhere from first to eighth in numbers involved in strikes. The average was fourth of the 10 provinces.

Full details of the B.C. picture will not be available until early next year when the provincial labor department publishes its annual report.

The department does not issue monthly figures to enable a comparison between this year and last.

But federal figures show strikes and lockouts are increasing across the country this year.

The time loss last year, for example, was 0.17 of the total time worked.

This percentage has been exceeded in every month but one this year although still remaining a fraction of one per cent.

In July, for example, there were 108 strikes or lockouts involving 83,195 workers with a time loss of 812,720 man days or 0.65 per cent of total working time.

In July of last year, there were 99 strikes or lockouts involving 133,691 workers with a time loss of 326,070 man hours or 0.26 per cent of total working time.

International Nickel added 5 points and Canadian Pacific was also wanted although at 103 1/2, the price was below the best.

Other Canadian issues were better, although Algonia was soft spot. Canadian banks improved.

Russ Sees U.S. Tied To China

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today accused Communist China and the United States of hushing up alleged large-scale trade with one another.

Izvestia, the newspaper of the government, said the trade is carried on through Hong Kong and Macao and exceeds U.S. trade with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

It said American trade with Hong Kong last year amounted to $534,000,000. It put U.S. trade with the East bloc at only $278,000,000.

The government newspaper said Hong Kong and Macao are trade gates for China.

It said China wanted secrecy about trade with the U.S. to avoid appearing illogical. It cited the Chinese accusation that Soviet trade with the U.S. shows the two countries engage in collusion in international affairs.

Izvestia said Washington permits the trade with China because it has taken a more favorable attitude toward Peking since it adopted an anti-Soviet line.

FISHERMEN WALK OUT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A strike by 650 British Columbia herring fishermen started today and threatens to idle about 1,000 shore workers in 10 reduction plants.

The fishermen, who approved the strike Saturday against the advice of United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, want the price paid for a ton of herring raised to $20.48 from $17.40.

The B.C. Fisheries Association, which represents six companies, said the market price of herring meal and oil is down 10 per cent. The association wants the present $17.40 price maintained.

Ken Campbell, association secretary-manager, said the strike will mean almost immediate closure of the herring reduction plants.

High Prices Blamed On Profits

KINGSTON (CP)—Labor is blamed for the rising cost of living but statistics show greedy profiteering by corporations is the real cause, T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Sunday.

Speaking to a crowd of about 1,000 at public meeting sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor, Mr. Douglas charged governments and big business with leading people to believe wage increases are pushing up prices.

"Some people, even members of the Cabinet, have been telling people that the rise in the cost of living is due to increased wages."

He said recent Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures—based on 1961 figures as 100—show productivity in Canada increased to 138.6, wages increased to 155.3 while profits were increased to 152.0, or 16 per cent above productivity.

"That's what's putting up the cost of living," Mr. Douglas said.

He also criticized Finance Minister Sharp's methods of curbing inflation. He said the methods, which include holding of scholarships and postponing medical insurance, hit at the fundamentals of the economy.

He said postponing medical insurance was "the greatest hoax ever perpetrated on the people of Canada."

Aussie Land Sale Offer Scored

By VINCENT MATTHEWS
MELBOURNE (CP)—Arthur Calwell, leader of Australia's Labor party Opposition, waved a Canadian newspaper advertisement in Parliament and expressed a sense of outrage.

The advertisement appeared in the Winnipeg Free Press and it urged Canadians to buy land in Australia for less than $10 an acre.

Thomson Eyes TV Deals In Lebanon

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson, Canadian-born publishing magnate, left London for Beirut during the weekend to discuss development of television services in Lebanon.

Thomson, whose world-wide business interests include television, radio, newspapers, books and travel, was accompanied by Sir Timothy Bligh, his director of overseas development.

The Thomson Organization Ltd., which groups the peer's British and some overseas interests, reports a slight increase in profit for the first half of this year over the same period of 1965.

Net profit after tax was estimated in a report today at $1,781,000 ($5,373,000), an increase of $29,000 ($87,000) over the first half of 1965. The interim dividend declared—10 per cent on a five-shilling (75-cent) share—is the same as the interim last year. The dividend is equal to 2.74 per cent on the current market value of Thomson ordinary shares, which stand at 18 shillings three pence ($2.74).

The group statement says government economic restrictions have hit business, but if trade holds at the first-half rate final gross earnings should match the 1965 level, which reached $21,000,000. Gross earnings for the first half of this year were $11,349,000.

Silver Sale Deadline Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. commerce department today fixed Nov. 18 as the deadline for receipt of applications for the 24,500,000 pounds of surplus nickel to be sold from the national stockpile, most of which comes from Canada.

The metal will be offered for sale on a monthly basis, the department said, 90 per cent of it for defence needs and the rest to alleviate hardship and help small business. Sale was authorized by Congress.

Nickel from the stockpile must be used domestically. It cannot be exported either in raw form or as a finished product.

Addressed to "investors, brokers and ranchers," the advertisement, which appeared in numerous Canadian and United States newspapers, offered a minimum of 1,000 acres of "prime land for farming, grazing—or holding for profit." It was inserted by a Beverly Hills, Calif., firm.

Calwell attacked the government for allowing overseas interests to take control of more and more of Australia's natural assets.

Canadian interest in undeveloped Australian land has been minute compared with that of Americans. In recent months, 10,000,000 acres of pastoral country in Cape York, the extreme northerly tip of the continent, have come under the control of American syndicates headed by millionaire oil men, ranchers estimated to own or control 20,000,000 acres in Queensland and 15,000,000 acres in the Northern Territory.

U.S. interest has developed since the early 1960s when International Packers of Chicago, in association with King Ranch of Texas, acquired several big cattle stations. Much of this American investment has been diverted from South America. Australia is considered more stable politically.

U.S. businessmen also believe that, in a beef-short world, Australia's vast pastoral areas have enormous potential.

There is land available in the North on 30- and 50-year leases at low rents.

There also is a feeling among emigrating Americans that Australia offers a new frontier. One wealthy Arizona cattleman who moved to Australia said: "I want to get back to the frontier country. They're closing in on me in America."

But while there is much political criticism and some damage to national pride, the American invasion of Australia's neglected North has led to a pastoral revolution.

Scientists predict five- to ten-fold increases in the cattle-carrying capacity of the land with the introduction of new experience and large capital resources for water boring, fencing and pasture improvement have given needed impetus to northern development.

INCREASE PRODUCTION

In the Northern Territory in the last fiscal year, cattle production was worth nearly $15,000,000, about $5,000,000 more than the previous year.

One of Australia's leading cattlemen, Sir William Gunn, persuaded many Americans to take up properties in the North—and he's proud of it. Americans who bought Cape York properties did more development work in six months than had been done in the previous 100 years, Sir William said. "Develop the North" is a recurring political cry in Australia. But comparatively little is done because of the lack of capital within the country and the fact Australian investors prefer safer and quicker returns on their money from ventures in the highly developed southeast.

Still, the Labor party constantly presses the Liberal-Country party coalition government to use public money to open up the North. And it criticizes the government for allowing foreigners to move in where Australians hesitate to tread. The criticism is usually based on the takeover of manufacturing concerns and mineral fields.

Exchange's Top Critic Takes Over as Chief

NEW YORK (AP)—Ralph Southey Saul, 44, son of a Brooklyn machinist, U.S. Navy veteran, former foreign service officer, Yale law graduate and former critic of securities trading, began another job today—president of the American Stock Exchange.

"I would have been amazed if somebody told me a year ago that I would be in this job," he said in a recent interview.

In 1961 Saul was a Securities and Exchange Commission lawyer with a reputation for having lambasted the American Stock Exchange. Now he is its head, so there is reason for surprise.

Saul helped write a report that shook the old exchange management. It accused some traders of "manipulation and prolonged abuses." Some old-timers were embittered. Some went to jail.

Soon after, Edward T. McCormick resigned as president. He was replaced by Edwin Etherington, who corrected the abuses and established cooperation with the SEC. A new image of responsibility developed.

Saul continued with the SEC until last year when he became a vice-president of Investors Diversified Services, the largest U.S. mutual fund management firm.

Shortly after, Etherington resigned to become president of Wesleyan University. The exchange's directors—secure in their new image, mindful of how they got it and wanting to maintain it—turned to Saul.

Saul does not feel the SEC and the exchange are adversaries now, nor does he see any danger of friendship compromising the role of either.

His initial salary is $80,000 a year, the same as was paid Etherington when he began. Etherington went to $100,000 after 21 months.

Air Boom Forecast

VANCOUVER — Air passenger traffic will go up four to five times on some of the world's intercontinental routes in the next 10 years and air cargo will increase eight times, a Boeing Company executive predicted here today.

Robin K. Little, manager of the product economics and market research section for Boeing's Commercial Airplane Division sales department, presented his company's views of commercial aviation's future to the Air Transport Association of Canada.

He said the over-all level of Free World passenger travel in 1975 will be triple what it was last year and Boeing forecasts a ten-fold increase by 1990.

"With the prospect of more and more people and goods moving more and more miles by air, it becomes as screaming fact that increased airlift capacity will be required," Little said.

This increased capacity will be realized not only by the size of the large jetliners now in production and on the drawing boards but by their high productivity, he said.

Little described the 747 super-jet which is about to go into production at Boeing's new Everett plant, and the SST design the company has submitted in competition with Lockheed. He told of their new interiors and capabilities.

PARIS TO AID TRADING

PARIS (Reuters)—The French government is reported considering a plan to turn Paris into a world financial capital rivaling New York and London.

Informed sources said Saturday the plan was drawn up by French Finance Minister Michel Debre to simplify the country's complicated foreign exchange control regulations and permit greater movements of capital in and out of France.

Freer exchange would be expected to stimulate trade, revive the lethargic Paris Stock Exchange and increase the stature of Paris as an international money market, financial observers said.

'Extra' Power Brings Leafs Two Big Ties

Victoria Maple Leafs have finally injected a bit of power into their power-play and the new punch enabled them to avoid a pair of weekend Western Hockey League defeats and match one of their accomplishments of last season.

Leafs, who played to only four ties last season as they finished in second place and then went on to win the playoff championship, have already battled to four overtime draws after nine games of the current campaign.

They added a pair of stalemates over the weekend, struggling to a 3-3 deadlock with Oakland Seals Saturday night at Memorial Arena and holding the league-leading Buckaroos to a 1-1 tie Sunday night at Portland.

In both games, power-play goals saved the Leafs, who had only three in seven previous games.

Veteran Lou Jankowski tapped in a rebound with Oakland's Al Langlois just stepping out of the penalty box to give the Leafs a 3-1 lead in the second period. The goal was a vital one.

The tally proved to be a point-saver when the Seals hustled back with a pair of third-period tallies to earn the deadlock.

Andy Heberton and Milan Marcetta also counted for Victoria, and Charlie Burns, Gerry Odrowski and Ray Cyr counted for Oakland.

At Portland, Len Lunde sent the Buckaroos in front early in the third period and the Leafs pulled even when defenceman Fred Hucul, playing perhaps his best game of the season, took advantage of a Portland penalty to beat Buckaroo goalie Rick Charron with a blazing long shot.

Seals did better at Seattle Sunday night, as Ron Harris scored in a rebound to send the Totems down to a 2-1 defeat. Stan Gilbertson had opened the scoring for Oakland and Larry Lund tied it up for Seattle to force the extra session.

Sandy Hucul Missed Sunday Game

In Saturday games, the Buckaroos nipped Vancouver Canucks 3-2 at Portland and Los Angeles Blades got their first win on home ice by bombing San Diego Gulls 6-1.

The Leafs, who leave Tuesday for four games in California, were without the services of defenceman Sandy Hucul in Sunday's tussle. Hucul blocked a shot with his right foot Saturday and stayed at home Sunday for examination for a possible broken bone.

Despite Sandy's absence, the Leafs came up with one of their better defensive efforts in a close-checking, hard-kating game, and they got another steady performance from rookie goalie Al Smith.

One of Sunday's highlights was one of the few major penalties Heberton has received in his long career. After passing the puck out from a corner, Andy was checked heavily by rookie Portland defenceman Tracy Pratt and struck across the face.

Heberton pushed back and the stick suddenly erupted into a brief but violent session of fist-swinging before both were sent off with major sentences.

Heberton was also a central

With the score deadlocked late in the third period, Andy drilled a shot from the right side that goalie Jack McCartan trapped briefly between an arm and his body.

Referee Lloyd Gilmour, believing McCartan had caught the puck, blew his whistle just before McCartan lost control and the puck dropped across the line for what the Leafs and the spectators believed should have been the winning goal.

Blame the Color For Dull Game On Your TV Set

TORONTO (CP)—Television in color created difficulties for the leading characters in Saturday night's National Hockey League game.

"The new lights for color television has resulted in ice chips all over the playing surface, making it almost impossible to control the puck," said defenceman Bobby Baum of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs defeated New York Rangers 3-1 in what was perhaps one of the duller NHL games on record.

In the first period both teams seemed to fall all over themselves, losing the puck on rushes and failing to complete simple passes.

"That puck was bouncing around like an Indian rubber ball out there," Baum said. "We got used to it some in the first two periods, but the outcome of most passes was unpredictable."

"Apparently they're still working on the light system, so it will probably be cleared up before long."

Bob Nevin, who scored the Rangers' only goal on the first penalty shot since the 1964-65

OAK BAY CLUB ...

Farmers, Trojans Final Foes

It will be Farmer Construction and Renfrew Trojans in the British Columbia juvenile football championship Friday at Macdonald Park.

Trojans won the Mainland crown a week earlier and the Oak Bay club did the expected Sunday at Camarvon Park, romping to a 42-8 triumph over Cowichan Timbermen to wrap up the Vancouver Island title.

Farmers were never in any danger. They took the opening game of the two-game total-points final 24-0 at Duncan the previous weekend and they rolled to a 22-0 lead early in the second quarter Sunday to run their series lead to 46 points.

Too strong on defence and packing too many guns on attack, they piled up a total of 437 yards rushing and passing, while the game Timbermen managed 232 yards.

Jim Forward was the big gun for Oak Bay, going over the Cowichan line for three touchdowns. Husky Terry Ryan collected only one touchdown but it was a dandy effort that covered 95 yards on a pass-and-run play.

Mark Mauer and Gary Johnstone also scored touchdowns for Farmers. Jim Lemon added a field goal and two converts and end Cam Crofton caught a conversion pass for the final point to make Oak Bay's two-game margin 66-8.

Cowichan points came on a touchdown by Edgson, plus a convert and single by Garside.

Alouettes Carry Play But Cats Score Points

HAMILTON (CP)—Don Sutherin, the all-time top scorer for the Tiger-Cats, roared out of the defensive backfield Sunday to lead Hamilton to a 24-14 victory over Montreal Alouettes and a place in the Eastern Football Conference final.

Hamilton now goes against Ottawa Rough Riders here Sunday in the first encounter in their two-game, total-point series to decide the team to meet the Western champions in the Grey Cup game in Vancouver Nov. 26.

It was a game filled with frustration for Montreal, which out-rushed and out-passed the defending Grey Cup champions, but only twice penetrated inside the Hamilton 38-yard line.

Tiger-Cats won the game with their devastating defence.

Montreal rolled up 21 first downs while holding the Tiger-Cats to eight. Hamilton managed only one first down in the entire second half.

But the Alouettes couldn't contain Sutherin, the six-foot, 200-pound defensive halfback from Ohio State, who came to Hamilton seven years ago.

Sunday he hammered out 11 points on field goals of 41, 31 and 34 yards and kicked two converts. Willie Bethea scored a touchdown set up by a Sutherin interception and Ted Page carried his own interception for the only other Hamilton touchdown.

Quarterback Joe Zuger kicked an 82-yard single with 64 seconds left in the game.

Montreal, held scoreless until the fourth quarter, came through with touchdowns by Don Lisbon and J. W. Lockett, both on line plunges from close in. Peter Kempf converted both.

George Bork, Montreal's 24-year-old quarterback, went all the way while veteran Bernie Faloney—once a Tiger-Cat star—rode the bench. At one point, with Montreal down 20-0, fans chanted in derision, "We want Faloney."

The statistics—showing Montreal ahead 309 yards to 177—surprised the 20,342 fans. The A's hit for 168 passing and 141 along the ground to 95 for 82 for the Tiacs.

Coach Darrell Mudra of Montreal blamed the loss on "bad errors," pointing to the interceptions and two fumbles which Tiacs recovered.

"Outside of that, things were pretty even."

Experience Spelled the Difference

Ploen went back to pass, nipped held on to the ball until the final gun.

"Ploen did a tremendous job in executing the short pass," lamented Armstrong, who had squeezed the Eskimos into the playoffs for the first time since 1961.

Farrell Funston, who announced his intention to retire after eight seasons as a Winnipeg end, collapsed another Ploen throw for a touchdown in the second quarter as the Bombers held 1-0, 8-1 and 9-1 quarter leads.

Uimer contributed a single, Norm Winton two converts and a single.

Bad Grant, Winnipeg coach and general manager, said quarterback experience spelled the difference.

"It took us a long time to get through their tough defence. They never seemed to give up—they just kept coming," he said.

Ploen completed 15 of 20 pass attempts for 151 yards. Rosen caught six for 71 yards.

In contrast, Edmonton's Randy Kerbow completed only four of 17 attempts for 48 yards. Coffey, who kicked a convert and a single for the Eskimos' other points, caught two for 29 yards.

Thomas, Edmonton's only remaining ground threat after Trent Walters suffered a concussion in the third quarter, hit for 49 of the Eskimos' 109 yards on the ground. Edmonton had nine first downs.

Penalties hurt the stubborn Eskimos, costing them 91 yards for seven infractions. An illegal use of hands call helped shatter their only other threatening march in the first quarter.

Timmy a Terror As Cowboys Fall

Associated Press
Philadelphia's Timmy Brown returned kickoffs 93 and 90 yards for touchdowns Sunday, setting a National Football League record and sparking the heavily-favored Dallas Cowboys.

Aaron Martin ran back a Dallas punt 67 yards for another touchdown and Sam Baker kicked a 31-yard field goal in the first half although the Eagles netted only six yards and one first down on offence.

Brown became the first player in NFL history to score twice in a game on kickoff runbacks. Minnesota Vikings, meanwhile, triggered by Fran Tarkenton's clutch passing, stunned Green Bay Packers 20-17, Pittsburgh Steelers defeated Cleveland Browns 16-6, St. Louis Cardinals downed New York Giants 20-17, stretching their Eastern Division lead over Dallas to 1½ games, and Baltimore Colts downed Washington Redskins 37-19.

Elsewhere, San Francisco 49ers trimmed Los Angeles Rams 21-13 and Detroit Lions played Chicago Bears to a 10-10 standoff.

The Eagles spotted Dallas an early touchdown, tied the score on Brown's 93-yard burst, then fell behind 17-7 before Brown struck again. Martin's touchdown sent them ahead to stay less than a minute later.

Tarkenton completed 16 of 26 passes for 172 yards. His 33-yard third-down strike to Jim Phillips in the fourth quarter set up Bill Brown's one-yard dive for the winning touchdown.

Brown also scored the other Viking touchdown on a one-yard run and Fred Cox booted a pair of field goals.

In the American League Sunday, Buffalo Bills dumped fledgling Miami Dolphins 29-0 to grab the Eastern Division lead.

Meanwhile, lowly Denver Broncos overcame Boston Patriots 17-10 to rob the Patriots of a tie for the eastern lead. Boston and New York Jets, idle Sunday, how share second place with 4-31 records.

ANOTHER SHUTOUT

Sharp Defence Aids O'Keefe's

VANCOUVER—Tottering briefly on the brink of an upset defeat, Victoria O'Keefe's were rescued by their remarkable defensive ability at Callister Park, Sunday, and ran their unbeaten string in the Pacific Coast Soccer League to seven games.

Almost overrun by last-place St. Andrews in the middle portion of the first half, the Victorians battled back to squeeze out a 1-0 victory and move within two points of front-running North Shore Luckies.

Playing before only 453 fans, O'Keefe's opened with a great burst and missed several fine chances. In the first few minutes, then the hard-rushing Scots took over and dominated play for 20 minutes.

They buzzed around the Victoria goal and it took some desperate work by a defence anchored by Bill Hamilton and some alert ball-hawking by goalie Barry Sadler to keep St. Andrews from grabbing the lead.

FIFTH SHUTOUT

The tall Sadler, who has yielded only two goals and scored five shutouts this season, spent time ranging far out of his net to snatch the ball away from the charging Scots.

O'Keefe's gradually settled down and got the goal they needed in the 37th minute when Peter Brett lofted the ball toward the St. Andrews goal.

Inside-forward Ike McKay slashed in to get control of the ball near the net and passed back for a scoring shot by winger Dunc McCaig.

Working the ball well in mid-field, O'Keefe's had a slight edge in play the rest of the way but were never sure of their fourth win until the final whistle.

FIREMEN BLANKED

Luckies also took the shutout route Saturday when they protected their lead with a 3-0 triumph over Vancouver Firefighters. It was North Shore's third straight shutout in a six-game winning streak.

Fun Just Starting For Our Steelers!

By HAL MALONE

A young couple strolled into Macdonald Park late Saturday afternoon to see the remnants of the contest of skill and science between Edmonds Warriors and Victoria Steelers.

They squeezed into the end of a row and the young man turned to his neighbor and asked: "How's the score?"

He was told, "40-to-8."

The young man, smiling slightly, turned to his companion. "Good thing," he said, "we couldn't make it on time."

Before he could get off a second leer, his neighbor tapped him on the shoulder and smiling, added: "For the Steelers."

The young man's reaction was instant.

"Migawd! he exclaimed.

If he was surprised and-or flattened, consider how Edmonds Warriors felt.

Only three weeks ago they massaged Steelers 30-14 in Edmonds. They had since added 205-pound, six-six tackle Dick Hard and were in no mood for fun.

They were in no mood for games either. That was no problem. They never were in this Pacific Football League game.

By the time the long afternoon shadows had fallen, Steelers, everybody's patsy earlier in the season, had stolen Warriors' pride, poise and punch. Steelers didn't whip the Warriors, they defrocked them, 40-16.

The turning point of the match, witnessed by 1,130 Asian-flu-be-dammed customers, came early.

Steelers took the kickoff, were less than a yard shy of a first down on three running plays.

Any archaic quarterback knows that you must kick on fourth inside your 20. Anybody but Ohler, the thinking man's quarterback.

He carried for five yards and a first down. Warriors stopped the second sequence but professor Ohler's point had been established. The Steelers knew right then that they were in control. They had stuck out their tongue at the Edmonds' defense; they were laughing.

Asked later what had made him try so dangerous a play, Ohler casually commented: "Oh, with Keller and (Bob) Boyd in there, I wasn't the least bit worried."

He might not have been but general manager Pat Frumento was. As he said later: "I thought Pete had flipped."

That was to come later. Golden Arm Ohler flipped 25 passes (he was good on 19 for 304 yards) and three touchdowns. Jerry James, the Alp that looks like a man, scored two touchdowns. His first and the game's best was a 94-yard ramble in collaboration with Ohler.

Ron Morris embraced another Ohler aerial for a 22-yard major as the three former Lions gave Edmonds king-size fits.

Showing their diversification, Steelers rattled across the Edmonds' goal-line three times on the ground. Fittingly the Lincoln Express did the honors twice. Tiny but elusive Jim Parnell made it once. Art Shannon kicked four converts.

Edmonds scored late in the second quarter on a Jeff Cushman to Ted Utschinski pass, added another on Barry Carter's last quarter five-yard drive when Ohler cleared the Steeler's bench.

Rigor mortis beckons the PFL schedule. Each team has only one game to play. But for the Steelers it's all just beginning.

JBAA Pads Lead

Cowichan tasted revenge Sunday and moved into a tie for second place with University of Victoria Vikings in the First Division of the Victoria Rugby Union.

Defeated 14-9 by Vikings earlier this season, Cowichan avenged the loss by pounding out a 31-8 victory over the students at the Uvic campus.

Out in front of the first division pack with a comfortable six-point lead are the James Bay Athletic Association Oarsmen, who whipped Oak Bay Wanderers 29-5 Saturday at Windsor Park for their fifth straight triumph.

Murray Halkett and Rod Fiddick, each with two tries, Norm Dixon (four converts and a penalty goal), Mike Eckardt and Dave Hutchings, each with one try, scored for JBAA. Dave Smirle scored a try and Don Burgess boted a convert for Oak Bay.

OAK BAY UPSET

Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, ramblod to an upset in the second division Saturday, nipping first-place Oak Bay 15-13 at the Colville Road pitch.

In Sunday's second division tussle, Gary Hogarth scored 12 points and Paul Bregg collected six to lead JBAA to a 24-0 win over Naval Technical School.

In midget division clashes, JBAA downed Rainbow Cadets 12-3, Oak Bay defeated Cowichan 13-3 and QOR blasted Fifth Battery 28-11.

Goalie Stars As Colquitz Takes Crown

Spectacular goaltending by Graham Lee helped Colquitz to the Vancouver Island junior high school soccer championship Saturday.

Colquitz won the title by defeating John Barsley Junior High of Nanaimo 2-0 in the final of the eight-team playoff.

Lee made several fine saves as Nanaimo dominated play in the scoreless first half. His mates gained the upper hand after the intermission and carved out the victory as Bruce Twamley scored on a penalty kick and Mark Robb added an insurance tally.

Another Victoria team, Central Junior, lost a 1-0 overtime match against John Barsley in the semi-final round.

Two teams from both Nanaimo and Victoria and clubs from Alberni, Lake Cowichan, Comox and Cumberland competed for the title.

Island Bowlers Right Up Front In Tenpin Event

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Players from Nanaimo dominated the opening events in the men's eighth annual tenpin provincial championships that started here during the week-end.

Bill MacFarlane of Nanaimo took the lead in the all-events race, a three-game total, with 1,975 points. MacFarlane and partner Fred Fulla were third in the doubles event with 1,313 points, behind William and Wayne Wong, two brothers from Vancouver with 1,321, and R. Kirby and D. Barr of Victoria with 1,320.

In the team contest, Vic's Foodliner squad from Nanaimo was leading with 3,046. Second was Vancouver St. Regis with a 2,996.

Chinooks Can't Locate System for Close Ones

"Because the places she throws her ball, your automation couldn't possibly return it, that's why!"

Victoria Chinooks can't find their former formula for winning the close ones and today they are struggling for survival in the Inter-City Junior Basketball League.

In four trips to the post in the current season, Chinooks have collected 229 points and yielded only 208 but all they have to show for their exciting efforts in one victory.

They hammered winless Killarney 66-36 in their trip to the winner's circle and they suffered defeats by margins of four, three and two points.

The two-pointers arrived Saturday night at Central Junior High School when Simon Fraser University Clansmen squeezed out a 54-52 win on Tim MacDonald's last-second field goal.

It was a heartbreaking finish for coach Moe Turner's Chinooks, who several times flashed impressive teamwork but could never quite dominate play against the hard-charging Clansmen.

Although the teams often exchanged the lead, things looked bright for the Chinooks after they went ahead by seven points early in the second half.

However, Simon Fraser seemed to gain strength in the closing stages and was leading by three points with 40 seconds remaining.

Chinook sniper Rod Fields was fouled as he dropped a two-pointer and then added the foul shot to knot the score at 52-52.

Clansmen called time out and then controlled the ball until MacDonald fired the shot that swished the cords just as the game-ending horn sounded.

Bob Hearn, who potted seven straight foul shots in the second half, paced the Simon Fraser scoring parade with 12 points.

Fields was the top Chinook with 18 points and Ross Swanson added 11.

Olympians Splash To League Crown

PUYALUP, Wash. — Victoria Amateur Swimming Club Olympians won 26 of 40 events in a three-team meet here Saturday and captured the Evergreen Swimming League championship.

Only Canadian team in the league, Olympians finished their season with five straight victories as they defeated Port Angeles SC 212-125 and topped Puyallup SC 246-91 during the meet, in which each club competed separately against the other two.

Port Angeles, which had started the day tied with Victoria, defeated Puyallup to finish in second place with four wins and one loss.

Washington Athletic Club was third, Puyallup and Gold-Creek (Seattle) tied for fourth and Aqua Dive SC (Seattle) was sixth.

THREE RECORDS

Olympians set three league records Saturday. The boys' 100-and-under freestyle relay mark was bested by Jack Bell, J. Ranson, Mike Long and Darrell Long; the girls' 15-17 medley relay record was cracked by Arlene Henderson, Delma Corby, Mary-Pat Pumfrey and Lorrie Cosby, and Tim Mota snapped the boys' 11-12 100 yards backstroke mark with a clocking of 1:13.

Mots and Brenda Meredith each finished with three individual victories.

Miss Henderson and Louise Cosby were double winners for coach Trevor Cole's Olympians.

to other broad-leaved evergreens, and the area is likely also to be shielded in some way from the hot sun of a summer's afternoon.

If roses are failing to do well in the same bed, take them out this month and give them a sunnier position and a firmer soil.

Other deciduous flowering shrubs such as philadelphus (Mock-orange), the Pee-gee hydrangeas, forsythia, the spiraeas, weigelas and deutzias all flower most profusely when grown in sunny, open borders in a clay loam.

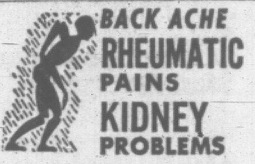

Most of the viburnums, on the other hand, prefer a little shade and a moisture retentive soil even if it is somewhat acid with peat. Viburnum bodnantense, V. fragrans, V. burkwoodi — all winter flowering here and intensely fragrant — can be put into the same beds with rhododendrons and the several kinds of pieris (Lily-of-the-Valley bush).

Azaleas, although members of the rhododendron genus, generally are more tolerant of hot sun though liking the same acid peaty soil at their feet.

Most of these peaty soil plants will be found to have shallow, fibrous root systems and therefore are not too difficult to move around in the garden.

When replanting, or putting in new plants, of this general group be careful that the root balls are not set too deeply.

Look for the soil mark on the stem, and re-set at exactly the same depth.

BRAIN DRAIN EXPLAINED

Lower Pay Only One Reason for Fleeing

TORONTO (CP) — Sanctification of seniority and the old school tie are among factors chasing young Canadian-trained medical scientists to the United States, it was uncovered in a survey among those who have left.

Results of the study were published in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal. It was conducted by Charlotte de Hesse and D. G. Fish of the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges, Ottawa, who interviewed 98 Canadian-trained scientists in the U.S.

As summarized by the Journal, they attributed Canada's failure to attract scientists and retain its own graduates to:

1. Poor recruiting methods and a failure to keep in touch with Canadian scientists in American graduate and post-graduate training positions.
2. Scarcity of research funds.
3. Lack of opportunity due to the small number of medical schools.
4. The "negative conservatism" of Canadian academic circles created by academic inbreeding, anti-Semitism, Anglophilia and tight control of research, research funds and appointments by an old-guard establishment.

Said the researchers: "They viewed the establishment as controlling both university appointments and research funding. In their eyes this prohibits scientific innovation and gives a deadening medical schools."

Many said a strong anti-Semitic bias existed and one said: "Canada has a bad case of Anglophilia. ... If it's English, it's better."

Mr. Crook said this is one reason why China sees no reason to seek a negotiated settlement of the conflict. He added, "America is seeking negotiations because she wants to pull out of a tricky situation without loss of prestige."

Mr. Crook said China regards America as an aggressor in Viet Nam. He said China will insist that "the aggressors should get out" before talks on peace begin.

AVOID DUPLICATION, IT PAYS TO CHECK!

The Greater Victoria Centennial Society has reminded all organizations intending to stage public events before the end of 1967 to check now with its office in Centennial Square.

By doing so the overlapping of important events can be avoided.

For example, one prominent theatrical group did not check and has arranged for its important annual production to take place at the same time as the Canadian Military Tattoo opens Centennial Stadium.

A large calendar is hanging on the wall of the Centennial office and is available to all organizers of projects or sports and entertainment events.

DOCTOR WARNS MOTHERS

Vitamin D May Injure Baby

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Babies' hearts can be severely damaged if their mothers take too much vitamin D during pregnancy, a West German physician warns.

One effect is a narrowing of the aorta, the great vessel bringing blood from the heart, just above the aortic valve, said Dr. Alois J. Beuren of the University of Göttingen. This obstructs the blood flow through the body.

He described 58 cases of such heart damage to the fifth world congress of cardiology.

Dr. Beuren said 26 of the children with heart injury, known as supravalvular aortic stenosis, also had mental retardation and an elfin appearance of face.

Their mothers, in some cases, had received two single doses of 200,000 units of vitamin D "as is recommended in Germany at the sixth and ninth months of pregnancy."

DEVELOPED EARLY

In five girls, breast development had begun at age eight because vitamin D has an effect of increasing the secretion of estrogen, the female sex hormone, Beuren said.

Thirty-two children had normal mental ability and normal facial appearance and their mothers had received the same dosages of vitamin D.

Gina Guilty of Obscenity But Term, Fine Suspended

VITERBO, Italy (AP) — A criminal court convicted actress Gina Lollobrigida and French actor Jean Sorel Saturday of obscenity charges for their roles in the controversial movie Le Bambole (the Dolls).

Convicted with them were director Mauro Bolognini and Gianni Hecht Lucari, producer of the movie. The three judges found all four guilty of an obscenity charge and pronounced sentences of two months in jail and fines of 40,000 lire ($68.50) on each. The sentences and fines were suspended.

Actress Virginia Lisi, actor Mino Manfredi and director Dino Risì were absolved of the same charge.

The complaint was filed by a resident of this town north of Rome. He said he was shocked when he saw the movie last year.

WORE TOO LITTLE

In one episode Miss Lollobrigida seduces the nephew of a Roman Catholic bishop. The prosecutor said she was wearing too little in a bedroom scene.

In another episode Manfredi tries to lure Miss Lisi away from a phone conversation in order to make love to her.

Never before in Italy had actresses or actors been charged along with directors or producers for alleged film obscenity.

In convicting Miss Lollobrigida and Sorel, the court in effect accepted the idea that performers are equally responsible with directors and producers for the way a movie is presented to the public.

The Italian movie industry feared a conviction could cause performers and moviemakers to clash over such matters as dialogue and editing.

POPULAR U.S. conductor Leonard Bernstein said last week he will leave the New York Philharmonic to devote more time to composing. Bernstein, 48, has been associated with the orchestra as an assistant and principal conductor since 1943. He has led the Philharmonic in 736 performances.

In reply to a question about sex and blackmail, in connection with the case, he said: "I think there is some sex going on without a doubt."

Marijuana Use On Increase Says RCMP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sgt.

Don J. Webster of the RCMP said Sunday police have encountered more use of marijuana in Greater Vancouver during the last few weeks than over the last two or three years.

He said most arrests have been made in older rented houses in the once-fashionable Kitsilano district now mushrooming with apartment buildings.

He was commenting on the arrest Saturday of Donald McKinnon, a 20-year-old student who was charged with trafficking marijuana. Six persons were charged last Wednesday with possession of hashish and 11 persons with possession of marijuana Oct. 28.

Hashish is a resin compressed from the leaf of the marijuana plant.

"There is a sort of cult club," Sgt. Webster said.

He said, however, the use of marijuana cannot be compared with that of drugs such as heroin.

"Aside from smuggling," he said, "there is less other crime associated with passing marijuana."

Police believe the plant or its seeds are smuggled from the United States, but that most of the supply originates from Mexico.

MATE DROWNS WHEN TUG GOES DOWN

David Washburn, 39, drowned Saturday when the 45-foot tug Mainland Prince sank off Texada Island in the Strait of Georgia.

Two other crew members took to life rafts and were rescued.

Police said Washburn, the mate, was asleep when the tug began sinking. It was presumed he was trapped below.

The reason for the sinking of the vessel, under lease to the Texada Towing Co., and en route up coast to pick up a tow, was not immediately known.

The tug went down in about 480 feet.

Merchants Protest Fee Boost

A petition has been submitted to Sidney council urging it to reconsider its decision to increase business licence fees from $40 to $50 annually.

It is signed by 76 merchants who plan to attend a council meeting Nov. 15 to protest.

Some businessmen explained they are protesting because council gave no reason the money was needed.

Others said they did not know of the increase until they received a notice on Oct. 1.

Chairman A. W. Freeman said council and the Chamber of Commerce discussed the increase.

FREE SCALP CLINIC

Hair and Scalp Specialist will be holding free hair and scalp clinic at Victoria at the Strathcona Hotel on TUES. and WED., NOV. 8th, 9th, between the hours of 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Don't Resign Yourself

This internationally famous expert urges that you do not resign yourself to baldness unless you are already bald. Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind about hair loss, dandruff, itching or other scalp disorders.

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will this new treatment cure BALDNESS? NO. We cannot help men or women who are slick bald. But where your scalp still grows hair, Imperial can save and improve what you have.

The important thing is: DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE. Learn how BALDNESS can be stopped, and new hair grown on your scalp, in the privacy of your own home with new, exclusive Imperial medications.

Delay Increases Problem

Remember that even on smooth bald heads hair roots may still be alive and capable of growing hair again after proper stimulation. "Increased hair production can only be achieved by initiating activity in quiescent follicles—preventing them from going into the 'permanent resting state'." Every day you delay may make your problem just that much more difficult.

GET THE FACTS

If your condition is "hopeless" he'll tell you so frankly. About 5% of those he examines are hopeless. Otherwise he'll tell you what's wrong with your hair and scalp, what can and should be done about it, how little time and money will be required to put your scalp in condition to grow healthy hair again.

Grape Tests Heady Stuff For Wine Connoisseurs

By HUMPHRY DAVY
The connoisseurs of fine wines are rejoicing. Preliminary growing trials at the Dominion Experimental Farm this season indicate southern Vancouver Island can become a major producer of European grapes for wine-making.

The trial included varieties which produce some of the finest wines in Europe. The research centre started testing European grapes in 1964.

The results have amazed researchers, especially director Harry Anderson who has taken under his wing the long-range project.

"Despite a poor grape-growing season, the fruit ripened," he said. "The outlook for growing grapes on a commercial scale in this area is promising."

Co-operating with the research centre is Alan Litter, district horticulturist. He also is planting the varieties at up-Island points.

The tests are of economic importance to the province because 17 per cent of all wine sold in Canada is produced in B.C.

British Columbians are fast becoming wine-lovers. According to a Brewing in Canada report, they drink twice as much wine as in Ontario.

10 VARIETIES

The experimental farm's test this year involved only 10 varieties. Eight bore fruit for the first time. Another 40 varieties, acquired later, have yet to mature. It takes between three to five years for a vine to fruit.

The remarkable feature in the tests is the sugar content of the grapes. It varied from 16 to 22 per cent — depending on the variety.

A wine grape must have a sugar content of no less than 15.

FROM ENGLAND

Mr. Anderson has been importing the grapes from an English research centre which has one of the largest collection of varieties in the world — German, Italian, French, Spanish, Russian.

In the past commercial grape-growing on the Island hasn't been too successful because the varieties were not quite suited to the climate. Those that were — American grapes — are not considered as good as the imported vines for wine-making.

But new varieties developed in Europe for growing in cooler areas have changed the picture. Some of these are used for making high-quality wines.

Mr. Anderson said it will take a few years before tests are completed on the European grapes.

60 Out of Work As Camp Closed At Jordan River

Researchers Deny Knocking Buttle Dumping

Council Report
'Misinterpreted'

Dr. P. C. Trussell, director of the British Columbia Research Council, today denied his organization raised any fundamental criticism of the proposed system for dumping mine tailings into the bottom of Buttle Lake.

At the same time Resources Minister Ray Williston said he has turned over a copy of the 10-page BCRC report to government engineers for an assessment.

He declined further comment pending advice from the engineers "so that I can talk intelligently about this matter."

Dr. Trussell, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, said the Campbell River Water Board requested it to report on the technical information supplied by consultant engineers for Western Mines Ltd. to the Pollution Control Board.

PRECAUTIONARY

He said the report agreed with the procedure in principle but the BCRC saw only the preliminary sketches for the dumping system so it added a precautionary paragraph that said:

"It is expected that minor modifications to the design of the proposed system, as shown in the sketch, may be required."

He said this had been misinterpreted by a Vancouver newspaper that the engineering data was inadequate.

'AWKWARD POSITION'

"It has put us in an awkward position," said Dr. Trussell. "We do not want to become involved in a conflict—we're just interested in the technical aspects."

"The intent of the report was to point out that there was further work yet to be done and not to question the technical competence of the consultants."

He said the final design of the dumping system has not been completed and he knew that the consultants already were considering some of the modifications suggested by the research council on the basis of the preliminary plans it saw.

NO FEARS

Dr. Trussell emphasized that the lake-bottom dumping system has been used elsewhere satisfactorily and the research council does not fear that it poses any fundamental threat "to human health or fish life."

He said he did not feel the research council's report in itself justified a review of the Pollution Control Board's permit because "we do feel that if it is carried out properly there should be no problem."

"But we couldn't be completely sure that, without the suggested modifications, it would work satisfactorily to the maximum degree."

He also pointed out that the Pollution Control Board had been given more information than the research council because it had the benefit of oral submissions from the consultants whereas the BCRC could only examine the written data presented to the board.

SET FOR STRIKE is the United Appeal rolling up a total of $349,874 to date. Campaign has passed the three-quarter mark with 77.4 per cent of the Community Chest's $452,000 quota and over $50,000 from the residential canvass alone. Service and civilian personnel of the Pacific Maritime Command have sailed past their goal, giving $4,601 more than their fair share of $17,601.

Trouble-Hit WeatherShip Tries Again

The trouble-beset weather ship, Vancouver, will try again this week to pass the test she flunked just over a month ago.

The $12 million vessel sailed today for four days of sea trials off Vancouver Island's west coast.

The last time she ventured into open water an electrical circuit popped and she limped home.

If all goes well on her present trip, the Department of Transport vessel will be all set to take up duties on weather station Papa.

Only remaining work to be done on her is further calibration of her highly complex radar system.

INTO DRYDOCK

To do this, the Vancouver will enter drydock over the weekend. Then she's all set for a pre-Christmas shakedown cruise to Honolulu and a January start at her new job.

Behind her, when she finally makes the grade, will be a long line of expensive flaws, first of which was discovered while she was still in the hands of her builders, Burrard Shipyard and Marine Ways Ltd.

At that time, it was discovered that an error had been made in calculating her stability.

CONCRETE USED

As a result, tons of concrete had to be poured into her lower holds to correct the fault.

On arrival in Victoria, a fault was discovered in one of the Vancouver's generating shafts which necessitated a substantial delay while five other shafts were thoroughly examined and a new shaft was being ordered from Britain.

Throughout this time, the Vancouver was popping in and out of drydock for experts to try and tune in her ultra sensitive radar, and a major overhaul of electrical circuits.

Move Follows Dismissal Of Drivers

Sixty loggers at Jordan River lost their jobs today when the camp was closed by the company.

The International Woodworkers of America said four drivers were dismissed this morning, one of whom "wasn't even at work."

"Consequently, the manager then shut the camp down," said union president Murray Drew.

D. F. McNeil, manager of Canadian Puget Sound Lumber & Timber, declined comment.

The IWA said grievances are pending on the issue.

A possible walkout by loggers one week ago was averted after the company changed the marshalling time to 7:15 a.m. from 7:30 a.m.

Mr. Drew said the union "encouraged and instructed" the men not to walk out "which in my opinion the company wanted them to do."

OVERTIME BAN

The crew decided if it was necessary to start 15 minutes earlier they would, but because of previous layoffs and the time change "it was agreed unanimously there would be a ban on all overtime."

Mr. Drew said since then "the management of this company has intimidated the crew in many ways."

Last Friday, two truck drivers were fired when they refused to take their vehicles from a garage at 7:20 a.m. because, said the IWA, the posted starting time of work is 8 a.m.

"The whole thing hinges on the fellows deciding not to work overtime while there were layoffs," he said.

SAVES MONEY

"The company finds it more economical to pay time and a half to individuals on overtime rates than hire additional people."

"The fellows also realize that in working these overtime hours they are only hastening the day when they would be laid off because the company has logged its quota."

Mr. Drew said a company notice states crummies will leave camp at 7:15 a.m. to start work at 8 a.m. and arrive back in camp by 5 p.m.

But even this, he said, was outside both a minimum wage order and the Hours of Work Act which state rest periods and lunch breaks must be included.

Her latest book, "Children of Allah," published last February, is about nine years she spent in Libya with her foster husband.

Youth Jailed 37 Days After 'Atrocity' At Ross Bay Cemetery

A youth who stole a grave-stone and flowers from Ross Bay Cemetery during a wine-drinking spree was jailed today for 37 days.

Brian Proctor, 19, of HMCS St. Croix, received the one-month term for the theft and additional seven days for impaired driving. He was also barred from driving for a year.

He was arrested Oct. 27 after his car rammed a tree on Calumet. Police investigating the accident found the 18-by-24-inch grave marker worth about $80 in the car trunk. The driver admitted taking it after stopping with a friend in the cemetery to drink a bottle of wine.

FUND STAYS OPEN

Over $2,500
Donated
For Aberfan

Victoria Cymrodorion Society today announced that donations to the Aberfan disaster fund in Victoria have exceeded $2,500.

"We shall keep the fund open until the end of November and then forward the money to Aberfan," said Mrs. Phyllis Hill, president of the society.

"The response from all parts of Vancouver Island has been very heart-warming."

Members of the Victoria society travelled to Vancouver in a private bus Sunday to attend a memorial service for the disaster victims held in First Baptist Church.

SONG FESTIVAL

The congregation, including Welsh residents of the lower mainland, exceeded 650. Following the service, the Cambrian Society of Vancouver held its twice yearly song festival known as the Gymnafu Ganol.

"The singing was inspiring," Mrs. Hill said, "but the usual joyous spirit was lacking because we were all so saddened by the Aberfan disaster."

Mrs. Hill said her cousins, Mrs. Enid Harbord and Mrs. Rae Thomas, were among the thousands taking part in rescue work after parts of the village were buried in a black avalanche of coal slag and slime.

"I have a letter from them in which they describe the terrible conditions prevailing. Five chapels in the area were used as mortuaries as bodies were recovered from the avalanche."

Saanich Probe Scheduled
For Nov. 18

A public inquiry into the activities of members of the Saanich assessment department will open next week.

It will be held at 10 a.m. in the Saanich council chamber on Friday, Nov. 18, it was announced today.

The inquiry will be conducted by James Baird, deputy inspector of municipalities, following an earlier request by Saanich council.

Saanich announced last month that members of the assessment department incorporated a company called Royal Oak Estates Limited which lists as its objects the purchase and sale of stocks and securities and of real and personal property.

The municipality also said the company bought and sold two lots in "non-strategic" parts of Saanich. While it believed no wrongdoing was intended, an inquiry was advisable.

Museum Closed Friday

Provincial government offices and the Provincial Museum will be closed in observance of Remembrance Day, Friday.

IF JAYNE EVER RETURNS...

The visit of actress Jayne Mansfield to the city last week will result in a change of procedure for Sunday visitors to Greater Victoria courts.

In a brief statement Mayor A. W. Toome said investigations into Miss Mansfield's visit to the courtroom Oct. 30 had brought "to our attention a circumstance not fully governed by authoritative procedure."

DIRECTIVE

He added that a directive laying down definite procedure for the future would be issued following discussions with the senior magistrate and the magistrate's court committee.

Magistrate William Oster had a similar terse comment.

"I have had a report and I have taken what I consider to be appropriate action," he said. "I have no further comment."

The investigation was called for when, according to eye-witnesses, Miss Mansfield lowered the dignity of the courts by conducting a brief mock trial of one of her pet chihuahuas dogs.

Liquor Stolen From Restaurant

Five bottles of liquor were stolen when thieves broke into The Coach and Four restaurant in Bastion Square Sunday evening.

City detectives arrested three youths a short time later.

George Edwards, 24, Patrick Radford, 19 and Dennis Fontaine, 19, had their case postponed a week for election when they appeared in central court today jointly charged with breaking, entering and theft. They gave their address as a downtown hotel.

Entry to the restaurant was gained by smashing a front window.

Esquimalt
Temporary Span

Esquimalt council will meet tonight to discuss availability of a right-of-way on Gorge Hotel property for a temporary bridge span, to be used during reconstruction of the Gorge Bridge.

Esquimalt and Saanich are awaiting word on the proposed bridge reconstruction from the department of highways, which will pay half the cost. The municipalities will split the other half.

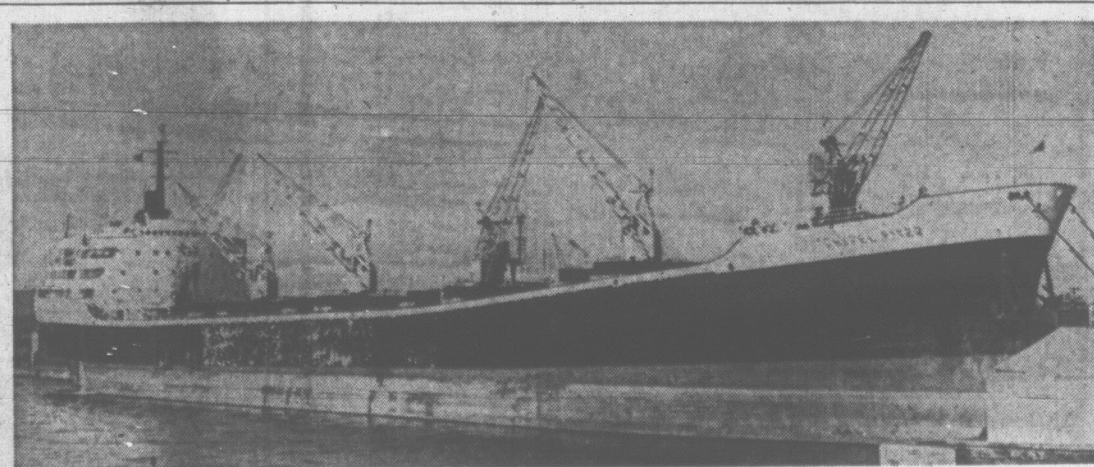

Financing of the regional district's sewerage study, and a proposed Esquimalt branch library, are also on the council agenda.

Uvic Professor Chicago-Bound

A visiting professor at the University of Victoria will conduct a seminar this week at the University of Chicago.

He is Dr. L. P. Harvey, of the University of London, England, an expert on Spanish Islam.

Dr. Harvey was invited to Chicago to lecture on "crypto-Islam" and on the interaction of Islam and Spanish literature.

DWARFED by their own ship, crew members apply a coat of paint to the 22,900-ton freighter Chapel River at Ogden Point today. Which crew member...? It's a bit like spotting a flea on an elephant, but there are four of them halfway down the ship's side towards the stern. The touching-up job filled in time while the ship awaited loading of lumber for the eastern United States. Of British registry, the Chapel River was built in Japan in 1962 and this is her second visit to Victoria. Some 619-feet long, she will leave for Vancouver Wednesday to complete loading. (Times photo.)

AUTHENTIC (?) BAZAAR atmosphere is created for Treasure Van Sale at University of Victoria by Stephen Bigsby, students' council president, and Linde Baker, council secretary. They are examining imports from Middle and Far Eastern countries that are on sale this week. Treasure Van will be open until 9 p.m. each day this week through Thursday. It is located in the Students' Union Building and funds raised will be used to support World University Service. (Times photo.)

PASSENGER IN CAR Serious Injuries Suffered by Woman

Two women injured in week-end traffic accidents are in improved condition today.

Mrs. Helen Jack, 7654 Patricia Bay Highway, suffered a fractured skull, broken vertebrae, cracked ribs and wrist and deep face cuts early Saturday when the car in which she was riding went out of control on Mount Newton Cross Road.

A spokesman at Rest Haven Hospital described her condition as "fair" today.

Ronald Sylvester, the other occupant of the car, spent Saturday night in the same hospital. Sylvester, who lives at 7654 Patricia Bay Highway, was found lying in some brush near the crash about three-quarters of an hour after the accident. He suffered minor injuries.

A 73-year-old pedestrian is in "fairly good" condition in the intensive care unit at Royal Jubilee Hospital after she was in collision with a truck on Pandora near Belmont Saturday.

Miss Francis Smith, 1524 Gladstone, received a broken leg and wrist in the mishap.

Dimas Cravetto, 1231 Belmont, driver of the truck, struck a car driven by Mrs. Jean Campbell, 1543 Elford, in trying to avoid Miss Smith as she crossed Pandora, police reported.

Sleeping Driver Pays $300 Fine

Frederick Richardson, 2630 Deville Road, was fined $300 in central court today when he pleaded guilty to having care and control of an auto while impaired.

He was found asleep on the seat of his parked car Saturday on the shoulder of Anchorage Road near Lagoon Road.

William David Pollock, 1261 Burnside, was fined $350 in Sidney court Friday after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

Civil Servants' Service Thursday

Provincial government offices—including the provincial museum in the Legislative Buildings—will be closed Friday for the Remembrance Day holiday.

Civil servants will hold their annual public memorial service Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in the rotunda of the Legislative Building where memorial plaques and service flags are hung in honor of their war dead.

Style Picture Tinted In California Colors

The outstanding impression of the California, Creators Press showings at the Century Plaza Hotel was the explosion of color. The resort and early spring 1967 fashion color-story is inspired by the California desert color emblazoned with sunlight or softened by phosphorescence. The lavish use of color is an integral part of each collection.

Weightlessness is the big story of fabrics... a garment floats rather than hangs on the body. There is great emphasis on knits for all hours of the day.

Smashing new African and primitive prints are taking over for the sophisticated woman. Geometrics, bold stripes, checks and tatters are gay and exciting. Polka dots are noticeable by their absence.

The natural waistline is beginning to show itself again... not in a big way, but there are indications that future seasons will define the waist at its own level.

Dresses for spring 1967 have a new sparse cut to the bodice, a high semi-fitted look, nearly always with sleeves. There are many long, close-fitting sleeves and some that are long and loose as in a monk's robe.

The turtle neckline is seen everywhere... halters are another 1967 happening. Back or front cowls lend a softly feminine air to many afternoon dresses.

Skirts have a definite new width... the A-line is strongly entrenched. Skirts are short... most designers showed above the knee. The mini-skirt seems destined only for the young swinger.

Stanley Nelson, just home from previewing the French, Italian and Spanish collections showed several beautiful originals by Guy Laroche and Balenciaga of Paris and Castiglioni of Italy. In one case the designer showed the finished copy side by side with the original.

Stanley Nelson turns to the great mills of Europe for his beautifully textured fabrics. Superb tailoring, worthy of his exquisite fabrics, is the cornerstone of his collection. No hats or jewels were worn by his models.

Mr. Nelson allowed your eye to concentrate on the beauty of cut and fabric. This house, the first ever to show pant suits in California, still handles this style with tremendous flair.

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Mrs. Farmer:
I have taken your suggestion and have been using the new press-on type of hem tape for hems, however, I have encountered a few snags. Sometimes the hem tape comes down when my dresses are cleaned, and sometimes they come off when I have washed a garment. They always press back on again, but how can I keep this from occurring?—Mrs. M. E.

Dear Mrs. M. E.:
We have had a few letters about this which has made us experiment again and also check very thoroughly with the company who makes this product. It seems that the whole secret is in the application.

First, and most important: Be sure to check this effect of this hem tape on a scrap of your fabric first. You must use enough heat so that you can clearly see the two bonding lines from the right side of the hem tape. If you can only see the lines faintly, you have not used enough heat and held it in place long enough.

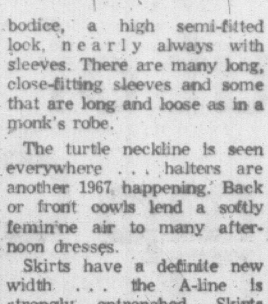

When testing on a sample of your fabric, if the lines or the tape show clearly from the right side of your fabric, you will not be able to use this tape on that particular garment. The great part about the tape is that it can actually be used both ways and there are more chances that you can use it than not. Let's try again gals: some readers swear by it and use it for hemming drapes, curtains, children's clothes. It's a great time saver in our never-long-enough days!

Postpone Meeting

Because of Remembrance Day ceremonies, the Daughters of St. George No. 238 have postponed this week's scheduled meeting until Wednesday, Nov. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the K of P Hall.

The colors sing in this culotte at-home outfit, seen in the Alex Colman collection at the California showings. The graceful design zips up the back and is aptly named "Symphony Scroll".

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Brush on New Cosmetics Shrug Your Troubles Off;

Recently cosmetics have been more fun than ever before. There have been so many new concepts. Some concepts like the dead or white look, which weren't attractive, are dying out and never were used generally by most women. However, there are so many ideas that are wonderful.

Most of my readers know about the brush-on trend. If you haven't gotten in the act you should. You can brush on your eyebrows, brush on your lipstick, your eyeshadow and your blusher. The brush makes application much easier, and the result much smoother and more natural looking.

There is another trend which brings out the creative, artistic instinct, which is a part of most women. This is the trend to match and mix your own makeup. The cosmetic industry seems determined to make artists out of us. You can literally use your face as a palette and experiment in making it as pretty as possible.

There is a lipstick and eye shadow paintbox on the market which looks just like paintboxes we had as children. You can blend and mix the colors, just like we did as children, but in order to get a certain shade to match our costume and complexion. It is really fun and also rewarding to mix individual shades to personalize color.

There have been great improvements made in eyeshadow. This is now a brush on item too and goes on smoothly with the brush. In the past eyeshadows were often too flaky or too creamy. Today some of the best ones are pressed powder in combination with a creamy formula base. These stay on indefinitely and do not seem to collect in the folds of your lids.

Many women do not know how to apply eyeshadow. Stroke the brush over the shadow and then begin at the inner corner of your eyelids and sweep upward and outward with the brush. Use the flat part of the brush when applying shadow to your lids up to the brows. Use the side of the brush if you wish to draw a line of color directly above the lashes.

I used to think that shadow was aging, but with the lovely colors now available and the consistency of the shadow, it can add beauty to your eyes.

To make your eyes more attractive send for my free leaflet "Keep Something in Your Eye—Beauty" for some helpful eye exercises. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

'Something Old' for Susan Jane Begg

TOPAZ BROOCH BRIDAL TALISMAN

Her grandmother's topaz brooch, set in silver filigree, fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Susan Jane Begg, when she exchanged marriage vows with Trevor Weston Hughes, Saturday evening.

The brooch was the only jewelry accent to the bride's gown of peau de soie, "something borrowed" from her sister, Mrs. Patrick Thody. The empire-line bodice was fastened of hand-beaded French lace, which was echoed in appliques on the train. A coronet of rhinestones and pearls held her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion net and she carried red roses and lily in her cascade bouquet.

Arrangements of multicolored chrysanthemums decorated Belmont United Church when Rev. Murray Henderson heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Begg, 2742 Scott Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell W. Hughes, 4050 Saanich Road. Mr. Begg gave his daughter in marriage.

Short-length gowns of pale turquoise brocade, styled with belted skirts, were worn by matron of honor Mrs. Thody and bridesmaid, Miss Darlene Young. Their bow headpieces were on tone and they carried colonial bouquets of white carnations, centred with turquoise. Best man was Alan Thom. Ushering the guests to their seats were the brothers of the principals, Gilbert Hughes and Wayne Begg. Jim Hough proposed the toast to his goddaughter at the reception which followed in the home of the bride's parents. For travelling on a honeymoon trip to Vancouver, the new Mrs. Hughes donned a two-piece English tweed walking suit of blended blue and green tones. Complementing the outfit were a white fur hat and collar, black patent accessories and yellow orchid corsage. Travelling from out of town for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. Tuck of Denman Island, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Towbotham of Calgary.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR REALIZES $5,000

Gala Afternoon at Norfolk House Bazaar

"And a good time was had by all" would be the most apt expression to use when describing the bazaar at Norfolk House School, Saturday afternoon. Who couldn't have a good time, when faced with all the wonderful things to do, the games to play and the attractive items featured at a wide variety of stalls at the annual event?

At one stall in particular, it was hard to tell who was having the most fun — the conveners or the guests! This was the fathers' stall and the dads offered everything from tennis rackets to paintings — they even had an auction sale.

GUESSING GAMES

Also featured at the booth, convened by D. S. Campbell, J. Johnston and D. O'T. Rochfort, were "guess the weight of the meat" contests and sales of huge slabs of fish and meat.

Early Christmas shopper found the bazaar a perfect Mecca to stock up on decorations and gift ideas. Exquisite arrangements of fir boughs, sprayed with gold and centred with candles, and delicately gold-tipped door swags were just some of the articles sold at the Christmas decorations stall, supervised by Mrs. G. A. Neely.

Guests couldn't resist buying the delicious holiday cakes and puddings, rich with fruits and spices, at the Christmas food stall which Mrs. H. Fuller convened. A complete display of gift ideas, from a net full of nylon scrubbers to dolls' clothes to adorable little hand-made cockpits and penguins, proved irresistible to many at the gift stall, manned by Mrs. B. Schulze and her committee.

Clubwomen's News

DONATIONS — Members of Robert Burns McKicking Chapter IOOE voted to donate $25 to the Aberdeen Disaster Fund at their recent meeting in the Bywood Place home of Mrs. D. Mason. Educational secretary Mrs. A. Hendy announced that she had mailed parcels of articles collected by members to the adopted school in Antigua, British West Indies. Members are to provide flowers to decorate the Veterans' Hospital this month, reported services convenor Miss Pearl Barbour. She also mentioned that quilts and baby booties had been made by members for shipment overseas, and that toys, valued at $17.38, had been bought for children at Nahanni Butte School. Miss Christine MacNab gave a resume of the recent semi-annual provincial meeting in Chilliwack and Mrs. B. Speer reported on "Festival '67" progress.

The students themselves didn't mind coming back to school for another day to help with the sale. They displayed all sorts of gifts and crafts which they had made themselves including fabric caterpillars and gaily decorated matchboxes. Naomi Stevens, Shelley Dorman and Erica Learoyd were in charge of this booth.

'GOING FISHIN'

The youngsters had a wonderful time "going fishin'." Who could blame them when the "fish" which came from the pond supervised by Mrs. W. Mills turned out to be fascinating prizes. And everyone wanted to pop the balloons with darts at the game supervised outside by the fathers.

The unmistakable sounds of today's popular songs proved irresistible to the teenagers as they flocked to the "discotheque" which offered all sorts of recordings dear to the hearts of the younger set.

Thrifty homemakers discovered a number of clothing bargains when they visited the House of Norfolk, which featured school uniforms and other items of quality used clothing.

The scent of freshly-baked breads, cakes and pies drew housewives by the dozen to the home-baking stall, convened by Mrs. T. P. O'Grady, and those with quick meal ideas in mind found the delicatessen supervised by Mrs. J. R. J. Angus the perfect place to shop for jellied salads, meats and preserves of all kinds.

Mrs. D. Arnold was in charge of the book stall, which could have passed for a small library with all the books which were offered. More than one "bookworm" spent the afternoon in just this one room, browsing through the hundreds of hard-bound novels and paper-backs.

GENERAL CONVENERS

Mrs. H. L. Hamersley, Mrs. H. Chapman and Mrs. C. S. Bell were the general conveners of the bazaar, which realized $5,000.

In charge of the other stalls were Mrs. R. J. Taylor, white elephants; Mrs. E. Gibson, tea; Mrs. D. Short, knitting; Mrs. P. Poulton, sewing; Mrs. D. Falder, raffles and parcel post; Mrs. D. Boyd, tea sandwiches; Mrs. N. Bailey, snacks; Mrs. G. A. Neely and Mrs. P. M. Ransford were in charge of decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Holding, 1051 Hulford Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Marilyn Joan, to Mr. Robert Arthur Sommers, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sommers, of Errington, B.C. The wedding will take place this coming Saturday, at 7:30 p.m., in First Baptist Church. Rev. J. Watson will officiate. (Tom Gore photo.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

An Evening of Bridge Complete With This

By Penny Saver

I don't know about you, but I'm having a hard time conditioning myself to the time change. I know it's been in effect for a week now, but I still find myself waking up about an hour earlier than usual, still thinking that I've slept in. Another thing that I find strange as yet is coming home after five from a late shopping day, and it's already semi-dark outside. Maybe it's all in my head, but the evenings seem so much longer.

My neighbor confided over the fence that she feels the same way. We're going to remedy that tonight with a rubber of bridge. This is the perfect chance for me to initiate my latest purchase, a bridge set.

This contains matching bridge necessities in red, black and gold tones, in a card motif. That is, napkins, coasters, ashtrays and match boxes are all decorated in the four card suits.

Each set contains 20 paper napkins and coasters, eight metallized ashtrays and six engraved metal match boxes of gold-tipped matches. Price is $2.30.

Even though old Santa Claus is far away right now, I've spotted a couple of items that I'd like to keep my eye on for hubby's gifts. As a matter of fact, I've already started filling up my change bank hoping to fill part of the bill.

One that I particularly favor is a transistor desk set, a luxury office item that hubby will love. This has a walnut grained wooden base that will look perfect on his desk. The main part is, of course, a six-transistor radio. On one side there are two pens in holders. Complete with the two pens and radio batteries, this ideal gift item sells for $29.95. Drop in and see one in this shop.

Remember Penny's number is 382-3131. Give her a call if you want to know where she shopped.

ST. MARGARET'S SCHOOL

Special Kind of Circus Makes $1,850 on Saturday

No matter what age you are, everyone loves a circus. There is something a little "magic" about a circus, with its stalls, clowns, games and daring animal and acrobatic acts which appeals to everyone. Even though the animal and acrobatic acts were missing at the "circus" put on by St. Margaret's School, Saturday afternoon, there was so much to see, do, play and buy, that no one appeared to notice or care. It realized $1,850.

There were special attractions for all ages — stalls for Mom and Dad, games to play and even entertainment.

In the gymnasium, which was transformed into the "big top" itself with posters, streamers and balloons, booths featuring everything from delicatessen and home-baked goodies to Christmas decorations and novelties were doing a roaring business.

The lure of the Far East proved irresistible to many a guest as they stopped at a stall convened by Mrs. W. G. McIntosh. This was the Oriental stall which specialized in gifts of Japanese lanterns, and all manner of gift items — you could even have your name written in Chinese!

At another booth, youngsters crowded three and four deep with their friends, all eager to race and win on the miniature car track which was featured. Upstairs, youngsters were enthralled by the magic acts offered by Ah Foo Yu (Owen Fowler).

A circus just wouldn't be complete without hot dogs, and R. Wainwright and fathers of the students served endless numbers of weiners and buns, plus soft drinks and coffee, at the fathers' booth.

Armed Forces Will Recruit 850 Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department plans to recruit approximately 850 more women to bring total strength of women in the armed forces to some 2,000.

All the recruiting will be in the non-officer class and will help make up the growing manpower shortage. The armed forces now are some 4,000 under their authorized strength of 109,000.

The defence department spokesman says the total of non-officer women will be increased to approximately 1,500 from the present 650. The number of officers will remain about the same as now — 500.

The RCAF now has about 350 women and will take in 550 more starting Jan. 1. The navy has about 300 and will increase this number to some 650.

The army now has only 14 non-officer women and won't increase that number. The reason is that the army has to pick up and move on short notice and, according to the defence department, women can't do that easily.

The officer strength of women in the armed forces will remain practically the same — 250 in the air force, 150 in the army and 100 in the navy. New trade classifications have been drawn up for women in the services. There's one called military instructor, which means there will still be parade-ground drill for women as well as for men.

The other trades are X-ray technician, nursing assistant, operating room assistant, physical education instructor, telephone operator, supply technician, administrative clerk, finance clerk and radar operator.

Who Needs This Kind of Practice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I know this will sound crazy, but I'm serious. I flipped over a guy named Alan, but he doesn't care a thing about me. He has never dated me, but he comes over sometimes and we "make out." (I guess the older generation called it "necking.")

Alan tells me not to get serious about him because he likes me only as a friend but he kisses me because he needs the practice for when the right girl comes along. I have tried to refuse to let him kiss me, but I always weaken when I see him. Can you help me?

DEAR WEAK: No one can help a person who can't help himself. Next time he comes over, refuse to let him in. Practice makes perfect, but this kind of practice is making a perfect fool of you.

The Greeks had a word for it. Bias and drapery and one bare shoulder. Ancient Greek sculpture has been inspiring great designers for centuries, now this speedy. The dress is so subtly fitted it barely touches the body. It has long diagonal darts on each side that do the trick and has no regulation side seams. That fabric just goes down and around on a true bias for wonderful drape. It is very speedy to sew, being unlined for clinging purposes and having only two main pattern pieces. ## Couple Travel South For Their Honeymoon

Following their recent wedding in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Metchosin, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Gary Donovan Petrie left on a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, Nev.

The bride, the former Evelyn Alice Strawn, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percival J. Strawn, 2903 Rocky Point Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Petrie, 2903 Leigh Road. White chrysanthemums and gladioli decorated the church for the service at which Rev. Cyril Venables officiated. Mr. Strawn gave his daughter in marriage and Mrs. Ralph Willing was organist.

Hand-clipped Chantilly lace trimmed theilly point sleeves and wattleau train of the peau de sole gown worn by the bride. The sheath gown was fashioned with an empire-line bodice, featuring a sabrina neckline. Seed pearls starred the bride's floral headpiece which held a tiered bouffant veil of silk illusion net. The groom's gift of an opal pendant was her only jewelry and she carried a bouquet of pink princess roses and gardenias.

The bride's attendants were in matching gowns of pink crepe, styled with burgundy-toned velvet empire bodices. Their headpieces were pink roses, edged with veils, and their bouquets were of maroon chrysanthemums. Black Alaska diamond pendants, the bride's gifts, were the only jewelry accents.

Maid of honor was Miss Jackie Russell, and bridesmaids were the Misses Susan Ratcliffe and Janice Strawn, the bride's sister. John Allen was best man and ushering guests were Ken Morrison and the bride's brother, Gerald Strawn.

Pink roses topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the Chez Marcel, and white gladioli flanked the centerpiece. John Bligh proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Petrie donned a tweed suit of brown and blue, accented with a blue satin collar. Her hat was of blue satin and her accessories were brown. She completed the outfit with a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

The couple will make their home in the Ponderosa Apartments, 1184 Esquimalt Road.

Free Ocean Trips Not New to Dubois

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Jon Jessamin of Vancouver says free ocean voyages "are nothing new to French stow-away Andre Dubois, who left Victoria uninvited for Vladivostok last week aboard a Soviet grain ship.

Dubois, 24, who said he is a native of Lyon, France, refused to disembark from the grain ship Oia — and sailed from Canada in the care of a perplexed Soviet skipper after Canadian authorities announced they couldn't make him get off.

Mr. Jessamin, lawyer for

Supermarket Robbed

SASKATOON (CP) — Two masked bandits, one armed with a sawed-off double-barrelled shotgun, held up a supermarket Saturday and made off with about $3,500. The robbery occurred at 6:30 p.m., half an hour after the store closed. Entry was gained through a door left unlocked to allow late shoppers to leave.

Empire Shipping, agents for the Oia, said he talked with Dubois before the ship sailed.

"He told me he's done this sort of thing before on other deep sea vessels and was successful," said Mr. Jessamin. "He was a wily sort of chap. He obviously went aboard the ship with the idea of getting to Russia."

He said Dubois apparently charted a long and wily course in his efforts to get to the Soviet Union, starting with an illegal entry into Canada.

However, Mr. Jessamin said, Dubois' visit might be restricted to the inside of a Vladivostok prison cell. He said Dubois could be prosecuted by Soviet authorities for unlawfully boarding a ship, which carries a minimum sentence of two years in jail.

"He told me he had been in trouble with immigration authorities in other countries, but immigration authorities in Ottawa have no records of him in Canada."

U.K. DIVORCE LAWS

Proposed Change 'Is Disastrous'

By CARL MOLLINS
LONDON (CP)—A reported proposal by a government law commission for divorce by consent has aroused controversy even before official publication of the idea.

Advance reports of law-reform proposals due to be presented to Parliament Wednesday include suggestions for widening the grounds for divorce from the present adultery, cruelty and desertion.

The breakdown of marriage would be an additional ground for divorce.

Courts could allow divorce by mutual consent of the partners after a specified period of separation, possibly five or seven years. Either partner could petition a court for divorce on the ground of marital breakdown. The court would require satisfaction that wife and children were making out adequately.

Reaction by churchmen was summed up in the comment of Rt. Rev. J. Leonard Wilson,

Bishop of Birmingham, who said any system of divorce by consent would be "disastrous." While saying he favors divorce-law reform, the bishop added that "divorce by consent is opening the gates far too wide."

An Anglican committee appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury recommended reform of divorce laws in a report last July. The church group urged replacement of the present divorce grounds by demonstration of the irretrievable breakdown of a marriage.

In the church committee's proposal, divorce courts would have an investigating and advisory role—similar to juvenile courts—and would grant a divorce if the marital collapse was judged to be beyond repair. Courts would no longer seek to establish that one partner was guilty of matrimonial offence—adultery, cruelty or desertion.

The government-appointed law commission—five legal experts headed by High Court Justice Sir Leslie Scarman—conferred with the church committee, which included present and former justices of the high court.

The government commission, assigned last year to carry out an extensive review of English law, is understood to have sympathized with the church committee's idea. But it felt that the requirement for a detailed inquiry into every marriage breakdown would overwhelm the divorce courts, which already are burdened by 40,000 undefended divorce actions annually.

The commission adds the ground of marital breakdown without abolishing the grounds based on matrimonial offences or allowing for judicial inquiries into broken marriages. The church committee had emphasized the positive aspect of seeking to repair marriages by law reform and hopefully reducing the number of divorces.

228 Canadians Killed at Work In 2nd Quarter

At least 228 Canadians were killed at work during the second quarter of this year, reports the federal labor department. This compared with 255 deaths in the first quarter and 287 in the second quarter of last year.

The department said the number of work fatalities "is usually greater than indicated" in preliminary figures. Nearly half the deaths came in the 25 to 44 age bracket.

Three industries — construction, transportation and manufacturing — were responsible for 60 per cent of the deaths.

The leading kinds of fatal accidents were falls and slips struck by objects and collisions and derailments.

The commission adds the ground of marital breakdown without abolishing the grounds based on matrimonial offences or allowing for judicial inquiries into broken marriages. The church committee had emphasized the positive aspect of seeking to repair marriages by law reform and hopefully reducing the number of divorces.

Light and Lively

Coming up for Bastion Theatre followers is a play that has been the comedy hit of Paris, London and New York and subsequently became a top box office movie.

Directed by Stuart Baker it will take the stage at McPherson Playhouse starting Nov. 18 and continuing through Dec. 3.

HE STOLE $1.4 MILLION AND LOST IT ON HORSES

LONDON (UPI) — James Shipton, a terrible horse player but good at spending his company's money, led a tout's dream-life for six years. The dream ended abruptly when he took a vacation.

Shipton was a million-plus loser, about $1.4 million worth to be precise. This his company learned when an auditor looked at the books while Shipton was vacationing in Ireland. He told waiting police this tale upon his return.

For six years he paid off bookies by systematically juggling the books and faking invoices at the contracting company for which he was secretary.

Backing slow horses cost him as much as $84,000 a day, he said.

He started by putting $2.30 on horses at legal off-track betting shops. But "the only way to win was to put big money on favorites," he added. He rarely won.

To cover his losses, Shipton invented a non-existent firm and paid it huge sums of money. He also made out checks for thousands of dollars extra and pocketed the difference.

Fur-clad Mrs. Shipton, 33, said her husband "never had a single sleepless night and just seemed a normal, happy husband. He never showed the slightest sign of having any secret worry."

Shipton apparently didn't blow all the embezzled funds on the ponies.

He and his wife lived in a $50,000 town house and he drove a post S-type Jaguar. His wife also had her own car.

Judge Mervyn Jones sentenced Shipton to six years in prison Thursday on 12 counts of embezzling and forgery.

The judge said he was "staggered" by the amount of money involved.

Red Translator Seeks Asylum In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A pretty Soviet fugitive remained in hiding in Beirut today while United Nations representatives deliberated her request for classification as a political refugee.

A UN decision on Mrs. Olga Alexandrovna Farmakovskaya, 42, was expected within a few days.

Mrs. Farmakovskaya, who worked as a translator in Moscow for a Toronto Globe and Mail news correspondent, jumped ship at Beirut Oct. 17.

Soviet authorities have ordered her returned to Russia, insisting she is "mentally ill." Lebanese officials have consistently turned down the demands.

U.S. officials who helped her seek refuge through the United Nations said she appeared "quite normal" during her 48-hour stay at the American Embassy immediately after she jumped ship.

How come we keep ahead in transportation?

Because we know just when to hit the road.

We're Canadian Pacific.

We started out in the railway business. It's still our main line, but we like to open up new roads for you.

Example: trucks.

Our trucks roll over Canada's highways day and night, taking your goods where you want them to go.

Our highway refrigerator trailers keep fresh meats and frozen foods safe as in your own freezer.

And then there's Piggyback. That's where we transfer our truck trailers onto our special rail flatcars to make sure your goods go full speed ahead. Which brings us back to our railway. It serves you across the country. But to keep ahead in co-ordinated transportation these days, you've got to keep moving.

You see, when it comes to shipping your goods, we want to prove roadworthy.

Teen-Ager Blames Parents For Halloween Violence

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — An 18-year-old high school student who said Sunday he took part in a wild Halloween night riot here blamed the violence on a lack of communication between parents and teen-agers.

Addressing a meeting of parents called to discuss the riot, John Wingfield described the thousands of dollars of damage done at the Edgemont Shopping Centre as "animalistic destruction."

But he told the shocked parents: "We did it because we can't communicate with our parents. We had to let off steam."

He said the solutions to such occurrences are communication between parents and teen-agers, organized activities on such nights, an outlet for teen-agers to take part in community activity and establishment of a board of parents and students to iron out differences.

"If there had been a dance at the community centre we would have raised the roof in a more respectable manner," said young Wingfield.

He said he came to the parents' meeting after reading that North Vancouver Alderman Jack Chadwick "said that citizens of North Vancouver shouldn't spend money on activities for teen-agers because they were young punks."

"That boiled my blood. I'm your teen-ager. Why don't you call me a punk?"

Parents at the meeting, after two hours of discussion, decided to form a council to co-ordinate activities for students and bring together parents and students for discussion of common problems.

Cleric To Oppose Bonner

QUESNEL (CP)—A minister who resigned his Anglican Church ministry to contest the Cariboo byelection was nominated Saturday night as the NDP candidate in the Nov. 28 contest.

Rev. Hartley Dent of 100 Mile House was chosen by some 175 delegates at an NDP nominating convention at this northern Cariboo centre. His only opponent was Mrs. Naomi Randall, a Quesnel housewife.

Dent will oppose Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the byelection, called by the Social Credit government after Mr. Bonner was defeated in his home riding of Vancouver-Point Grey in the Sept. 12 provincial general election.

1,300 VOTES BEHIND

Mr. Dent ran 1,300 votes behind Social Credit William Speare who won Cariboo riding in the September election but later resigned to give Mr. Bonner a second chance to get a seat in the legislature.

Robert Strachan, NDP leader, and Alex MacDonald, MLA for Vancouver-East, spoke during the meeting.

Mr. Strachan said the meeting was held significantly on Guy Fawkes Day which falls on Nov. 5. He said 351 years ago Guy Fawkes led a group bent on blowing up Parliament in London.

"However, 351 years later we have met in Quesnel and we too have designs on Parliament," he said.

"But we don't want to blow it up. We just want to blow Robert Bonner out of office and right out of this constituency."

Mr. MacDonald said Premier Bennett's Friday announcement that the three Social Credit women elected Sept. 12 would be cabinet ministers was just a front.

He said the women would be "dolls in a big doll house."

Horseback Campaign

QUESNEL (CP) — A 43-year-old Vancouver lawyer says he will campaign on horseback in a bid to win the Nov. 28 Cariboo byelection for the newly-formed Free Trade Party.

Gerard Goeujon arrived Friday to work up his campaign, which he says will be a boots and saddle affair on a horse borrowed from a friend in 100 Mile House.

His Free Trade Party, two weeks old and 50 strong, wants free trade with the United States, legislation to abolish advertising gimmicks, abolition of advertising of tobacco and alcohol, schools financed from general revenue, profiteering by finance companies controlled, and free legal representation for all criminals.

Mr. Goeujon, who lives in Ladner, fought and lost his first election campaign this year as an independent in Vancouver-Centre, after losing a bid for the Social Credit nomination in Delta.

VEGETATION CATALOGUED

Waging Botanical War To Save Island 'Natives'

By JOHN MIKA

Almost too late some citizens have become aroused by the danger that we will soon lose the unique signature nature gave to this area — our community of arbutus, Garry oak and dogwood trees.

Up has gone the cry to find undisturbed areas where they can be protected and preserved in their natural environment.

But where does the Saanich peninsula look like the countryside that the pioneers viewed?

The precise answer is being sought by provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szczawinski with the help of third-year University of Victoria botany student, Spring Harrison of 5142 Old West Saanich Road.

Last summer they began searching for the answer with a program that will see every square yard of the peninsula examined and its vegetation sampled for cataloguing and comparing with scores of smaller collections taken by interested persons as far back as 1873.

The answer is not as easy to find as most would assume, indeed Dr. Szczawinski thinks it will take three years.

The subdivisions threat to native trees is only the final escalation of a relentless invasion of foreign plants brought by the white man which has decimated many other species that used to flourish here.

This slow, silent but desperate botanical war is accelerating on Saanich peninsula.

FEW FOUND

The body count now launched by Dr. Szczawinski at the provincial museum already has shown that where once numerous orchids bloomed on the peninsula and delicate mountain lady's slipper was common at Cordova Bay, few if any specimens can be found today.

Instead, there is a bright yellow carpet of yellow-blossoming foreigners everywhere — broom, gorse and dandelion — which were totally unknown here barely a century ago.

Some idea of the scope of the intrusion can be gained from considering just the broom plant.

A nostalgic Capt. W. C. Grant imported 12 seeds to Sooke from Hawaii where other homesick Scottish settlers had established the highland plant.

THREE GERMINATED

That was just about 110 years ago and only three of those seeds germinated — yet all of southern Vancouver Island now is a mass of broom blossom in the spring!

An untold number of native Vancouver Island plants succumbed beneath the dense growths of broom that took over almost all openings in the woods.

Everywhere you see the plant today, you know that spot cannot be called a piece of "natural" Vancouver Island ground.

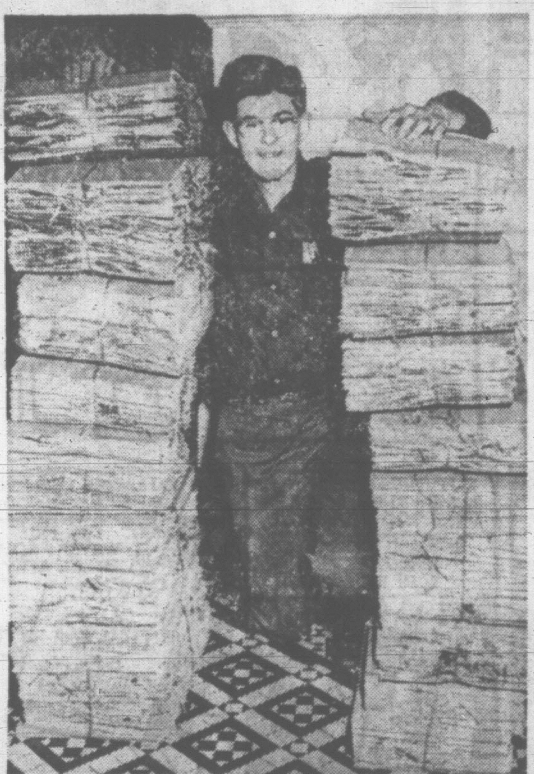

"People are beginning to realize we should set aside areas to preserve our native landscape and they're in a rush — but it's necessary to survey what we now have to find out which areas are worth preserving and which truly have native vegetation," said Dr. Szczawinski.

That's the practical purpose of the systematic study and he promises that its results will be made available to the civic bodies who wish to establish new regional parks.

"As a botanist I'm not only interested in preserving a single species such as the Garry Oak but the whole association — the habitat community — of plants in given areas."

FORM COMMUNITY

Among trees, perhaps you've noticed that where there's Garry oak growing wild you'll also find arbutus and dogwood, too, forming a community because they need the same sort of environment.

ABOUT 2,000 SHEETS of pressed plants of all sizes surround Spring Harrison, third-year botany student at University of Victoria, who spent last summer collecting the specimens for a catalogue of Saanich Peninsula vegetation. He'll be in the fields again next summer on the provincial museum project. (Times photo.)

The same is true of many groupings of native plants.

"Saanich peninsula is a very important botanical area because it is a transition zone — some plants found near the city's outskirts do not occur naturally near Sidney and vice versa," says Dr. Szczawinski.

"That's why there has been so much interest in it by botanists from other areas but now, with the introduced species driving out native plants, there is very little left that represents undisturbed native plant communities so we should be concerned about this."

Dr. Szczawinski said he is particularly concerned about the native trees because they are the most impressive landscape feature we have.

NOT IMPRESSED

He delights to tell of the visit by some eminent Japanese botanists whom he showed the numerous plantings of Japanese cherry and plum trees so proudly tended here. "They were not impressed," he recalls. "Instead they asked why we did not plant more of the beautiful native trees we have."

Personally, I would not like to see Victoria a second Tokyo. I would rather see it surrounded by Gary oak and arbutus.

For four months last summer, five days a week beginning at 8 a.m. Mr. Harrison would mount his motorbike and ride to a new grid of the 115 on the map he carried.

He covered the peninsula from the Dallas Road waterfront to the Patricia Bay airport from the eastern shoreline to a westerly limit in line with Little Saanich Mountain and Bear Hill.

"I tried to visit every habitat (the smallest comprehensive unit of floral environment including a community ranging from wet to dryland plants) in each square on the grid map," he said in an interview.

He would collect samples of everything living in each habitat, putting smaller plants in plastic bags and cuttings of larger ones between the leaves of a field press, jot down the pertinent notes in a field book and keep at it until mid-afternoon.

After returning home, the specimens of his collecting expedition would be put on drying racks and later they would be placed into their individual cardboard presses. All told, he collected more

Both Men Confident Of Victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Republican challenger Ronald Reagan raced to a dramatic finale today in their drive for California's governorship and its national influence.

Both claimed to be within striking distance of victory in Tuesday's general election.

Brown, 61, trying to become the first Democrat in history elected to three terms as governor, made his victory claim in a speech prepared for a breakfast with Los Angeles precinct workers.

"The people never vote against themselves — and they're not going to do it Tuesday," he said. "They're not going to turn this state over to a man who hasn't spent one day in government." Reagan has never held elective public office.

OPTIMISTIC

Reagan, 55, actor-turned-politician, told a local television Sunday that he was "optimistic" of election but pledged he would not slow down before the voters go to the polls.

Brown pointed to California's key position in the national political scene on a nationwide television panel show.

He said that if Reagan is elected governor, it would give the GOP a "real let up" in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Reagan has denied repeatedly that he has any 1968 presidential aspirations but has failed to entirely close the door. California governors have established almost a tradition of being at least favorite son candidates at the national conventions.

The latest state poll, copy-righted by The Los Angeles Times, gave Reagan a 2 percentage point lead over Brown — 44 to 42 per cent with 14 per cent undecided — going into Tuesday's election. It appeared Brown needed a near-miracle to win.

Former Victorian Killed in Crash

Funeral services for Cecil McMartin, 36, a former Victorian man killed in an automobile accident, were held in Elora, Ontario, last week.

Mr. McMartin, once a crewman on the replica of the "Bounty," of the film "Mutiny on the Bounty," appeared in three other films and, before that was an employee of the Department of Transport.

Born in Fort St. John, he lived in Halifax for the past seven years.

Mr. McMartin is survived by the widow, a young daughter and mother and father.

African Conference Rocked by Feuding

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (Reuters)—The Organization of African Unity summit conference resumed here today following a Ghana-Guinea dispute which has not yet been finally resolved.

The formal opening of the summit was cut short Saturday to leave room for mediation efforts concerning a four-man Guinean delegation held in Accra, Ghana, Oct. 29 while in transit to the conference.

Ghana had announced the diplomats would be held hostage for about 100 Ghanaians allegedly held in Guinea. But Ghana agreed to release them Saturday after a committee of African leaders undertook to tion is their ability to pandor to other men's fears."

He named no one but has refused to endorse these Democratic party candidates:

George Mahoney, seeking the Maryland governorship on a racist platform, and given an even or better chance of winning;

George Wallace, Alabama governor and segregationist running his wife, Lurleen, to offset his non-eligibility and reckoned a shoo-in;

Lester Maddox, given a fair chance of winning the Georgia governorship with a harder anti-Negro stand than his Republican opponent.

PRESIDENT CONFIDENT

But the president also said he is confident the Democrats will wind up with a "good, healthy, substantial majority in the House of Representatives"—the key section of Congress in this election because all seats are contested.

For Nixon, Sunday was a day of maximum national television exposure in which he countered a blistering personal attack delivered by the president Friday.

President Johnson went after the Republican party spokesman as a "chronic campaigner" and a man doing his country a disservice with criticism of Viet Nam policy.

Nixon has questioned the Manila conference communiqué for offering an allied withdrawal from Viet Nam in six months if North Vietnamese forces also withdrew and the fighting stops.

In a half-hour Republican program and a session with press questioners Sunday, Nixon said the president had delivered "one of the most savage personal assaults ever levelled... against one of his political opponents."

REPEATS CRITICISM

He repeated his criticism about Viet Nam and urged election of enough Republicans to curb one-man government under Johnson.

The war in Viet Nam may go on for five years unless more American air and sea strength — rather than troops — are used, he said.

He termed "political fakery" a statement by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara Saturday at the presidential rally that troop injections into Viet decline sharply next year.

But Nixon, with backing from Senator Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana who has been critical of escalating the Viet Nam war, cautioned North Viet Nam and China against concluding from the elections — whatever happens — that the American fighting in Viet Nam will erode.

"Regardless of personal feelings, we are committed to proceed as we have," Mansfield said at Helena, Mont.

Lumber Official Named Conciliator

A lumber company personnel officer has been appointed conciliator in the wage dispute between Sooke school board and the teachers.

J. T. Hunter, of Canadian Puget Sound Lumber Co. at Jordan River, will meet board and teacher representatives Tuesday.

The teachers are asking for an average increase of 15.8 per cent but the school board is offering "not much more than five per cent," according to a spokesman.

German Spy Tipped Off Disastrous Dieppe Raid

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—A German intelligence officer who posed as a Canadian spy in wartime France helped put defences on the alert against the disastrous Canadian raid on Dieppe Aug. 19, 1942, a British writer says in a book published last week.

Edward Cookridge, an agent for the special operations executive during the Second World War, tells the story in a detailed narrative of secret service operations in occupied Europe titled Inside S.O.E.

His 609-page account of S.O.E. activities throughout Europe is based on interviews with more than 600 former agents on both sides as well as on a study of wartime documents. Official British permission to publish results of his research followed publication last spring of an official history of the S.O.E. in France by Oxford historian M. R. D. Foot.

Cookridge says Heinz Eckert, a German intelligence captain who had infiltrated the French resistance and intelligence movement by posing as a Canadian S. O. E. officer, found out about the Dieppe raid beforehand and enabled the Germans to prepare.

WASN'T BETRAYED

Terence Robertson, in his 1962 book Dieppe: The Shame and The Glory, concludes that "the Dieppe raid was not betrayed, nor was security broken."

However, Cookridge relates that forwarming contributed to the 68-per cent casualties among the 5,000 men of the Canadian 2nd Division at Dieppe—almost 1,000 killed, nearly 600 wounded and almost 2,000 taken prisoner.

Eckert, who also was instrumental in cracking the Allied intelligence organization in southern France, had spent two pre-war years in Canada as a commercial representative. With the help of a turncoat French resistance man, Eckert infiltrated anti-German organizations in northwestern France as "Harold Evans," a Canadian S.O.E. officer.

Through a duped woman resistance member, Eckert learned that an anti-Nazi officer of the German labor force in Dieppe had been providing the British with information about the harbor town. Eckert informed German military headquarters and "precautions were taken to strengthen the defences" at Dieppe.

Cookridge says Eckert named the anti-Nazi German officer in Dieppe as Niemeyer, but adds "I do not believe this was his real name."

ESCAPED TO ENGLAND

"He is still convinced that the German escaped with the survivors of the Canadian units to England and he says Niemeyer was employed after the war as an interpreter with Allied headquarters in Europe and later with the British control commission in Germany."

Eckert, now 50, was tried and sentenced to death by the French after the war but was later reprieved.

Cookridge traces the blunders and the triumphs of the S.O.E.—many of those agents were trained at Oshawa, Ont.—including the capture and courage of Canadians F. H. Pickersgill and J. K. MacAlister.

The two Canadian agents, caught by the Germans soon after they were parachuted into France in 1943, were executed in Buchenwald concentration camp the following year. Their story — which includes an escape attempt in Paris by Pickersgill, who killed two Germans with a broken bottle — was related in Foot's official history.

Cookridge says the Canadians were among a group of prisoners hanged from hooks on the wall of the Buchenwald crematorium.

Pickersgill was the brother of Transport Minister Pickersgill.

FOSTER PARENTS TOLD:

'Frustration Helps Child Development'

Frustration can be beneficial to children, a city psychologist told a group of foster parents Saturday.

In fact, children need a certain amount of frustration, although love, security and consistency in their background are still the most important things, said Dr. E. N. Pareis.

He was speaking at a one-day institute held by the Foster Parents Association of the Family and Children's Service at Goodwill Enterprises building.

A middle-of-the-road course in a child's training is the best, neither too restricted or too permissive, Dr. Pareis said.

Demand on a child should be increased gradually, as his ability increases. Too many demands too soon and he will become either withdrawn or a rebel, he said.

It might be better to spend time training adults rather than children in some cases, Dr. Pareis suggested.

Dr. Pareis is a psychologist at the provincial Mental Health Centre, a faculty member at the University of Victoria, and is also a consultant at the Family and Children's Service.

A question period was held following Dr. Pareis' talk on roadblocks to normal development. The foster parents later separated into three groups according to the ages of their foster children, to discuss problems.

Opening address at the institute was given by Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service.

About 90 persons, some from up-island, attended the conference.

Rites Tuesday For 51-Year Esquimalt Woman

Mrs. Jane Margaret Bradley, a resident of Esquimalt for 51 years, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday at the age of 83.

She was a member of St. Paul's Garrison Church, Esquimalt Women's Institute and the Golden Age Club. Her husband, Timothy Bradley, died here 30 years ago while serving with the Royal Canadian Army at Work Point Barracks.

Born at Head Chezzetcook, Nova Scotia, Mrs. Bradley came to Esquimalt with her husband in 1911. For the past four years she had resided at Matson Lodge, 847 Dupsmit Street.

Mrs. Bradley is survived by a son, Harold J. Bradley of Seal Beach, California; and two grandsons, Gordon Bradley, Toronto, and Michael Bradley, Victoria.

Rev. J. Anthony Roberts of St. Paul's Garrison Church, Esquimalt, will conduct funeral services in Sands Memorial Chapel Tuesday at 1 p.m., followed by cremation.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jackie Eckert, age 14, of Omaha, Neb., for her question:

What is an abacus?

The abacus was invented again and again by early traders. If we needed it we probably would invent it again. But the modern age has replaced the handy little counting frame with adding machines and computers. However, it still works.

We tend to think that this little counting gadget is very far behind the times. Our computers can solve big number problems in the blink of an eye. The abacus seems clumsy because the rows of counters on its rods must be moved back and forth by hand. But a few years ago these big ideas of our took a tumble.

The abacus is used in parts of Asia, and its counting skills have been handed down for generations. There are experts who can use it to add and subtract with great speed and accuracy. One of these abacus experts thought so well of himself that he challenged, of all things, a modern computer. The two contestants, man and machine, were given the same problem and the race began. Oh no, the machine did not win the contest. The man did — and the news astonished most of the world.

Our early ancestors used their fingers and toes as adding machines. From the beginning, it has been natural for mankind to count in tens. The fingers and toes were replaced with counters such as pebbles and shells. And sooner or later, each early civilization learned to arrange the counters in orderly rows on a table top. Almost all of them used the same orderly system, and almost all of them counted in tens.

Used in Middle Ages

Later the tables were grooved with lines to hold the counters. Next the counters were threaded like beads onto rods and the rods were set in the grooves of the table. This made it easy to slide the counting beads up and down and figuring became faster. But the best idea was yet to come. People saw that a whole table top was needed for the job. So the abacus was simplified to a square wooden frame. The rods threaded with beads were set either in rows from side to side or up and down.

The rods of abacus have sliding counters with different values. Each counter on the second row represents a unit of 10. Each counter on the third rod represents 100 and if there is a fourth row, each of its counters represents 1,000. The handy little gadget is so simple that no one needs to explain how it can be used to add and subtract.

In Europe during the Middle Ages, a well brought up child was given an abacus to start his education in arithmetic. He moved the counters back and forth and learned to carry one to solve problems of addition and to borrow one in problems of subtraction. You could have fun using an abacus to keep check of your pocket money. The first row of counters would stand for cents, the second row for dimes and the third row for dollars.

Two Seamen Win Prizes

Two Victoria men were winners of cash prizes this month in the defence department's money-saving suggestions award plan.

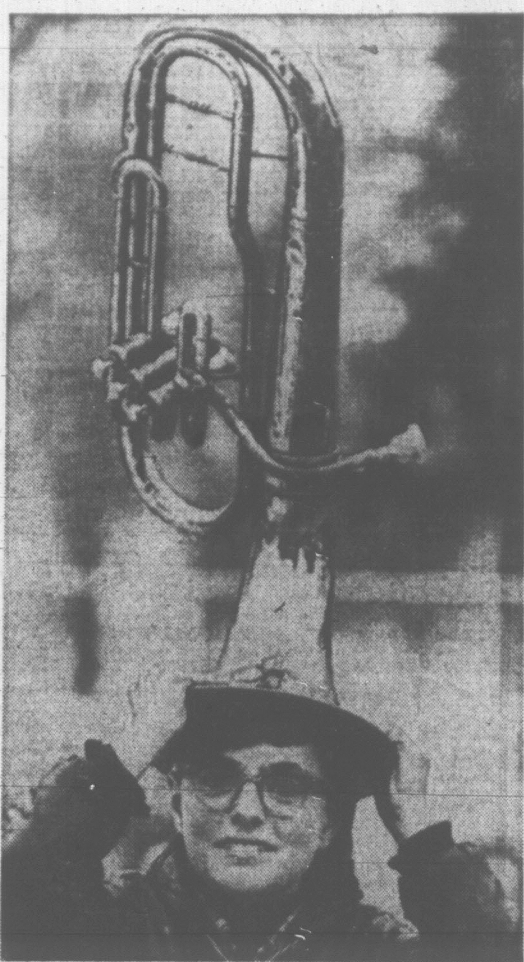

They are leading seaman G. L. Benjamin of the RCN diving establishment at Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, and H. H. Baker, 1711 Ash Road, a former electronics journeyman at CFB Esquimalt.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Jennifer Lee, age 8, of Tunnel Springs, Ala., for her question:

Can the mockingbird sing a song of his own?

The clever fellow can mock the notes and songs of the other birds. He can copy the throaty notes of a croaking frog. He can yap-yap like a dog and yell like a scrappy cat. He even can copy the noise of a rusty door or the squeaky wheel of a wagon. But the gifted mockingbird also has a song of his own.

He has many songs of his own and all of them are sweet, maybe the sweetest bird songs in the whole world. Sometimes, but not often the mockingbird sings a song of his own in the daytime. But as a rule, he sings them at night. When other birds are sleeping, he sometimes wakes up in the moonlight. Then, when the world is quiet, he sings a few songs of his own. He has the loveliest voice of all our birds and sings the loveliest of all tunes.

Don't Ruin Child With Undue Fussing

By Dr. WALTER ALVAREZ

There are, unfortunately, quite a few unwise parents who, by fussing over a child and overprotecting him, or wanting to keep him in bed, can ruin him! As Dr. H. C. Faig of the U.S. Air Force Hospital at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D.C., said, they wrap the child "in a cocoon of protective overindulgence."

Many a time I have been distressed to see such a youngster — usually an only child who was born to parents when they were around 40 — who was being treated by them as if he were going to die any day. Perhaps, if one might the child became a bit wheezy and asthmatic, after that the parents would not let him out of the house for fear he would catch cold; and they would not let him go to school.

Some, who had enough money, had him tutored at home. I remember such a child of an eccentric old doctor and an old school teacher, who was never allowed to go to school or to play with other children. His only companion was an old-maid aunt, and when let out of the house, he was wrapped in a shawl.

Many a time when I have tried to free such a child from his prison, the only result was that the parents immediately fired me. They were angry when I said that I could not hear the heart murmur that some other doctor thought he could hear; or because I did not think the child's asthma was so terrible, or because I begged them to let the child go to school.

Recently, I saw a boy like that — big for his age, well-developed and healthy looking. He was supposed to have a heart murmur, but I could not hear it. The chief physician to the city schools could not find anything wrong, and ordered the parents to send the lad to school. But the parents fought this order in courts. I, of course, was dismissed.

I remember well an old maid who married a wealthy old man who wanted a son. She presented him with the son when she was 45, but the poor soul was so afraid that the child would die that she begged the most eminent children's specialist in the state to come in three times a day to examine the boy and make sure that he was all right. It is sad for a child to be trapped in such a way of life.

Where We Work

LARGEST

Victoria is a major industrial area. This may come as a surprise to those who consider it more a retirement city than a working one.

But the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Manpower and Immigration Department list Victoria as a "major industrial area."

By definition, this means an area where the labor force is between 25,000 and 75,000 with 60 per cent or more engaged in non-farm work.

How do Victorians work?

The answer to this is contained in the Regional Index of B.C., published by the provincial industrial development, trade and commerce department.

This shows that 61 per cent of the labor force is employed in service industries.

The service industries are described as "the main sources of income" and the largest payrolls are those of the federal and provincial governments.

The report gives four reasons for the prominence of service industries:

- Victoria is the capital of B.C.;
- It is an important defence establishment;
- It is a "highly-desirable" retirement centre;
- It is a "favored" vacation site.

The total employment in service industries was 33,852 and since figures are based on the 1961 census it is higher today.

Of this number, 14,316 worked in public administration and defence and 13,020 in community, business and personal services with lesser numbers in finance, insurance, real estate, transportation, communication and other utilities.

The second most important source of employment is the trade industry with more than 9,000 working in the wholesale and retail business.

Manufacturing ranks third with the forest industries and shipbuilding playing the dominant roles.

Just over 6,000 are employed in this industry — less than one-fifth the number working in the service industries.

The construction industry employs nearly 3,000 persons and agriculture just over 1,000.

DAMAGED
BY FIRE

SOREL, Que. (CP)—A prototype hydrofoil being developed for the navy was damaged by fire Saturday at the shipyards of Marine Industries Ltd. 50 miles northeast of Montreal.

Officials said damage to the hydrofoil, an experimental submarine chaser, was "moderately heavy." They said the fire occurred during an engine test, apparently starting in the vessel's hydraulic system.

Marine Industries was working on the hull of the vessel being built by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. of Downsview, Ont., under a program estimated to cost $36,000,000.

DATSUN dominates
fall race season on
B.C. auto tracks

A Datsun 1600 Sports car driven by Don Lamont of New Westminster has racked up an impressive string of wins against top flight international competition in late 1966 season events at B.C. tracks.

Starting out in August against an average of 12 teams from B.C. and the Pacific Northwest, the Datsun 1600 placed first in its class in a series of Westwood fixtures including the Texaco Grand Prix, the VW/Porsche Trophy Races, the Fogg Motors Trophy Races and the A-H Production Race. At Penticton it also led its class in the Okanagan Hill Climb and scored additional firsts at the Inlet Acres Gymkana and the Royal City Autocross.

Moving up against "all comers", the 1600 took first place overall in the Improved Production Race at Westwood, September 18th. Two other Datsun Sports entries finished 2nd and 3rd respectively. On October 22nd Lamont covered 356 miles non-stop to tie down first place in Index of Performance, 2nd in class and 4th overall at the annual Westwood 6-hour endurance race which saw 40 entries start and 31 finish. The following day he placed 2nd overall in the Formula Libre Race and 3rd overall in the All-Modified Race.

Datsun wins have not been confined to tracks or to sports models. In early October a stock Datsun sedan driven by veteran rally driver Ed Desk covered 950 miles in 26 hours to finish first in the annual Cariboo Rally. Run mainly over mountain roads, this is one of the most gruelling tests for both car and driver in the Pacific Northwest.

LONDON DOCKERS HELP STOWAWAY ASHORE

LONDON (UPI) — London dockers unloading a Polish freighter today smuggled ashore a Polish stowaway they found hiding in the cargo.

Police identified the stowaway as Josef Turzyski, 35, who said he hid aboard the 3,219-ton freighter Jaroslav Dabrowsky at the Polish Baltic port of Gdynia four days ago.

The vessel was searched two weeks ago by Scotland Yard's special branch in the hunt for escaped master spy George Blake.

Disease Rides Flood Crest

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — A massive rescue force driven by fear of epidemic, worked today to pull one-third of Italy from the chaos and misery of the country's worst flood disaster. Clearing weather helped.

Inmates Aid Victims Of Escapees

HANEY (CP) — Inmates of the Haney correctional institution have made restitution to two families robbed last week by three escapees.

The 500 inmates drew $106 from their welfare fund and then passed the hat for additional money for gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller and a guest, Mrs. A. P. Auchstetter, were tied up in the Miller home Thursday and robbed of $38. The escapees also took a rifle, ammunition and a knife and then fled in the Auchstetter car.

Bruce Graydon, 18, Daniel Kitchener, 22, and Sandy McCurdy, 19, were later taken into custody and charged with assault, car theft, breaking and entering and theft, and escaping custody.

The Haney inmates gave $15 to the Millers Saturday and $81 to the Auchstetters, which included $68 for damage to their car.

They also gave hand-tooled leather purses to Mrs. Miller, her daughter, Thomas, and Mrs. Auchstetter.

The Haney institution, a minimum security prison, was established 10 years ago.

More than 150 bodies were reported recovered and the estimated death toll went to 300. It was feared that the final count would be far greater.

U.S. military bases in the country sent men and machines to join Italian soldiers, police and civilian volunteers in a rescue force of 250,000.

The situation was tense along sections of the Adige River in mountainous northern Trento province and in the lowlands of the Po Delta.

Throughout the stricken area, from south of Florence to north of Venice, water contamination and hundreds of thousands of drowned livestock increased the danger of epidemics.

Belluno, north of Venice, reported an outbreak of measles. Officials fear typhoid. Army teams went into hardest-hit areas to destroy animal carcasses with flame throwers.

Officials estimated that more than 1,000,000 of the 6,000,000 persons in the disaster area were desperately in need of food. The American, British, French and Swiss consulates in Florence urged all foreign tourists to leave the city.

In mountain towns and villages in neighboring east Austria, an estimated 23 persons were dead after four days of blizzards and torrential rains.

100,000 Riot In New Delhi; 500 Injured

NEW DELHI (CP) — Five persons were feared killed and at least 500 were injured in violent clashes outside Parliament here today between police and a crowd of Hindus demanding a ban on the slaughter of cows.

Adventurous Boy Falls To Death

BURNABY (CP) — A six-year-old Vancouver boy who told his parents he was going on an adventure was found dead today near the base of a 200-foot cliff on Burnaby Mountain.

Searchers found the body of Jon Eisenman on a ledge about 180 feet from the top.

The youngster disappeared about 4 p.m. Sunday during a family visit to a park on the mountain.

Forty policemen and several hundred civilians, including mountain experts, searched until after midnight and then resumed at dawn.

The body was found about 8 a.m. today.

Earlier, searchers found the body of David D. Turnell, 17, who disappeared from his home Oct. 1.

Two searchers reported missing in the hunt for the Eisenman boy were found safe later in the morning.

The army was called in to try to restore order after police opened fire on thousands of Hindu holy men who marched on Parliament chanting "stop killing our holy mother cow."

The dead included a policeman who was stoned to death by the angry crowd. More than 70 policemen were among the injured.

A 48-hour curfew was imposed on New Delhi and surrounding areas.

INCITED MOB

One of a group of holy men who spearheaded the crowd was killed by the gunfire. The dead holy man was removed from outside the gate of the Indian news agency, The Press Trust of India, while several others took refuge in the agency's garden.

Demonstrators tore down walls to get bricks to throw as some holy men were seen pleading with bands of young men to stop violence.

A ban of meetings of five or more persons was immediately clamped on the Indian capital as police tried to clear the streets of gangs of youths throwing stones, burning buildings, smashing windows and looting stores.

Buildings housing the all-India radio were set on fire and windows of government offices smashed.

More than 500 persons were admitted to various city hospitals with injuries suffered during the rioting and clashes with police.

The assault on Parliament followed the biggest demonstration ever staged in India to demand legal protection for the cow.

Vastly outnumbered police were repulsed several times before they mounted an offensive which sent rioters scattering from outside the parliament building.

The main crowd of at least 100,000 broke up, running in all directions. But small groups of youthful hoodlums set out on a wild rampage, stoning and burning cars, threatening for-

SLANDER CHARGE

Bennett Seeks Suit End

OTTAWA (CP) — Counsel for Premier Bennett of British Columbia asked the Supreme Court of Canada today for permission to appeal an order for retrial of a slander suit against him.

The court reserved decision after argument by lawyer George Murray for Mr. Bennett and by lawyer Tom Berger for George E. P. Jones, who is making the charges against the premier.

Mr. Murray's arguments hinged on a decision by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes to dismiss the suit in the B.C. Supreme Court without sending the case to the jury.

Jones appealed the decision, won a retrial by order of the B.C. Appeal Court, and will renew his action with another trial before the B.C. Supreme Court Jan. 9 if the premier loses today's request for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Jones was charged by the B.C. attorney-general Oct. 2, 1964, on two counts of unlawfully accepting a benefit as chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission.

FORCED TO RETIRE

When the counts were thrown out in county court, the Bennett government introduced a bill in the legislature compelling the retirement of Jones from his job.

Slander was alleged in remarks by the premier on March 5, 1965, at a time when the bill was before the legislature and the attorney-general still had an action on the criminal charges before the courts.

Mr. Bennett was quoted as saying to a meeting of the Victoria Social Credit Association: "I'm not going to talk about the Jones boy. I could say a lot, but let me just assure you of this; the position taken by the government is the right position."

Jones' counsel claims this was "intended to mean Jones was 'dishonest and unfit to act as chairman of the purchasing commission and ought to be removed from office.'"

CLAIMS DAMAGE DONE

Mr. Berger said today the words had done "unfolding damage to Mr. Jones' reputation as executive and administrator."

The appeal court said the original B.C. Supreme Court jury should have been allowed to decide whether the actions of the government in continuing its court action and in introducing the legislation could be reconciled.

Millard Mooney In Small Boat

A long-time Victoria alderman and pillar of civic endeavors, Millard Henry Mooney, died Sunday in a boat accident on Cowichan River.

He lost his life while attempting to cross the swift-flowing river, five miles west of Duncan.

Duncan RCMP today indicated it is not yet certain whether Mr. Mooney was drowned or died from a heart attack resulting from the accident.

Mr. Mooney and his son-in-law Gordon Meyer, also of Victoria, had travelled up the river by car with a carport boat to examine some property in which Mr. Mooney was interested. The boat was launched at a point where Riverbottom Road meets the river.

Mr. Meyer told The Times it was necessary to cross the river at a point where it narrowed. Because of the fast current, they decided only one person should go in the small boat at one time.

THREW LINE

"I crossed the river then threw a line back so he could pull back the boat," Mr. Meyer said.

When Mr. Mooney began his crossing the boat headed for some rapids. Mr. Mooney, described as a strong swimmer, got out of the boat but apparently was in difficulty in the cold water.

Mr. Meyer ran along the bank trying to reach his father-in-law, then dived in after him. He dragged him to the river bank and applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and artificial respiration. But Mr. Mooney did not respond.

Duncan coroner Dr. Robert R. Wilson was called to the scene. He pronounced Mr. Mooney dead. Dr. Wilson has called an enquiry.

ON FRIDAY

Mr. Mooney's body was taken to Duncan and was to be brought to Victoria today. Chaplain's Funeral Chapel here is in charge of arrangements and will announce the date of the funeral.

Mr. Mooney marked his 60th birthday Friday.

His death shocked City Hall Mayor Alfred Toone said: "It's most shocking to hear of the untimely death of former alderman Millard Mooney. The accident is a tragedy. He will be remembered for the many years of service he gave to his community. The deepest sympathy of council is extended to his wife and family."

VARIED CAREER

Mr. Mooney's life for the past 31 years has been wrapped up in community effort and politics in Victoria. But prior to his arrival here in 1935 he had a varied and challenging career on the prairies.

His family is of Irish descent (the name is from the Gaelic Maonagh) but both his father and grandfather were born in Ontario. Millard Mooney was born at Weyburn, Saskatchewan, Nov. 4, 1906, where his family homesteaded.

SPRINT RECORD

As a boy he was active in sports, earning the half-mile sprint record for Western Canada and starring in boxing and wrestling.

"I could run and jump like a deer," he would recall.

His memories of homestead life often were painful.

'PEARSON FORMULA' WANTED

CALGARY (CP) — William Kay, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Sunday postal employees will accept nothing but the "Pearson formula" of a 36-per-cent wage increase and an interim increase of 15 per cent while wage negotiations are under way.

Otherwise, he said, the workers will walk off their jobs.

He made the statement while addressing a rally attended by about 600 workers.

Workers at the rally endorsed a resolution protesting a federal labor bill which would allow them to bargain for wages only, and exclude working conditions and fringe benefits. The bill has reached the committee stage in the House of Commons.

He said the union membership has voted 87 per cent in favor of strike action if wage negotiations with the federal government break down.

Roger Decarie, president of the 9,000-member Letter Carriers Union, Saturday night announced results of a national referendum that produced a 90-per-cent vote in favor of empowering the national executive to call a strike.

Letter carriers seek a 50-cent-an-hour increase now—a 20-per-cent raise—and want to negotiate for an additional 19 per cent next year.

Mailmen Back Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Letter carriers have authorized their union executive to call a national strike if current pay talks with the federal government break down.

WANTED TO PUSH PRICE OF COPPER UP

Plot to Bomb Zambia Bridge Bared

NEW YORK (AP) — To men were held today in an alleged international plot to push up the world price of copper by blowing up a vital railway bridge in the African country of Zambia, a major exporter of the metal.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington that the men had tried to bribe two Miami, Fla., engineers to destroy the bridge, located on the main rail route used to ship copper from the landlocked Commonwealth country.

The two arrested were identified as Rolf Duenbier, 36, vice-president and New York manager of a West German metals firm, and Jay Aubrey Elliott, 31, a travelling representative for the same concern.

Investigators noted that world copper prices fell almost 50 per cent from April to August this year, although there has been some recovery recently. They appeared to be exploring two theories on the alleged plot.

The price decline hurts speculators dealing in futures contracts, for they can re-sell only at a loss when taking delivery now at the old high price. Cutting off the copper supply from Zambia, the free world's largest exporter of the metal, would raise prices sharply. This would enable the futures speculator to make up his apparent losses.

The second way to benefit from such a price rise would be to have advance knowledge it was coming, and buy now at the low price for later selling.

Both of the arrested men were charged with violating of a part of the Neutrality Security Act which prohibits a conspiracy in the United States to injure or destroy property located in a foreign country with which the United States is at peace.

Maximum penalty for conviction under the statute is three years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Hoover said the pair offered $25,000 plus expenses to Philip Armstrong and Paul Woodburn Caudell, Miami marine engineers and licensed ship's masters, to blow up the bridge.

Officials in Lusaka, Zambia, expressed surprise at reports of the plot. It was understood that troops would be moved in to guard the bridge, a 1,398-foot span over the Kafue River 30 miles south of Lusaka, the Zambian capital.

The FBI said Armstrong and Caudell are co-operating and neither is a defendant in the case. Nor is the metals firm, Frederick Zoellner Corp., implicated in the charges, the FBI said.

The main crowd of at least 100,000 broke up, running in all directions. But small groups of youthful hoodlums set out on a wild rampage, stoning and burning cars, threatening for-

Race-Baiting Candidates Condemned by Johnson

WASHINGTON (CP) — The leading players read their final lines Sunday for the U.S. congressional election Tuesday which generally is expected to preserve a Democratic-party majority.

President Johnson from his Texas ranch struck at what he called second-rate men who seek to turn white American antagonism against the Negro—the so-called white backlash—into a "political advantage that poisons public life."

Richard Nixon, for whom Tuesday's results may well govern his chance at another shot at the American presidency in 1968, accused the president of a no-win policy in Viet Nam and one-man government contrary to the American constitution.

But he said his expectations of a Republican gain, if realized, should not encourage the Communists.

Perhaps 50,000,000 Americans' emotions are also up this year

—a record for these off-year or non-presidential elections—will vote Tuesday in a mixed range of weather conditions across the country, it is estimated. The existing high of 53,500,000 was set in 1963.

But, as an Associated Press poll surmised, few expect any Republican resurgence breaking the Democratic party grip on Congress since 1954.

PREDICT SMALL GAIN

With all 435 seats in the House of Representatives at stake, The AP forecast a net Republican gain of fewer than 30.

The Democratic edge in the 89th Congress was 295 to 140.

There are 35 of the 100 Senate seats involved, and The AP said the Republicans may make a net gain of one—meaning they will have 34 and the Democrats 66.

Thirty-five of the 50 state governments are also up this year and The AP said the Republican may pick up five or six compared with their standing now of 17 to 33 Democrats.

As well, 45 of the states are electing new legislatures and there are thousands of lesser state and municipal offices to be filled.

A welter of issues, many of them bread-and-butter ones at the local level, have clouded predictions of the outcome despite agreement that the Vietnam war, inflation and the 21,000,000 American Negroes are primary national concerns.

LB HITS OUT

Sunday, the president, in an after-church press conference—be sat out the campaign finale to rest for minor surgery—fired at the danger of the white backlash as threatening to "vest power in the hands of second-rate men whose only qualification

Grape Tests Heady Stuff For Wine Connoisseurs

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The connoisseurs of fine wines are rejoicing. Preliminary growing trials at the Dominion Experimental Farm this season indicate southern Vancouver Island can become a major producer of European grapes for wine-making.

The trial included varieties which produce some of the finest wines in Europe.

The research centre started testing European grapes in 1964.

The results have amazed researchers, especially director Harry Anderson who has taken under his wing the long-range project.

"Despite a poor grape-growing season, the fruit ripened," he said. "The outlook for growing grapes on a commercial scale in this area is promising."

Co-operating with the research centre is Alan Lither, district horticulturist. He also is planting the varieties at up-Island points.

The tests are of economic importance to the province because 77 per cent of all wine sold in Canada is produced in B.C.

British Columbians are fast becoming wine-lovers.

According to a Brewing in Canada report, they drink twice as much wine as in Ontario.

Figures show every 100 British Columbians consume 62 gallons of wine a year.

10 VARIETIES

The experimental farm's test this year involved only 10 varieties. Eight bore fruit for the first time. Another 40 varieties, acquired later, have yet to mature. It takes between three to five years for a vine to fruit.

The remarkable feature in the tests is the sugar content of the grapes. It varied from 16 to 22 per cent — depending on the variety.

A wine grape must have a sugar content of no less than 15.

FROM ENGLAND

Mr. Anderson has been importing the grapes from an English research centre which has one of the largest collection of varieties in the world — German, Italian, French, Spanish, Russian.

In the past commercial grape-growing on the island hasn't been too successful because the varieties were not quite suited to the climate. Those that were — American grapes — are not considered as good as the imported vines for wine-making.

But new varieties developed in Europe for growing in cooler areas have changed the picture. Some of these are used for making high-quality wines.

Mr. Anderson said it will take a few years before tests are completed on the European grapes.

60 Out of Work As Camp Closed At Jordan River

Council Report 'Misinterpreted'

Dr. P. C. Trussell, director of the British Columbia Research Council, today denied his organization raised any fundamental criticism of the proposed system for dumping mine tailings into the bottom of Buttle Lake.

At the same time Resources Minister Ray Williston said he has turned over a copy of the 10-page BCRC report to government engineers for an assessment.

He declined further comment pending advice from the engineers "so that I can talk intelligently about this matter."

Dr. Trussell, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, said the Campbell River Water Board requested it to report on the technical information supplied by consultant engineers for Western Mines Ltd. to the Pollution Control Board.

He said the report agreed with the procedure in principle but the BCRC saw only the preliminary sketches for the dumping system so it added a precautionary paragraph that said:

"It is expected that minor modifications to the design of the proposed system, as shown in the sketch, may be required."

He said this had been misinterpreted by a Vancouver newspaper that the engineering data was inadequate.

'AWKWARD POSITION'

"It has put us in an awkward position," said Dr. Trussell. "We do not want to become involved in a conflict—we're just interested in the technical aspects."

The intent of the report was to point out that there was further work yet to be done and not to question the technical competence of the consultants.

He said the final design of the dumping system has not been completed and he knew that the consultants already were considering some of the modifications suggested by the research council on the basis of the preliminary plans it saw.

NO FEARS

Dr. Trussell emphasized that the lake-bottom dumping system has been used elsewhere satisfactorily and the research council does not fear that it poses any fundamental threat "to human health or fish life."

He said he did not feel the research council's report in itself justified a review of the Pollution Control Board's permit because "we do feel that if it is carried out properly there should be no problem."

"But we couldn't be completely sure that, without the suggested modifications, it would work satisfactorily to the maximum degree."

He also pointed out that the Pollution Control Board had been given more information than the research council because it had the benefit of oral submissions from the consultants whereas the BCRC could only examine the written data presented to the board.

SET FOR STRIKE is the United Appeal rolling up a total of $349,874 to date. Campaign has passed the three-quarter mark with 77.4 per cent of the Community Chest's $452,000 need with over $50,000 from the residential canvass alone. Service and civilian personnel of the Pacific Maritime Command have sailed past their goal, giving $4,601 more than their fair share of $17,601.

Trouble-Hit WeatherShip Tries Again

The trouble-beset weather ship, Vancouver, will try again this week to pass the test she flunked just over a month ago.

The $12 million vessel sailed today for four days of sea trials off Vancouver Island's west coast.

The last time she ventured into open water an electrical circuit popped and she flunked home.

If all goes well on her present trip, the Department of Transport vessel will be all set to take up duties on weather station Papa.

INTO DRYDOCK

To do this, the Vancouver will enter drydock over the weekend. Then she's all set for a pre-Christmas shakedown cruise to Honolulu and a January start at her new job.

Behind her, when she finally makes the grade, will be a long line of expensive upsets, first of which was discovered while she was still in the hands of her builders, Burrard Shipyard and Marine Ways Ltd.

At that time, it was discovered that an error had been made in calculating her stability.

CONCRETE USED

As a result, tons of concrete had to be poured into her lower holds to correct the fault.

On arrival in Victoria, a fault was discovered in one of the Vancouver's generating shafts which necessitated a substantial delay while five other shafts were thoroughly examined and a new shaft was being ordered from Britain.

Throughout this time, the Vancouver was popping in and out of drydock for experts to try and tune in her ultra sensitive radar, and a major overhaul of electrical circuits.

Move Follows Dismissal Of Drivers

Sixty loggers at Jordan River lost their jobs today when the camp was closed by the company.

The International Woodworkers of America said four drivers were dismissed this morning, one of whom "wasn't even at work."

"Consequently, the manager then shut the camp down," said union president Murray Drew.

D. F. McNeil, manager of Canadian Puget Sound Lumber & Timber, declined comment.

The IWA said grievances are pending on the issue. A possible walkout by loggers one week ago was averted after the company changed the marshalling time to 7:15 a.m. from 7:30 a.m.

Mr. Drew said the union "encouraged and instructed" the men not to walk out "which in my opinion the company wanted them to do."

OVERTIME BAN

The crew decided if it was necessary to start 15 minutes earlier they would, but because of previous layoffs and the time change "it was agreed unanimously there would be a ban on all overtime."

Mr. Drew said since then "the management of this company has intimidated the crew in many ways."

Last Friday, two truck drivers were fired when they refused to take their vehicles from a garage at 7:20 a.m. because, said the IWA, the posted starting time of work is 8 a.m.

"The whole thing hinges on the fellows deciding not to work overtime while there were layoffs," he said.

SAVES MONEY

"The company finds it more economical to pay time and a half to individuals on overtime rates than hire additional people."

"The fellows also realize that in working these overtime hours they are only hastening the day when they would be laid off because the company has logged its quota."

Mr. Drew said a company notice states crummies will leave camp at 7:15 a.m. to start work at 8 a.m. and arrive back in camp by 5 p.m.

But even this, he said, was outside both a minimum wage order and the Hours of Work Act which state rest periods and lunch breaks must be included.

A: Besides this account of her years in a Japanese prison camp, Mrs. Keith has written "Land Below the Wind," about life in prewar North Borneo, "White Man Returns," her impressions of postwar Southeast Asia, and "Bare Feet in the Palace," an account of political changes in the Philippines. Her latest book, "Children of Allah," published last February, is about nine years she spent in Libya with her foster husband.

Youth Jailed 37 Days After 'Atrocity' At Ross Bay Cemetery

A youth who stole a grave-stone and flowers from Ross Bay Cemetery during a wine-drinking spree was jailed today for 37 days.

Brian Proctor, 19, of HMCS St. Croix, received the one-month term for the theft and an additional seven days for impaired driving. He was also barred from driving for a year.

He was arrested Oct. 27 after his car rammed a tree on Calumet. Police investigating the accident found the 18-by-24-inch grave marker worth about $30 in the car trunk. The driver admitted taking it after stopping with a friend in the cemetery to drink a bottle of wine.

Magistrate Oster termed the cemetery vandalism "a disgrace, a disrespect for the dead, an affront to the bereaved and an outrage to the public generally."

Proctor was also ordered to restore the damaged grave "to the condition it was in before you elected to commit this atrocity."

"Such ghastly and indecent behavior must be deterred," said the magistrate in rejecting a probation officer's recommendation for suspended sentence.

Ross Bay Cemetery has been the site of repeated vandalism in recent months. Close to 50 tombstones have been smashed, cracked or toppled during the summer.

FUND STAYS OPEN

Over $2,500
Donated
For Aberfan

Victoria Cymrodorion Society today announced that donations to the Aberfan disaster fund in Victoria have exceeded $2,500.

"We shall keep the fund open until the end of November and then forward the money to Aberfan," said Mrs. Phyllis Hill, president of the society.

"The response from all parts of Vancouver Island has been very heart-warming."

Members of the Victoria society travelled to Vancouver in a private bus Sunday to attend a memorial service for the disaster victims held in First Baptist Church.

SONG FESTIVAL

The congregation, including Welsh residents of the lower mainland, exceeded 650. Following the service, the Cambrian Society of Vancouver held its twice yearly song festival known as the Gymnafu Gani.

"The singing was inspiring," Mrs. Hill said, "but the usual joyous spirit was lacking because we were all so saddened by the Aberfan disaster."

Mrs. Hill said her cousins, Mrs. Enid Harbord and Mrs. Rae Thomas, were among the thousands taking part in rescue work after parts of the village were buried in a black avalanche of coal slag and slime.

"I have a letter from them in which they describe the terrible conditions prevailing. Five chapels in the area were used as mortuaries as bodies were recovered from the avalanche."

Saanich Probe Scheduled For Nov. 18

A public inquiry into the activities of members of the Saanich assessment department will open next week.

It will be held at 10 a.m. in the Saanich council chamber on Friday, Nov. 18, it was announced today.

The inquiry will be conducted by James Baird, deputy inspector of municipalities, following an earlier request by Saanich council.

Saanich announced last month that members of the assessment department incorporated a company called Royal Oak Estates Limited which lists as its objects the purchase and sale of stocks and securities and of real and personal property.

The municipality also said the company bought and sold two lots in "non-strategic" parts of Saanich. While it believed no wrongdoing was intended, an inquiry was advisable.

Museum Closed Friday

Provincial Government offices and the Provincial Museum will be closed in observance of Remembrance Day Friday.

IF JAYNE EVER RETURNS...

The visit of actress Jayne Mansfield to the city last week will result in a change of procedure for Sunday visitors to Greater Victoria courts.

In a brief statement Mayor A. W. Toome said investigations into Miss Mansfield's visit to the courtroom Oct. 30 had brought "to our attention a circumstance not fully governed by authoritative procedure."

DIRECTIVE

He added that a directive laying down definite procedure for the future would be issued following discussions with the senior magistrate and the magistrate's court committee.

Magistrate William Oster had a similar terse comment.

"I have had a report and I have taken what I consider to be appropriate action," he said. "I have no further comment."

The investigation was called for when, according to eye-witnesses, Miss Mansfield lowered the dignity of the courts by conducting a brief mock trial of one of her pet chihuahuas dogs.

Liquor Stolen From Restaurant

Five bottles of liquor were stolen when thieves broke into The Conch and Four restaurant in Bastion Square Sunday evening.

City detectives arrested three youths a short time later.

George Edwards, 24, Patrick Radford, 19 and Dennis Fontaine, 19, had their case postponed a week for election when they appeared in central court today jointly charged with breaking, entering and theft.

They gave their address as a downtown hotel.

Entry to the restaurant was gained by smashing a front window.

Ten packages of cigarettes were taken from Mal's Cafe, 2251 Government, in a break-in reported Saturday morning.

An unknown quantity of silver was taken from the beverage room of the Douglas Hotel when the cigarette machine was forced open. Police said entry was likely gained through the Pandora Avenue entrance doors.

An 11-year-old boy admitted entering Strawberry-Vale school on Burrside near Wilkinson and taking about $60 worth of stationery goods, a football and fire extinguisher.

Uvic Professor Chicago-Bound

A visiting professor at the University of Victoria will conduct a seminar this week at the University of Chicago.

He is Dr. L. P. Harvey, of the University of London, England, an expert on Spanish Islam.

Dr. Harvey was invited to Chicago to lecture on "crypto-Islam" and on the interaction of Islam and Spanish literature.

He also pointed out that the Pollution Control Board had been given more information than the research council because it had the benefit of oral submissions from the consultants whereas the BCRC could only examine the written data presented to the board.

PASSENGER IN CAR

Serious Injuries Suffered by Woman

Two women injured in weekend traffic accidents are in improved condition today.

Mrs. Helen Jack, 7654 Patricia Bay Highway, suffered a fractured skull, broken vertebrae, cracked ribs and wrist and deep face cuts early Saturday when the car in which she was riding went out of control on Mount Newton Cross Road.

A spokesman at Rest Haven Hospital described her condition as "fair" today.

Ronald Sylvester, the other occupant of the car, spent Saturday night in the same hospital. Sylvester, who lives at 7654 Patricia Bay Highway, was found lying in some brush near the crash about three-quarters of an hour after the accident. He suffered minor injuries.

A 73-year-old pedestrian is in "fairly good" condition in the intensive care unit at Royal Jubilee Hospital after she was in collision with a truck on Pandora near Belmont Saturday.

Miss Francis Smith, 1524 Gladstone, received a broken leg and wrist in the mishap.

Dimas Craveiro, 1231 Balmoral, driver of the truck, struck a car driven by Mrs. Jean Campbell, 1543 Eiford, in trying to avoid Miss Smith as she crossed Pandora, police reported.

Sleeping Driver Pays $300 Fine

Frederick Richardson, 2630 Deville Road, was fined $300 in central court today when he pleaded guilty to having care and control of an auto while impaired.

He was found asleep on the seat of his parked car Saturday on the shoulder of Anchorage Road near Lagoon Road.

Fire Engines Burn

CHETWYND (CP) — All of the fire-fighting equipment in the village of Chetwynd in northern B.C. was destroyed Saturday in a fire at the community's frame fire hall. ## 11,000 U.S. Shipyard Workers Out

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Negotiations were at a standstill and approximately 11,000 west coast shipyard workers still off the job today as electrical worker pickets kept 13 yards shut down.

A United States federal mediation service spokesman said only about 1,100 electrical workers were on strike at yards in the San Francisco, Portland and Seattle areas but other unions were recognizing the picket lines.

Flag Burned in Viet Nam Protest

OTTAWA (UPI)—Two youths burned the Canadian flag today in front of the Parliament Buildings and promptly got escorted away by the RCMP.

In New Delhi;
500 Injured

NEW DELHI (CP)—Five persons were feared killed and at least 500 were injured in violent clashes outside Parliament here today between police and a crowd of Hindus demanding a ban on the slaughter of cows.

The army was called in to try to restore order after police opened fire on thousands of Hindu holy men who marched on Parliament chanting "stop killing our holy mother cow."

The dead included a policeman who was stoned to death by the angry crowd. More than 70 policemen were among the injured.

A 48-hour curfew was imposed on New Delhi and surrounding areas.

INCITED MOBS

One of a group of holy men who spearheaded the crowd was killed by the gunfire. The dead holy man was removed from outside the gate of the Indian news agency. The Press Trust of India, while several others took refuge in the agency's garden.

Demonstrators tore down walls to get bricks to throw as some holy men were seen pleading with hands of young men to stop violence.

A ban on meetings of five or more persons was immediately clamped on the Indian capital as police tried to clear the streets of gangs of youths throwing stones, burning buildings, smashing windows and looting stores.

Buildings housing the all-India radio were set on fire and windows of government offices smashed.

More than 500 persons were admitted to various city hospitals with injuries suffered during the rioting and clashes with police.

The assault on Parliament followed the biggest demonstration ever staged in India to demand legal protection for the cow.

Vastly outnumbered police were repulsed several times before they mounted an offensive which sent rioters scattering from outside the parliament building.

The main crowd of at least 100,000 broke up, running in all directions. But small groups of youthful hoodlums set out on a wild rampage, stoning and burning cars, threatening for

Race-Baiting Candidates
Condemned by Johnson

WASHINGTON (CP)—The leading players read their final lines Sunday for the U.S. congressional election Tuesday which generally is expected to preserve a Democratic party majority.

President Johnson from his Texas ranch struck at what he called second-rate men who seek to turn white American antagonism against the Negro into a political advantage that "poisons public life."

Richard Nixon, for whom Tuesday's results may well govern his chance at another shot at the American presidency in 1968, accused the president of a no-win policy in Viet Nam and one-man government contrary to the American constitution. But he said his expectations of a Republican gain, if realized, should not encourage the Communists.

a record for these off-year or non-presidential elections—will vote Tuesday in a mixed range of weather conditions across the country, it is estimated. The existing high of 53,500,000 was set in 1963.

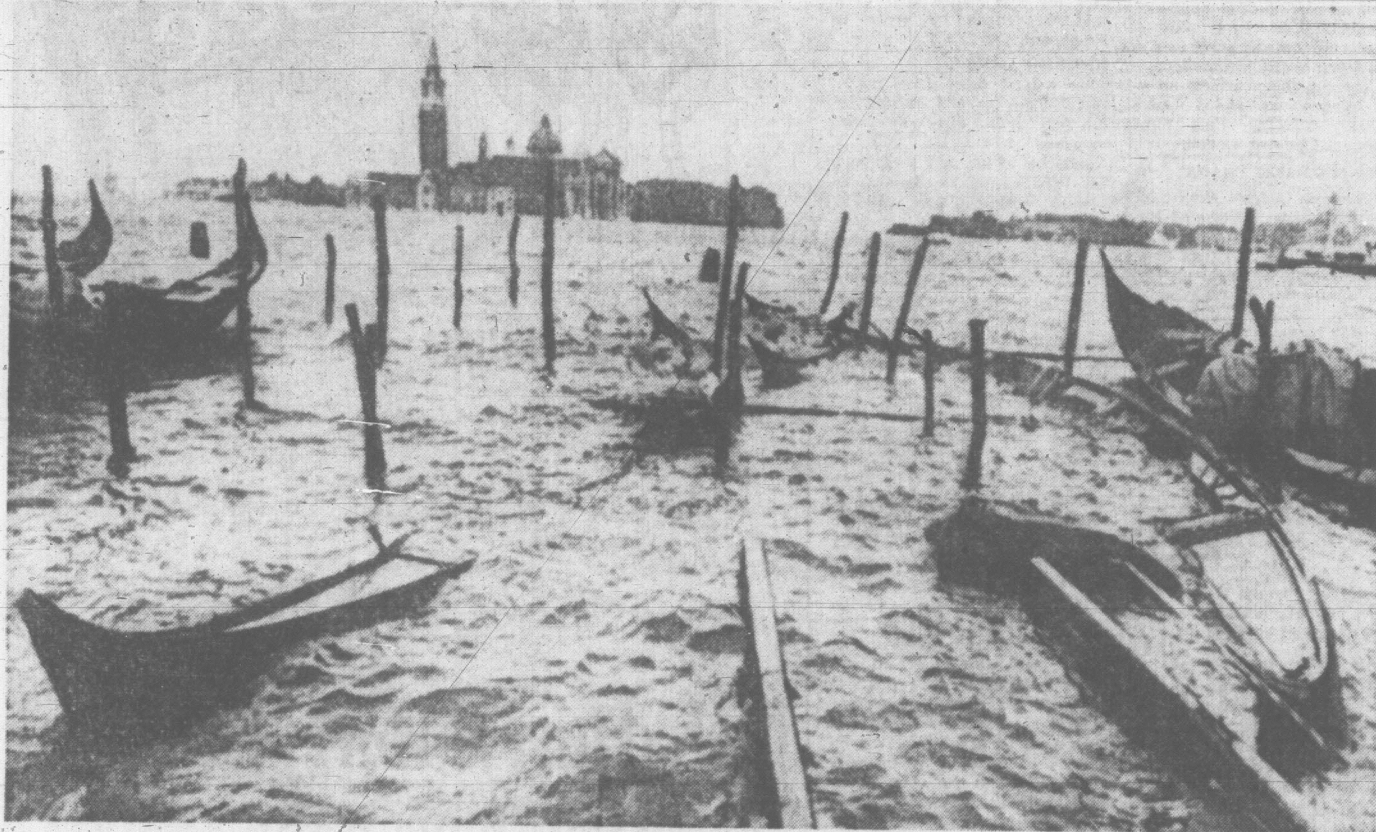

But, as an Associated Press poll surmised, few expect any Republican resurgence breaking the Democratic party grip on Congress since 1954.

PREDICT SMALL GAIN

With all 435 seats in the House of Representatives at stake, The AP forecast a net Republican gain of fewer than 30.

The Democratic edge in the 89th Congress was 295 to 140. There are 35 of the 100 Senate seats involved, and The AP said the Republicans may make a net gain of one—meaning they will have 51 and the Democrats 49.

BURNABY (CP)—A six-year-old Vancouver boy who told his parents he was going on an adventure was found dead today near the base of a 200-foot cliff on Burnaby Mountain.

Searchers found the body of Jon Eisenman on a ledge about 180 feet from the top.

The youngster disappeared about 4 p.m. Sunday during a family visit to a park on the mountain.

Forty policemen and several hundred civilians, including mountain experts, searched until after midnight and then resumed at dawn.

The body was found about 8 a.m. today.

Earlier, searchers found the body of David D. Turnell, 17, who disappeared from his home Oct. 1.

More than 150 bodies were reported recovered and the estimated death toll went to 300. It was feared that the final count would be far greater.

U.S. military bases in the country sent men and machines to join Italian soldiers, police and civilian volunteers in a rescue force of 250,000.

The situation was tense along sections of the Adige River in mountainous northern Trento province and in the lowlands of the Po Delta.

Throughout the stricken area, from south of Florence to north of Venice, water contamination and hundreds of thousands of drowned livestock increased the danger of epidemics.

Belluno, north of Venice, reported an outbreak of measles. Officials fear typhoid. Army teams went into hardest hit areas to destroy animal carcasses with flame throwers.

Officials estimated that more than 1,000,000 of the 6,000,000 persons in the disaster area were desperately in need of food. The American, British, French and Swiss consulates in Florence urged all foreign tourists to leave the city.

In mountain towns and villages in neighboring east Austria, an estimated 23 persons were dead after four days of blizzards and torrential rains.

CRACKDOWN

SAIGON (AP)—The government is cracking down on Saigon's busy black market, which specializes in U.S. military post exchange goods, the official Viet Nam press said today.

'PEARSON FORMULA'
WANTED

CALGARY (CP)—William Kay, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Sunday postal employees will accept nothing but the "Pearson formula" of a 36-per-cent wage increase and an interim increase of 18 per cent while wage negotiations are under way.

Otherwise, he said, the workers will walk off their jobs.

He made the statement while addressing a rally attended by about 600 workers.

Mr. Kay said postal workers across Canada are solidly united, "and if there is a national strike, we will walk off as one man."

The postal workers are asking an increase of $1 an hour for letter carriers and $1.16 an hour for mail handlers.

Workers at the rally endorsed a resolution protesting a federal labor bill which would allow them to bargain for wages only, and exclude working conditions and fringe benefits. The bill has reached the committee stage in the House of Commons.

He said the union membership has voted 87 per cent in favor of strike action if wage negotiations with the federal government break down.

OTTAWA (CP)—Letter carriers have authorized their union executive to call a national strike if current pay talks with the federal government break down.

SLANDER CHARGE

Bennett Seeks Suit End

OTTAWA (CP)—Counsel for Premier Bennett of British Columbia asked the Supreme Court of Canada today for permission to appeal an order for retrial of a slander suit against him.

The court reserved decision after argument by lawyer George Murray for Mr. Bennett and by lawyer Tom Berger for George E. P. Jones, who is making the charges against the premier.

Mr. Murray's arguments hinged on a decision by Justice H.W. McInnes to dismiss the suit in the B.C. Supreme Court without sending the case to the jury.

Jones appealed the decision, won a retrial by order of the B.C. Appeal Court, and will renew his action with another trial before the B.C. Supreme Court Jan. 9 if the premier loses today's request for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Jones was charged by the B.C. attorney-general Oct. 2, 1964, on two counts of unlawfully accepting a benefit as chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission.

FORCED TO RETIRE

When the counts were thrown out in county court, the Bennett government introduced a bill in the legislature compelling the retirement of Jones from his job.

Slander was alleged in remarks by the premier on March 5, 1965, at a time when the bill was before the legislature and the attorney-general still had an action on the criminal charges before the courts.

Mr. Bennett was quoted as saying to a meeting of the Victoria Social Credit Association: "I'm not going to talk about the Jones boy. I could say a lot, but let me just assure you of this; the position taken by the government is the right position."

Jones' counsel claims this was intended to mean Jones was "dishonest and unfit to act as chairman of the purchasing commission and ought to be removed from office."

CLAIMS: DAMAGE DONE

Mr. Berger said today the words had done "untold damage to Mr. Jones' reputation as executive and administrator."

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller and a guest, Mrs. A. P. Auchstetter, were tied up in the Miller home Thursday and robbed of $38. The escapees also took a rifle, ammunition, and a knife and then fled in the Auchstetter car.

Bruce Graydon, 18, Daniel Kitchener, 22, and Sandy McCurdy, 19, were later taken into custody and charged with assault, car theft, breaking and entering and theft, and escaping custody.

The Haney inmates gave $15 to the Millers Saturday and $91 to the Auchstetters, which included $68 for damage to their car.

LONDON DOCKERS HELP
STOWAWAY ASHORE

LONDON (UPI)—London dockers unloading a Polish freighter today smuggled ashore a Polish stowaway they found hiding in the cargo.

Police identified the stowaway as Josef Turzynski, 35, who said he hid aboard the 3,219-ton freighter Jaroslav Dabrowsky at the Polish Baltic port of Gdynia four days ago.

The vessel was searched two weeks ago by Scotland Yard's special branch in the hunt for escaped master spy George Blake.

Millard
Mooney
Dies

A long-time Victoria alderman and pillar of civic endeavors, Millard Henry Mooney, died Sunday in a boat accident on Cowichan River.

He lost his life while attempting to cross the swift-flowing river, five miles west of Duncan.

Duncan RCMP today indicated it is not yet certain whether Mr. Mooney was drowned or died from a heart attack resulting from the accident.

Mr. Mooney and his son-in-law Gordon Meyer, also of Victoria, had travelled up the river by car with a cartop boat to examine some property in which Mr. Mooney was interested. The boat was launched at a point where Riverbottom Road meets the river.

Mr. Meyer told The Times it was necessary to cross the river at a point where it narrowed. Because of the fast current, they decided only one person should go in the small boat at one time.

THREW LINE

"I crossed the river then threw a line back so he could pull back the boat," Mr. Meyer said.

When Mr. Mooney began his crossing the boat headed for some rapids. Mr. Mooney, described as a strong swimmer, got out of the boat but apparently was in difficulty in the cold water.

Mr. Meyer ran along the bank trying to reach his father-in-law, then dived in after him. He dragged him to the river bank and applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. But Mr. Mooney did not respond.

Duncan coroner Dr. Robert R. Wilson was called to the scene. He pronounced Mr. Mooney dead. Dr. Wilson has called an enquiry.

60 ON FRIDAY

Mr. Mooney's body was taken to Duncan and was to be brought to Victoria today. Chaplain's Funeral Chapel here is in charge of arrangements and will announce the date of the funeral.

Mr. Mooney marked his 60th birthday Friday.

His death shocked City Hall. Mayor Alfred Toome said:

"It's most shocking to hear of the untimely death of former alderman Millard Mooney. The accident is a tragedy. He will be remembered for the many years of service he gave to his community."

The deepest sympathy of council is extended to his wife and family."

VARIED CAREER

Mr. Mooney's life for the past 31 years has been wrapped up in community effort and politics in Victoria. But prior to his arrival here in 1935 he had a varied and challenging career on the prairies.

His family is of Irish descent (the name is from the Gaelic Maonagh) but both his father and grandfather were born in Ontario. Millard Mooney was born at Weyburn, Saskatchewan, Nov. 4, 1906, where his family homesteaded.

As a boy he was active in sports, earning the half-mile sprint record for Western Canada and starring in boxing and wrestling.

"I could run and jump like a deer," he would recall.

Waging Botanical War To Save Island 'Natives'

By JOHN MIKA

Almost too late some citizens have become aroused by the danger that we will soon lose the unique signature nature gave to this area — our community of arbutus, Garry oak and dogwood trees.

Up has gone the cry to find undisturbed areas where they can be protected and preserved in their natural environment.

But where does the Saanich peninsula look like the countryside that the pioneers viewed?

The precise answer is being sought by provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szczawinski with the help of third-year University of Victoria botany student, Spring Harrison of 5142 Old West Saanich Road.

Last summer they began searching for the answer with a program that will see every square yard of the peninsula examined and its vegetation sampled for cataloguing and comparing with scores of smaller collections taken by interested persons as far back as 1873.

The answer is not as easy to find as most would assume. Indeed Dr. Szczawinski thinks it will take three years.

The subdivisions threat to native trees is only the final escalation of a relentless invasion of foreign plants brought by the white man which has decimated many other species that used to flourish here.

This slow, silent but desperate botanical war is accelerating on Saanich peninsula.

FEW FOUND

The body count now launched by Dr. Szczawinski at the provincial museum already has shown that where once numerous orchids bloomed on the peninsula and delicate mountain lady's slippers were common at Cordova Bay, few if any specimens can be found today.

Instead, there is a bright yellow carpet of yellow-blossomed foreigners everywhere — broom, gorse and dandelion — which were totally unknown here barely a century ago.

Some idea of the scope of the intrusion can be gained from considering just the broom plant.

A nostalgic Capt. W. C. Grant imported 12 seeds to Sooke from Hawaii where other homesteaders had established the highland plant.

THREE GERMINATED

That was just about 110 years ago and only three of those seeds germinated — yet all of southern Vancouver Island now is a mass of broom blossom in the spring!

An untold number of native Vancouver Island plants are crowded beneath the dense growth of broom that took over almost all openings in the woods.

Everywhere you see the plant today, you know that spot cannot be called a piece of "natural" Vancouver Island ground.

"People are beginning to realize we should set aside areas to preserve our native landscape and they're in a rush — but it's necessary to survey what we now have to find out which areas are worth preserving and which truly have native vegetation," said Dr. Szczawinski.

That's the practical purpose of the systematic study and he promises that its results will be made available to the civic bodies who wish to establish new regional parks.

"As a botanist I'm not only interested in preserving a single species such as the Garry Oak but the whole association — the habitat community — of plants in given areas."

FORM COMMUNITY

Among trees, perhaps you've noticed that where there's Garry oak growing wild you'll also find arbutus and dogwood, too, forming a community because they need the same sort of environment.

ABOUT 2,000 SHEETS of pressed plants of all sizes surround Spring Harrison, third-year botany student at University of Victoria, who spent last summer collecting the specimens for a catalogue of Saanich Peninsula vegetation. He'll be in the fields again next summer on the provincial museum project. (Times photo.)

The same is true of many groupings of native plants.

"Saanich peninsula is a very important botanical area because it is a transition zone — some plants found near the city's outskirts do not occur naturally near Sidney and vice versa," says Dr. Szczawinski.

"That's why there has been so much interest in it by botanists from other areas but now, with the introduced species driving out native plants, there is very little left that represents undisturbed native plant communities so we should be concerned about this."

Dr. Szczawinski said he is particularly concerned about the native trees because they are the most impressive landscape feature we have.

NOT IMPRESSED

He delights to tell of the visit by some eminent Japanese botanists whom he showed the numerous plantings of Japanese cherry and plum trees so proudly tended here.

"They were not impressed," he recalls. "Instead they asked why we did not plant more of the beautiful native trees we have."

Personally, I would not like to see Victoria a second Tokyo. I would rather see it surrounded by Gary oak and arbutus.

For four months last summer, five days a week beginning at 8 a.m. Mr. Harrison would mount his motorcycle and ride to a new grid of the 115 on the map he carried.

He covered the peninsula from the Dallas Road waterfront to the Patricia Bay shoreline from the eastern shore to a westerly limit in line with Little Saanich Mountain and Bear Hill.

"I tried to visit every habitat (the smallest comprehensive unit of floral environment including a community ranging from wet to dryland plants) in each square on the grid map," he said in an interview.

He would collect samples of everything living in each habitat, putting smaller plants in plastic bags and cuttings of larger ones between the leaves of a field press, jot down the pertinent notes in a field book and keep at it until mid-afternoon.

After returning home, the specimens of his collecting expedition would be put on drying racks and later they would be placed into their individual cardboard presses.

All told, he collected more tion is their ability to pande to other men's fears."

He named no one but has refused to endorse these Democratic party candidates:

George Mahoney, seeking the Maryland governorship on a racist platform, and given an even or better chance of winning;

George Wallace, Alabama governor and segregationist running his wife, Lurleen, to offset his non-eligibility and reckoned a shoo-in;

Lester Maddox, given a fair chance of winning the Georgia governorship with a harder anti-Negro stand than his Republican opponent.

PRESIDENT CONFIDENT

But the president also said he is confident the Democrats will wind up with a "good, healthy, substantial majority in the House of Representatives"—the key section of Congress in this election because all seats are contested.

For Nixon, Sunday was a day of maximum national television exposure in which he countered a blistering personal attack delivered by the president Friday.

President Johnson went after the Republican party spokesman as a "chronic campaigner" and a man doing his country a disservice with criticism of Viet Nam policy.

Nixon has questioned the Manila conference communiqué for offering an allied withdrawal from Viet Nam in six months if North Vietnamese forces also withdrew and the fighting stops.

In a half-hour Republican program and a session with press questioners Sunday, Nixon said the president had delivered "one of the most savage personal assaults ever levelled—against one of his political opponents."

He repeated his criticism about Viet Nam and urged election of enough Republicans to curb one-man government under Johnson.

The war in Viet Nam may go on for five years unless more American air and sea strength—rather than troops—are used, he said.

He termed "political fakery" a statement by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara Saturday at the presidential race that troop injections into Viet decline sharply next year.

But Nixon, with backing from Senator Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana who has been critical of escalating the Viet Nam war, cautioned North Viet Nam and China against concluding from the elections—whatever happens — that the American fighting in Viet Nam will erode.

"Regardless of personal feelings, we are committed to proceed as we have," Mansfield said at Helena, Mont.

Lumber Official Named Conciliator

A lumber company personnel officer has been appointed conciliator in the wage dispute between Sooke school board and the teachers.

J. T. Hunter, of Canadian Puget Sound Lumber Co. at Jordan River, will meet board and teacher representatives Tuesday.

The teachers are asking for an average increase of 15.8 per cent but the school board is offering "not much more than five per cent," according to a spokesman.

BRITISH AUTHOR CLAIMS

German Spy Tipped Off Disastrous Dieppe Raid

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—A German intelligence officer who posed as a Canadian spy in wartime France helped tip off the Canadian raid on Dieppe Aug. 19, 1942, a British writer says in a book published last week.

Edward Cookridge, an agent for the special operations executive during the Second World War, tells the story in a detailed narrative of secret service operations in occupied Europe titled Inside S.O.E.

His 609-page account of S.O.E. activities throughout Europe is based on interviews with more than 600 former agents on both sides as well as on a study of wartime documents. Official British permission to publish results of his research followed publication last spring of an official history of the S.O.E. in France by Oxford historian M. R. D. Foot.

Cookridge says Heinz Eckert, a German intelligence captain who had infiltrated the French resistance and intelligence movement by posing as a Canadian S. O. E. officer, found out about the Dieppe raid before-hand and enabled the Germans to group up.

The author, who bases his information on a post-war interview with Eckert, says "it has never been officially disclosed whether treachery was suspected by the allied military commanders," although the commanders' cleared afterwards that the Germans had been prepared for the Dieppe raid.

Terence Robertson, in his 1962 book Dieppe: The Shame and The Glory, concludes that "the Dieppe raid was not betrayed, nor was security broken."

However, Cookridge relates that forewarning contributed to the 68-per cent casualties among the 5,000 men of the Canadian 2nd Division at Dieppe—almost 1,000 killed, nearly 600 wounded and almost 2,000 taken prisoner.

Eckert, who also was instrumental in cracking the Allied intelligence organization in southern France, had spent two previous years in Canada as a commercial representative. With the help of a turncoat-French resistance man, Eckert infiltrated anti-German organizations in northwestern France as "Harold Evans," a Canadian S.O.E. officer.

Through a duped woman resistance member, Eckert learned that an anti-Nazi officer of the German labor force in Dieppe had been providing the British with information about the harbor town. Eckert informed German military headquarters and "precautions were taken to strengthen the defenses" at Dieppe.

Cookridge says Eckert named the anti-Nazi German officer in Dieppe as Niemeyer, but adds "I do not believe this was his real name."

Eckert, now a Hamburg businessman, told Cookridge that he lost track of Niemeyer in the raid.

He is still convinced that the German escaped with the survivors of the Canadian units to England and he says Niemeyer was employed after the war as an interpreter with Allied headquarters in Europe and later with the British control commission in Germany.

Eckert, now 50, was tried and sentenced to death by the in Buchenwald concentration camp the following year. Their story — which includes an escape attempt in Paris by Pickersgill, who killed two Germans with a broken bottle — was related in Foot's official history.

Cookridge says the Canadians were among a group of prisoners hanged from hooks on the wall of the Buchenwald crematorium.

'Frustration Helps Child Development'

Frustration can be beneficial to children, a city psychologist told a group of foster parents Saturday.

In fact, children need a certain amount of frustration, although love, security and consistency in their background are still the most important things, said Dr. E. N. Pareis.

He was speaking at a one-day institute held by the Foster Parents Association of the Family and Children's Service at Goodwill Enterprises building.

A middle-of-the-road course in a child's training is the best, neither too restricted or too permissive, Dr. Pareis said.

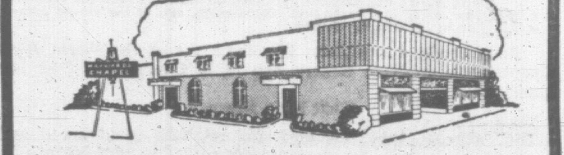

Demand on a child should be increased gradually, as his ability increases. Too many demands too soon and he will become either withdrawn or a rebel, he said.

It might be better to spend time training adults rather than children in some cases, Dr. Pareis suggested.

Dr. Pareis is a psychologist at the provincial Mental Health Centre, a faculty member at the University of Victoria, and is also a consultant at the Family and Children's Service.

A question period was held following Dr. Pareis' talk on roadblocks to normal development. The foster parents later separated into three groups according to the ages of their foster children, to discuss problems.
